RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE.

Vol. 19. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 2, 1902. No. 16

AROUND THE WORLD

VICTOR PATNAUDE, THE GAZETTE CORRESPONDENT, COMPLETES CIRCUIT.

TO THE PHILIPPINES VIA THE PACIFIC, BACK OVER THE ATLANTIC.

Victor Patnaude, the former Red Lake Falls boy whose letters from the Chickamauga camp and later from the field of action in the Philippines, have appeared in these columns at intervals since the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, is again back on his native soil, having made the return trip in 67 days. His letter follows:

Jersey City, Dec. 24, 1901.

Editor Gazette:

I will write you a few lines to let you know that I have arrived safe back in God's Country, after having been aboard the U. S. A. F. McClellan for 67 days, and encountering several storms; stopping at Singapore, India, Colombo, Ceylon and Suez City; going through the Suez Canal to Port Said, thence to Valiento, Island of Malta, thence to Gibraltar. We next started to cross the Atlantic, but encountering storms run out of coal and were obliged to put in at the Bermuda Islands for coal. From there we had an uninterrupted passage to New York and consider that we had a fair voyage. We go to-day by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to Jefferson Barracks, Mo. We were allowed shore leave at most all places and therefore saw all the cities mentioned. At Malta the Chapel of St. John, the richest church in the world, was a great sight at small cost. One of the most wonderful and ancient sights I ever beheld. There hang the keys of the church of Rome, brought there by the Knights of St. John of Malta. The Golden Gates have never been found. They are supposed to have been thrown in the sea by Napoleon.

Well I shall not detain you any longer with the records of this trip of ours Around the World—not in 80 but 948 days. As ever,

"Vic."

SPECIAL COURSE.

TO BE GIVEN FOR FARMERS AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY—8 WEEKS' INSTRUCTION.

The management of the State University have decided to give a special course of instruction for farmers, to commence Jan. 14, 1902, and to continue eight weeks. The purpose of this course is stated in the preface to circular just issued announcing the facts as follows:

"To enlarge the influence of our Department of Agricultural and to meet the needs of men of mature age who are busy with the farm the greater portion of the year A special lecture course has been prepared."

A course of sixteen lectures is to be given on dairy husbandry, forty-eight lectures on agricultural chemistry, and farm mechanics, farm implements, dressing and curing meats, farm horticulture, veterinary science, fungous diseases and insects will each be given its place in the course of lectures. Twenty lectures on poultry will also constitute a valuable part of the instruction.

Classes will be called at 9:05 a. m. and continue until 2:50 p. m.

A part of the afternoon will be devoted to study and investigation.

The University farm, live stock, barns, greenhouses, grounds and laboratories of the college and school of agriculture afford ample opportunity for interesting study. No lecture will be given on Monday, but this day will be spent in visiting places of interest, in charge of some instructors, such as the stock yards, flouring and flax mills, green-houses, stock farms, etc.

For this course a fee of $10 will be charged. Board may be secured within twenty minutes' walk from the school or in either of the twin cities at $4.50 per week.

Farmers wishing to register for the course, or desiring further information, should write to W. M. Liggett at St. Anthony Park, Minnesota.

LIBRARY PARTY

MISS ALICE NEWTON GIVES A RECHERCHE NEW YEARS FUNCTION.

The first social function of the new year was given last night by Miss Alice Newton, and the hostess carried off social honors in abundance. The decorations were tinsel and Christmas tree ornaments, and the house was brilliantly lighted by hundreds of vari-colored candles.

The young ladies were disguised as ghosts, in sheets and pillowslips, and represented a library, each guest being named for a book. The gentlemen were given a list of the "books," and had their choice, delivered by the librarian. The discovery of the identity of his "book" was the lot assigned to each gentleman, and the resultant merriment was unbounded. Refreshments were served at 11:30

The party was given for Misses Mabel and Eva La Due, of Fertile, guests of Miss Newton.

Dr. Watson won the prize as the champion in the girl guessing contest.

Those present were:

Misses Marjorie Rodgers, Pauline Nieland, Alyce and Lillian Buse, Etta Zaiser, Maud and Eleanor Findelsen, Etta and Agnes Gareeau, Bessie Hunt, Albina Lemieux, Mabel Owen, Josie and Marguerite Kaus, Henrietta and Orilla Hennemuth, Katherine Pirath, Kate Martin, Birdie Dwyer, Della Toupin and Messrs. Ernest Buse, Sam Hunt, Ralph Wyor, Carl Schusser, Lee Healy, Willie Hunt, Drew Marshall, Vernie Healy, Dan Johnson, Thos. Germo, Wm. McIntyre, V. Higinbotham, Rev. Andrew Walker, Norman Schreiter, Ed. Townsend, Dr. Argue, Hugo Zaiser, Dr. Watson, Henry Anderson, Joe Dwyer, Geo. Hennings and Jos. Poullot.

The case of Sieff vs. McGinty was up for trial before Judge Toupin and a jury of six on Tuesday. Sieff was suing for pay for a horse and calf sold to McGinty, and he won. The judgment was for $33 and costs.

SPARTANS WIN.

JUDGES DECIDE THEIR CHRISTMAS STORY WAS THE BETTER.

J. NELSON KELLY AND TWO OF HIS HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS THE JUDGES.

The Spartan literary society wins the $5 gold piece offered as a prize for the best Christmas story written for The Gazette by the two literary societies of the Red Lake Falls High School—the Athenians and Spartans.

The award will be made upon Supt. Whiteley's return.

The stories, "Where Katie Spent Christmas," by the Spartans, and "Christmas at Lofton's" by the Athenians, were published in the Christmas number of The Gazette.

Supt. Whiteley requested Supt. J. Nelson Kelly, of the Grand Forks High School and two of his teachers, to act as judges, and the decision is given in favor of the Spartan society, although they "found it very difficult to choose between the stories."

THE DECISION.

Grand Forks, N.D., Dec 26, 1901.

Supt. F. A. Whiteley,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:

It was difficult to choose between the enclosed stories, but the High School teachers decided the first ("Where Katie Spent Christmas," by the Spartan society) was the better.

Sincerely Yours,
J. Nelson Kelly.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself. but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

His Proficiency as a Linguist.

Brown—Are you anything of a linguist?

Jones—Well, I can read and understand French, German, golf, yacht, baseball and football, but I can't talk 'em.—Detroit Free Press.

HAVE INCORPORATED

NORDEN CREAMERY FILES ARTICLE WITH REGISTER OF DEEDS.

O. J. Tweet was in the city Monday and filed with Register of Deeds Gibeau the articles of incorporation of the Norden Creamery Company. The general nature of the business of this corporation is to be the manufacture of butter and cheese. The place of business is designated as the southeast corner of section 19, in township 154 and range 44, in the town of Norden. The postoffice address is Tweet.

O. J. Tweet, P. A. Waldness, John O. Waslie, Rasmus Martinson and H. Lindberg are the prime movers in the enterprise. The number of shares of capital stock is 250, of the value of $10 each.

The matter of organizing a creamery association had been under discussion for some time, and last Saturday an enthusiastic meeting of the farmers interested was held, articles of incorporation adopted, and a large number of shares were disposed of.

Political Debate.

The Committees having in charge the political debates that are being arranged between the Republicans, Democrats, and Prohibitionists, announce the arrangements complete for the five contests That these will be events of great interest to people of all parties, is evident from the ability of the contestants. J. Adam Bede has long been before the public as a politician and stump speaker. During the last campaign he was Governor Van Sant's chief campaigner. He is well known as a wit and a humorist and can be depended upon to give a sparkle to the debates. T. J. Caton is recognized as one of the most brilliant orators of the Democracy of the Northwest. He was the Minneapolis nominee for congress on the Democratic ticket a few years since and last presidential campaign he was employed by the National Committee, and stumped in the interests of anti-imperialists from ocean to ocean. Oliver W. Stewart is recognized as one of the strongest debaters in the prohibition ranks, and an orator of no mean ability. The question to be discussed is, "Which Political Party Ought to Receive the Support of the American Voter?" The itinerary is as follows: Red Wing, Thursday, January 9; Fargo, Friday, January 10; Minneapolis, Saturday, January 11; Duluth, Monday, January 13; Hutchinson, Tuesday January 14.

TO DAM RED LAKE

WITH OBJECT OF CONTROLING FLOW OF WATER IN RED LAKE RIVER.

THIEF RIVER FALLS COMMERCIAL CLUB PUSHING THE MATTER.

W. C. Smiley, secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial Club, was a caller in the city yesterday, in the interest of a movement for a government lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake. He had just returned from Grand Forks, where an enthusiastic meeting of the Board of Trade endorsed the proposition. Like meetings have been held at Crookston and East Grand Forks, and Mr. Smiley came to talk the matter over with our Board of Trade.

Thief River Falls favors the plan on three counts, alleging:

1. It will benefit water power on the Red Lake river by equalizing flowage. Engineer Ralph estimates that the capacity of the water powers would be doubled.
2. It will aid navigation.
3. It will tend to prevent floods.

Several years ago money was appropriated to make a survey of the entire Red River system, including Big Stone Lake, Lake Traverse, and Red Lake, with a view to establishing dams and reservoirs.

The survey has been very thorough and was completed during the summer, and the project was recommended as practicable by the United States engineers through the war department.

The Tri-State Drainage convention took the matter up at the last session and after listening to the explanation of the plan by Col. Davenport of the U. S. engineering service strongly urged that the plan be pushed to completion.

At their last session the legislature of North Dakota and Minnesota unanimously recommended to their congressmen that the matter be carried through if possible

The river and harbor bill will be one of the first to be taken up after the recess and it is felt that vigorous action must be taken by this part of the country if congress is to be brought to a favorable action at this session.

The Thief River Falls Commercial Club represents that 'the importance of this work to the Red River valley can hardly be overestimated With the dam constructed it would be possible to maintain the water at a sufficiently high stage to enable logs to be driven at any time during the summer, and the stream would be navigable throughout the season. When it is remembered, that practically all the lumber for northern Minnesota markets is floated down this stream, and that five steamers regularly ply the river between Thief River Falls and Red Lake, the commercial value of the work begins to be apparent.

"This improvement would also, it is said, largely do away with the spring floods, which have destroyed millions of dollars worth of property in the valley in past years.

"Finally, the improvement to the water power along the river is a matter which should not be overlooked. The matter is one which touches very closely the development of the valley."

Will Found a Town.

Daniel Campbell, an old-timer in the Big Fork country was in the city last evening on his way to Princeton and the Twin Cities. He has lived on the Big Fork at Big Falls for the past 23 years. He has a farm with 40 acres cleared, and they are now proposing to build a town there. Some dispute has arisen regarding the site by the promoters and rival towns may spring up. Mr. Campbell says he may build a town, and call it Campbelltown, while Big Rapids is the name proposed by the town builders. The postoffice there is known as Ripple. A stage line runs between Blackduck and the falls daily. Mr. Campbell says that many settlers are going into that country. He owns the water power at Big Falls.—Duluth News-Tribune.

A NEW RULING

APPLICANTS MUST PERSONALLY VISIT LAND BEFORE MAKING FILING.

Although Clerk of Court Perrault has not as yet received a copy, it is reported that one of the most important rulings of the year bearing on land applications has been handed down by the United States Land Office.

Briefly, it requires all applicants for public land, homestead, timber and stone, or under whatever law it is entered, to make an affidavit that he has personally visited and seen the land.

The radical nature of this is not appreciated until it is understood that about three-fourths of all the land taken is never seen by the entryman at the time he files his application.

The departure is due to the enactment of a law by congress about a year ago making all unoccupied public lands containing salt springs or deposits of salt in any form and chiefly valuable therefor, subject to location and purchase under the provisions of the law relating to placer mining claims.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

"Jack, nobody knows me better than you. What reply can I make?"

"He is too cold and too proud for you, Molly. How can you love him? Perhaps," I added, because I was very sure that she would marry him, "after marriage you will find that his coldness is only a cloak to hide his natural warmth and that his pride covers his wife as well as himself."

"He is a good man. Everybody says so. Lady Anastasia declares that he is the most honourable and high principled of men. On that point I am safe. And think, Jack, what a point it is. Why, to marry a drunkard, a sot, a profligate, a gambler—one would sooner die at once, and so an end. But I can trust myself with him. I have no fear of such treatment as drives some wives to distraction. Yet he is cold in his manner and proud in his speech. I might find it in my heart to love him if I was not afraid of him." And so she went backward and forward. He was so good and so great; his wife must always respect him. He was of rank so exalted; it was a great honor to become his wife. He was so brave; she owed her rescue to his bravery. Yet he had spoken no word of love, nor had she seen any sign of love. I asked her what sign she expected, and she was confused. "Of course," she said, "any girl knows very well when a man is in love with her." "How does she know?" I asked her. "She knows because she knows." I suppose she felt that the man was not in love with her just as her mother felt that his character for virtue and nobility was assumed—"corrupt within," she said. Women are made so. And in the next breath Molly repeated that what his lordship had done was done for love. "How do you know?" I asked again. "Because the captain says so," she replied, with unconscious inconsistency.

"Is the courtship to be conducted entirely by messenger?" I asked.

"No. He will come tomorrow morning and see me. I am to give him an answer then. But the captain has already told him what the answer is to be. Oh, Jack, I am so happy! I am so fortunate that I ought to be happy. Yet I am so downhearted about it. Going away is a dreadful thing. And when shall I see any of you, I wonder, again? Oh, I am so fortunate; I am so happy"— And to show her happiness she dropped a tear, and more tears followed.

What kind of happiness, what kind of good fortune, was that which could fill the mind of the captain with gloom and could dissolve Molly's mother in tears and could herald its approach to the bride by sadness which weighed her down? And, as for me, you may believe that my heart was like a lump of lead within me, partly because I was losing the girl I loved, but had never hoped to marry, and partly because from the outset of the whole affair—yes, from the very evening when the news of the grand discovery was read to the Society of Lynn—I had looked forward to coming events with forebodings of the most dismal kind.

"Come to see me tomorrow afternoon, Jack," she said. "I must talk about it to some one. With the captain I cannot talk, because he is all for the unequal match, and with my mother I cannot talk, because she foretells trouble and will acknowledge no good thing at all in the man or in the match. Do not forget, Jack. Come tomorrow. I don't know how many days are left to me when I can ask you to come. Oh, Jack, to leave everybody, all my friends! It is hard. But I am the most ungrateful of women because I am the happiest—the happiest—oh, Jack, the happiest and most fortunate woman that ever lived!"

CHAPTER XI.

THE ARDENT LOVER.

BETWEEN 10 and 11 of the clock next morning Molly's suitor—I cannot call him her lover—arrived at the house. At that hour most of the ladies are at morning prayers, and the gentlemen are either at the tavern taking their morning whet or at the coffee house in conversation or engaged in some of the sports to which most of them are so much addicted. Lord Fyllingdale, although the streets at such an hour are mostly deserted, had to cross the market place on his way to the captain's house in Hogman's lane and was therefore carried in a chair with the curtains drawn, so as to avoid recognition.

He was received by Captain Crowle in the parlor. For the occasion the old man had put on his Sunday suit, with white silk stockings, and he wore his sword, to which, as the former commander of a ship, he was entitled.

"I am come, captain, to receive in person your answer to the message conveyed to you yesterday by my embassador. I hope that the message was delivered faithfully and with due respect."

"I believe, my lord, with both."

"I assure you, Captain Crowle, that the respect I have conceived for your character and loyalty is more than I can express in words. That you have inspired in the mind of your ward similar virtues I do not doubt, and this confidence, believe me, has much to do with the out [illegible] to that young lady."

"Your lordship does me the greatest honor. My answer is that I accept in Molly's name, and joyfully."

"I am delighted. This should be," he added coldly, "the happiest day of my life."

"When we spread the news abroad, everybody in Lynn will feel that the greatest honor has been done to the town, as well as to this house."

"Sir, you overrate my position. Still, however, we must keep the matter secret for a day or two yet. I engage you, captain, to profound secrecy."

"As long as you please, my lord. The sooner I may speak of it the better I shall like it, for I am bursting with joy and satisfaction."

"Patience, captain, for a day or two."

The captain became serious, even melancholy. "You will take her away, I suppose?"

"I fear I must. A married man generally takes away his wife, does he not?"

"You will take her to your country house and to London. Well, I am old. I am 75 already. I cannot expect ever to see her again. Her mother, however, is not so old by 30 years. Perhaps your lordship will at some time or other—we would not remind you of your lady's humble folk—allow her, if she is within an easy journey, to come here to see her mother."

"Surely, surely, captain. Could I be so hard hearted as to refuse? Her mother, certainly, or yourself, but not any of her old friends, not the friends of her childhood, such as that young sailor man, nor the girls of the place."

"I care not for them so that I may comfort her poor mother with that promise. As for myself, who am I that I should intrude upon her? Let me die happy in the knowledge that she is happy."

"She will be as happy as the day is long, captain."

"I doubt it not. As for Jack Pentecrosse, an old playfellow, he is like me. He loves her as if she was his sister, but he desires nothing but the knowledge of the girl's happiness."

"I accept your assurance, captain, that he will not endeavor to seek her or to visit her."

"He will not. My lord"—the captain became very serious—"I can promise you a well conditioned, virtuous, modest, obedient and dutiful wife. She will ask for nothing but a continuance of your lordship's affection and consideration, in return for which she will be your willing servant as well as your wife."

"Again, captain, I doubt it not, else I should not be here."

"And when the day comes—when you pass the word, my lord—the bells shall ring, and the music shall play, and all the town shall make holiday, and we will have such a feast and merrymaking that all the country round shall ring with it. My lord, I am so happy!"

"But, captain, I have not yet received the consent of the lady."

"Be assured that you will have it. But the girl is shy and hesitates, being, to say the truth, dazzled by the rank to which she is to be raised. A young maid's modesty will perhaps hinder such a freedom of speech as you would naturally desire."

"I hope, sir, that I am able to appreciate and value the virtue of modesty. All I ask of the young lady is her consent."

"Of that you may be assured beforehand."

"Then, captain, as this is an occasion of some awkwardness and one which it is well to get through as quickly as possible"—did one ever hear of such a lover?—"well, to get through as quickly as possible"—his first interview with his mistress—"you will perhaps bring Miss Molly to me or take me to her."

Molly meanwhile was in her bedroom in a strange agitation, her color coming and going—now pale, now blushing—for the first time in her life trembling and inclined to swoon. Even for a girl who loves a man it is an event of the greatest importance and one never to be forgotten when she consents to make him happy. But when she is in grievous doubt; torn by the consciousness that she does not love the man, that she is afraid of him, that she does not desire the change of rank which he offers and that she would far rather remain among her own people—in such a case, I say, her trouble is great indeed. However, to do honor to the occasion, she, like the captain, had assumed her Sunday attire. Her frock, to be sure, was not so fine as that in which she graced the assembly, but it was passable. To my mind she looked more beautiful than in that splendid dress.

At her guardian's summons she slowly descended the stairs. The kitchen door was open. She looked in as she passed. Her mother, instead of being busy over her housewifery, was sitting in her chair, her hands clasped, her eyes closed, her lips moving. She was praying for her daughter. Molly stepped in and kissed her. "Mother," she said, "pray that it may turn out well. I must accept him. Yet I doubt. Oh, pray for me!"

"Because," her mother murmured in reply, "the captain cannot help, and Jack cannot help, and there is none other that helpeth us but only thou, O God!"

Then Molly turned the handle of the parlor door and entered.

"Miss Molly!" Her gallant lover, splendid with his star and his fine clothes, took her hand, bowed low and kissed her fingers.

"You would speak with me, my lord."

"Yesterday I sent a message to your guardian. I told him by my messenger that I was entirely overcome by the beauty and the charms and the virtues of his fair ward, and I offered, unworthy as I am, my hand and all that goes with it—my rank and title, my possessions and myself."

"The captain told me of the message."

"I have today received an answer from him. But, although he is your guardian, I would not presume to consider that answer as final. I must have your answer as well."

"My lord, I am but a humble and a homely person."

"Nay, but lovely as Venus herself."

"I know not, since all the company have come to Lynn, how homely and humble I am in the eyes of gentlefolk."

"You will no longer be either homely or humble when you are a countess."

"I fear that your friends among the great will make your lordship ashamed of your choice."

"My friends know me better than to suppose that I can be shamed by their opinion. But, indeed, they have only to see you for that opinion to be changed. Once seen by the world, and all will envy and congratulate the happy possessor of so much beauty."

"Then—are you satisfied that you are truly in love with me?"

"Satisfied?" He took her hand and kissed it. "How shall I satisfy you on this point? By what assurance? By what lover's vows?"

She glanced upward, having spoken so far with hanging head. Her eyes met his. Alas, they were cold and hard! There was no softening influence of love visible in those eyes—only resolution and purpose. His eyes were as cold as his forehead and as hard as his lips. Poor Molly! Poor countess!

"Is it not, my lord," she asked, "a mere passing fancy? You will be tired of me in a month. You will regret that you did not choose, rather, among the fine ladies who speak your language and follow your manners."

"Molly, I am a man who does not encourage idle fancies and passing loves. You will find no change in me. As I am now so I shall be always."

She shivered. The prospect made her feel cold.

"Then, my lord," she said, "I have nothing more to say. I shall not do justice to your rank, nor shall I bring to your house the dignity which you deserve. Such as I am, take me, if you will; or let me go, if you will."

"Can you doubt, Molly? I will take you." He hesitated; he took her hand again; he stooped and kissed her forehead. There was no passion in his kiss, no tenderness in his touch, no emotion in his voice. Such as he was then such he would always be, and, though the door was closed, Molly seemed to hear again the voice of her mother murmuring, "But only thou, O God!"

Her lover drew the captain's armchair and placed it at the open window, which looked out into the garden, then filled with flowers, fragrant and beautiful and melodious with the humming of many bees.

"Sit down, Molly, and let us talk."

He did not sit down; he stood before her; he walked about the room; he played with the gold tassels of his sword.

"Molly, since we are to be married, we must be married at once."

"I am your lordship's servant."

"As soon as possible. Are you ready?"

"Ready? I suppose I could be ready in a month or six weeks."

"Why, what is there to do?"

"I have to get things—dresses, house linen, all kinds of things."

"My dear, you are not going to marry a cit. Everything that you want you can buy. There are plenty of shops. You want nothing but what you have—your wardrobe, your fine things and your common things and your jewels. You must not forget your jewels."

"I thought that brides were always provided with things for the house, but if your lordship has already the linen and the napery"—

"Good gracious! How should I know what I have? The thing is that you will need nothing."

"Where will you take me?"

"I think, first of all, to my house in Gloucestershire. It is not fully furnished. The late possessor, my cousin, whom I succeeded, was, unfortunately, a gambler. He had to cut down his woods and to sell them. He even had to sell his furniture and pictures. But I can soon put the house in order fit for your reception." It was he himself and not his predecessor who had sold these things. "If it is not so fine at first as you would wish, we can soon make it worthy of you."

I have often wondered what he intended to do with his bride if things had gone differently. I am now of opinion that he intended to take her to this great country house, which, as I have understood, stands in a secluded part of the country, with no near neighbors and no town within reach, and that he intended to leave her there while he himself went up to London to resume the old gaming and raking which he desired so much, although they had been his ruin. Fate, however, prevented this design.

"If you desire my happiness, my lord"—

"What else is there in the world that I should desire?"

—"you will take me to that country place and live there. I fear the world of fashion, and I have no wish to live in London. I have learned from the Lady Anastasia how the great ladies pass their time."

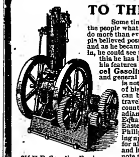
TO THE PEOPLE:



2½ H.P. Gasoline Engine.

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philipines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

WHO ORIGINATED THE LIE?

Everybody knows by personal experience that one has his hands full when he is held responsible for mistakes he has really made, for where is the one who has not made them? If this is true of the private citizen, it is more so in the case of the chief executive whose every act and motive is held as under a magnifying glass. The latest misrepresentation of a serious nature is the untruthful account of the alleged "scolding" administered by President Roosevelt to Gen. Miles, an incident seized upon by the vampires of politics with a ferocity born of long abstinence.

Perhaps no incident since Roosevelt's accession to the presidency has caused so much disappointment and change of sentiment. It has been generally regarded as a "bad break" and coming at the time when the public chafed under the decision of the board of inquiry, a hostile sentiment was soon fanned into a flame.

The truth of the case is coming out, and no doubt the words of a rabid opposition paper like the Chicago American which rises to explain, should be conclusive evidence of the falsity of the original reports.

The American says:

> General Miles called in the afternoon and entering the reception room, took a position near the fire-place, where he stood alone, there being from eight to ten persons in the room. The president came out of the cabinet room, and his eye first fell on Gen. Miles. He advanced rapidly towards the general saying:
> "Good afternoon, General Miles," adding, "I will see you in a moment in the cabinet room."
> The president intended this as an invitation to Gen. Miles to retreat once to the cabinet room. It is admitted that the president knew precisely why General Miles had called. General Miles did not retire, but again addressed the president and started to tell him why he had come. The president again said:
> "I would like to talk this over and will see you in the cabinet room."
> Up to this time the president's manner was not severe, but was described as "only the president's usual earnestness of style of address." The president and general Miles were close together all the time, which was, however, brief, and the conversation was not loud enough to be heard by many of the people in the room.
> The president was again addressed by General Miles on the subject of his interview about Schley, and the president replied in a voice that was heard by nearly everybody in the room. The president said:
> "Well, I do not approve of the interview. It is subversive of discipline. I cannot imagine how you could expect to maintain discipline among your subalterns if you yourself disregard the army regulations. I disapprove of your act, General Miles."
> General Miles made no reply, but bowed. The president shook hands with Gen Miles as if in termination of the interview, and the general retired.
> The American's information says that the president did not shake his finger at General Miles, and was as courteous as he could be while earnestly and forcibly expressing a rebuke.

The Chicago American's plain statement is proof that a lie was formulated and scattered broadcast, no doubt with the purpose of injuring the President. Who originated the lie? Some individual or clique high in the counsels of state no doubt, with partisan enmity seeing in the heat of the Schley-Sampson controversy a chance to work a poisonous virus into the national body politic.

WITH THE EDITOR.

The Gazette presents this week a new feature, "Mother's Corner" which we trust to run regularly hereafter. We regard it as a valuable acquisition. To be appreciated, this "corner," should be read intelligently, and to the end that this may be done at the outset we will say that Mother Katherine is a lady whose noble life and exalted womanhood might well be styled as model; added to this, her actual experience as the queen of a happy and ideal home, and the fact that she is a woman well versed in all the topics she will touch on; one whose literary and intellectual attainments are of a high order, and we have one worthy to edit "Mother's Corner." With her it is a labor of love; speaking from a heart o'erflowing with the milk of human kindness, she makes no attempt at literary embellishment; she writes "between meals, after the stockings are mended; under the evening lamp when the little ones are asleep, as well as to the tune of the singing tea kettle, whose notes are withal very familiar to her.

The Gazette wishes its readers a "Happy New Year." It is our resolution to improve The Gazette as a home paper; as a paper Red Lake county people may be proud of—grow to esteem more and more: a clean paper without a darkly suggestive word or sentence, so that even the little ones may read its pages with immunity. There is a great deal of satisfaction to an editor in being true to himself and to his calling; and to know that only his honest convictions find expression in his columns, however great may be the resultant temporary inconvenience or annoyance; and we propose in the future to achieve this satisfaction as we have achieved it in the past.

The Gazette is proud of its able corps of correspondents. But we need an addition to the force—a representative in Equality, River Falls, North and Wyandotte, as well as in St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. Anyone may secure The Gazette one year free by procuring us a correspondent from one of the places mentioned.

The U. S. Civil Service commission will hold examinations at several places in each state during March and April, to secure young men and women for the government service. 9,889 persons secured positions last year through these examinations. Probably 10,000 appointments will be made this year. All appointments are for life and for most positions only a common school education is required. Salaries at appointment vary from $660 to $1200 a year with liberal promotions afterward. Politics is not considered. This affords a good opportunity for people between 16 and 45 years of age. Those desiring places of this kind can get full information about them, free, by writing to the Columbian Correspondence College, Washington, D. C. and asking for its Civil Service catalogue, number three.

Minnesota has 22 persons to the square mile, and compared with 394 to the square mile in Rhode Island, Minnesota with equal density of population, would have 40,000,000 citizens. The average wealth per capita as assessed is $335, but as the actual value of property is more than three times its assessed value, the actual wealth per capita of citizens of Minnesota is $1,000.

The governors' conference at Helena is said to have been successful. Their plans of procedure remain secret.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Howard B. Johunneson, a Polk county youth, is getting a start early in life—21 years of age, and has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

McIntosh streets were illuminated with electricity for the first time last Thursday. They have four arc lights that cost that city $360 a year for a midnight service on a moonlight schedule.

The Hawley Herald has installed a new Reliance cylinder press and gasoline engine. Editor Reed is justly proud and Hawley should be appreciative. The Herald would do credit to a much larger town.

Is the Cass Lake Times the first weekly in these parts to espouse the cause of socialism? Or is that commitment merely the expression of the city editor in the absence of proprietor Judge Ives?

Haldor E. Boen of the Fergus Falls Globe is mentioned as a candidate for the position of deputy grand master of the Minnesota Oddfellows. If Haldor was a little broader guaged and less bigoted, he could grace the position better.

Business seems to be steadily increasing, and the business men cannot get in goods fast enough to accommodate the buyers. Even if Tenstrike is not on the map the majority of the people seem to know where to find her.—Tenstrike Tribune. It don't need to be on the map. Have they not the Tribune?

Striking a wire on one of those wire-opening envelopes is gratification enough to last a year or so—until the next time.

The World's Fair at St. Louis is bound to be a success if the press bureau is a fair sample of the spirit back of it.

The Roseau Region thinks that "Senator Grindeland of Warren is coming right to the front as the probable nominee for congressman in the new 9th district." The Gazette thinks that he has been to the front for some time.

Now say, isn't that a pipe dream, that "Caught on the Run" story in the Duluth News-Tribune about the dot contest?

We couldn't quite decide what has been the matter this week until it occurred to us that the Bemidji Pioneer had failed to put in its appearance.

Apropos of New Years resolutions, which don't seem to have a very high standing in the estimation of people generally, the Adrian Democrat falls in line by philosophizing as follows: If good intentions tuned harps in heaven, it seems to me the arrangements would be more satisfactory to many of us.

The enrollment of Thief River Falls' schools is 536.

A Fisher firm admits it like this: "We have quit selling water for kerosene oil and now have some good corn planter oil." That is probably meant as a drive at the Standard Oil Co. rather than self accusation.

The pleasure that comes to you from the outside world depends on the favor and approval of those you cannot control. The pleasures of the body depend upon youth, on health, and are very easily exhausted. The pleasures of the soul are within your own control; you can only lose them through your own fault. Inside yourself you are master, and nothing can touch you except your own foolish ambitions, vanities and lack of self reliance.—Goethe.

The Princeton Union on Christmas week celebrated its 25th birthday anniversary by issuing a superb special edition. A unique calendar was included as a supplement. It is a very striking one, headed "Minnesota Potato Belt Calendar" and a map of the great potato producing counties between the twin cities and Duluth is printed on the picture of a potato, standing boldly erect as the main feature of the calendar.

There's something repulsive about those Christmas dances.

Pure apple cider may be used with good effect as a preventive and a cure of smallpox. The discovery of this new and wonderful medicinal value in apple juice is attributed to Arizona physicians. A pint each day in doses each hour drives away the eruptions in from five to fifteen days.

Tenstrike made a tenstrike when Editor Chas. Gustafson located there. His Tribune is a wonder for its field.

Is this Judge Ives' own, or, in his absence, merely the mutterings of his charge de affaires?: Mark Hanna, Schwab of the steel trust, Chauncey Depew, Bishop Potter, Archbishop Ireland—Jim Hill's stool pigeon, and a lot of labor fakirs, have been in session the past week trying to invent some plan to appease the demands of the discontented toiler that will not interefere with the privilege of Hanna's friends to despoil them. It won't work, the competitive system is doomed and the frantic efforts of those who plunder the toiler through vested rights is amusing, and but hastens the hour. The handwriting is on the wall, and to them it glows in letters of fire. The dawn of the co-operative commonwealth approaches and these fellows are on the anxious seat. They are not blind.

The Nobles County Democrat man must be one of the proud papas himself, judging from this: Some rash society in Worthington sought to replenish its depleted exchequer by giving a baby show last Friday night. The show was pulled off as advertised, and strange as it may seem, the prizes were awarded and the judges escaped without bodily harm. But they ran an awful risk, and should not tempt fate again in this dare-devil manner. Ajax defied the lightning, but he never would have had the nerve to act as judge in a baby show.

The United States court of appeals has just filed a decision of considerable interest, involving the question as to whether or not a trustee could be made to refund payments made to creditors less than four months before filing the petition in bankruptcy. The court decided that creditors to whom the payments had been made, but whose credits exceeded the amount they had received, could participate in the dividends without refunding.

Editor Robbins of the Valley View must have been there personally or he could never have given that swell dinner at the Phoenix Cafe that write-up—which would make anybody's mouth water.

The McIntosh Times just now learns that it made a mistake in extending advertising credit to Dr. Taft Bros. Medical Co. The Gazette has learned that a dollar put into a subscription for The Publishers Guide is security against such imposters.

Here is a gem; a pointer for bashful young men, taken from the Rollis correspondence in the Thief River Falls Press: We have a young man in our part of the country who does not intend to get left when there is a dance in view. The other day he hired a young lady to go to a dance with him. There is no need of him living a life of single blessedness.

The Thief River Falls Commercial Club is swinging the bludgeon with a view to influencing legislation in favor of the construction of a government lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake.

Dairying in Minnesota did not begin to attract attention until twelve years ago; now there are 582 creameries making annually 60,000,000 pounds of butter.

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY MOTHER KATHERINE

A Staff contributor, who will write of every day affairs—the little units that go to make up the sum total of existence. Mother Katherine writes exclusively for THE GAZETTE. She is a mother who presides over an ideal home. A letter addressed to her in care of The Gazette will reach her. She is worthy of confidence.

HOUSEHOLD.

Ladies GET A CARPET SWEEPER if you have none.

I wish I could put that sentence on every street corner, and on every mile post. Try burning your garbage, you whom an unsightly, frozen mass stares in the face every time you look out of your window.

I see you look horrified and I hear you say: "But the odor mother." No need of an odor at all. Have a good fire, and put in all vegetable remains not fit to use again, also all parings, open up all draughts and I promise you it will not be long before you will wonder why you never tried this.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My dear little ones I hope you had a pleasant Christmas and now I've come to ask you to adopt me as your auntie Katherine. I'll try to write a story now and then and you must be sure to watch for the space reserved for you. Today no doubt you will be glad to hear something about Santa Claus. My stories are all going to be "surely ones" of the dear little ones hereabouts.

There are two girls whom we'll know as the Girlies in this story. Christmas night the Girlies and many more children went to the hospital to sing and play for the poor sick people, and what do you think they saw there? A Santa Claus made of straw, with a suit of clothes on, and a cigar in his gloved hand. He sat in a large hall near a beautiful tree and the Girlies wondered why he was so quiet. By and by some one discovered why, and just then in walked a really, truly old Santa, giving every patient and every little singer a present. How fat and jolly Old Santa was, and how pleased the little sick boys were.

Next time you may hear how one dear little boy of six years happens to be in the hospital.

THE AFTERMATH.

After everything regarding the holidays has been done and said, our turkeys and plum puddings eaten (also endless remains of the festive bird in soup, stew or salad have been disposed of with resignation) what have we gleaned? We have a fuller sense that it is good to be here, to love, and be loved, and that it is most blessed of all to give.

When we see the smiling child, so happy with a toy, purchased perhaps with only a few cents, do we not wish that we could have given six hundred presents instead of six? Oh, these blessed festal days! May their spirit remain with us forever and ever.

And let me say, if anyone has a dear old relative or friend whom she could not remember thus far, let her sit down now and write a few cheering words to the dear absent one. Or let her visit those within her reach.

How the frail ones, those who are in doors for months, enjoy a good, hearty visit. How pleased they are to be remembered.

We can all obtain a flower, a little fruit or a new book with which to interest the housed-up ones. Think of it, indoors all winter! When we walk along briskly in the crisp winter atmosphere, filling our lungs with God's fresh air, our cheeks tingling with the cold, how our hearts go out to the many who know no such enjoyment. Are they fretful, are they dull perhaps, or discontented? What wonder. Gazing at the same objects for weeks and months; thinking the same thoughts over and over. What wonder I say they get tired, so tired. Then don your prettiest raiment, adorn your intellect with pure and noble thoughts, and your heart with charity to all mankind, and no fear but your face will be a luminous reflection, cheering those on whom its rays may fall.

He tells of the progress of the creamery enterprise in his town. A co operative company is fully organized and everything will be ready for business in the spring. There are fully 800 cows within a radius of four miles of Tweet, and the milk from this fine bunch will be sufficient to make the institution a paying one from the start. Mr. Tweet says they should have had a creamery there years ago, and he is right.

Joseph Cyr, the well known Poplar River farmer, was in the city Monday arranging with Dr. I. Lemieux for an operation on his son Frank L., aged 17, who had his leg cut off an inch above the ankle when he was four years old. The past year the stump has caused him much distress, a running sore having developed. It is the intention of the surgeon to amputate three inches of the stump. As soon as Frank attains maturity an artificial limb will be procured, but until that time this is not practicable. Frank is a bright boy (he has been a reader of The Gazette for many years), and his many friends are impatiently awaiting the time when he can procure the relief that will be afforded by the artificial limb. This will not likely be for a couple of years. It is a long wait.

NO MORE NEWSBOYS.

"An order has been issued from the headquarters of the Northern Pacific and goes into effect the first of the year," stated a railroad man of this city, "whereby the services of all newsboys will be dispensed with." The measure has been under consideration by the officers of the road for sometime past and the first of the year is the time chosen for doing away with the sales department. Arrangements will, however, be made with the dining department to carry a small side line of articles and papers which can be procured by going to the porter.—Fargo Daily Call.

WILL TOTE FROM TENSTRIKE.

Mr. F. A. Crowe, representing the Thief River Falls Lumber Company, was in the village Tuesday looking after the company's interests here. This company is operating ten camps about fourteen miles from here, and will cut between thirty and forty million feet of logs this winter. Mr. Crowe informed us that the company has bought the Halvorson, Richards & Co.'s warehouse and will do all their toting from here. They will have about ten teams on the road between their camps and this village all the time. This will increase the business in Tenstrike to a great extent.—Tenstrike Tribune.

CHANGED HIS NAME.

Judge C. J. Fisk of the district court, has issued an order granting Ivar N. Feristveidt the right to change his name to Iver F. Nelson. In the application to be allowed to make this change, the petitioner stated that he has been greatly inconvenienced in the past from the fact that if he spelled his name no one could pronounce it, and if he pronounced it no one could spell it, and that he had great trouble in getting his mail, as the postmasters could not make out what he wanted. By the change he takes his last name as a christian name and his former christian name (Nelson) for a surname, and expects no further trouble in that line.—Grand Forks Herald.

NATURAL GAS NEAR PELICAN RAPIDS.

Parties who were down from Pelican Rapids Tuesday state that the gas well on the farm of Willet Brunk is arousing great interest up there. The gas was struck at a depth of 103 feet. The drill had gone through nearly 60 feet of blue clay, and then struck a rock. A stick of dynamite was sent down to blast the rock and after the explosion a heavy rumbling sound was heard and the gas began to pour up out of the pipe. A match was struck and the flame shot into the air, but as the well was close to the house it was feared that the building would be set afire and the flame was extinguished by stuffing the pipe with sacks. Parties have gone out to-day to ascertain the nature of the gas and the amount of pressure. The gas would be immensely valuable should it exist in any considerable quantity and might indicate the presence of coal.—Fergus Falls Journal.

FELL TO HIS DEATH

J. E. DEMPSEY MEETS A TRAGIC END AT A FIRE IN A ST. PAUL BUILDING.

Former Minnesota Indian Fighter, a Hero of Birch Coulee, Dies in Kansas City—State Teachers Close an Interesting Meeting—Citizens of Glyndon Fight a Battle With Burglars—State News in General.

St. Paul, Dec. 27.—John E. Dempsey, publisher of The Record and long a well known figure in St. Paul, died as a result of a fall from a fourth story window of the Washburn building on Fifth street. The body, crushed and bleeding, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, but though life remained the shock was too great and he died three hours later.

Dempsey's fall was most tragic and followed an alarm of fire from an incipient blaze on the second floor of the building, in which he had an office. Crazed with fear at the dense smoke that poured into his room he attempted to cross from the Washburn building to the adjoining building, using a wooden sign as a bridge. He had made half the journey in safety when to the horror of those below the sign broke, his hands clutching wildly at the air as he fell. Witnesses closed their eyes in horror at the sight. The body struck the ground in the narrow passageway to the east of the building, 60 feet below.

A HERO OF BIRCH COULEE.

Former Minnesota Indian Fighter Dies at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Dec. 27.—Dewitt Clinton House died during the day at his home in this city, aged 74 years. He was one of the oldest and best known traveling men in the United States. He was born in Vermont, and 50 years ago established at Peoria the first steam bakery and cracker factory in Illinois. When the War of the Rebellion broke out Mr. House went to Minnesota, enlisting in St. Paul in the Sixth Minnesota volunteers. Shortly after his enlistment his regiment was sent to subdue the Sioux Indians under Chief Little Crow, who had attacked the settlers in Western Minnesota and killed many people in the massacre of New Ulm. While engaged in burying the dead settlers Mr. House and about 40 other soldiers were corralled by a band of Indians at Birch Coulee. After a heroic defense of four days, during which time most of the little band were either killed or wounded, the survivors were rescued by the other troops. At this battle Mr. House received a severe wound in the left leg.

TEACHERS GO HOME.

Thirty-ninth Annual Meeting Closes at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Dec. 28.—The 39th midwinter meeting of the Minnesota Educational association closed Saturday evening. The various sections of the general body have all completed their business and programme sessions, and all have elected new officers.

The general sessions closed with a largely attended meeting in the Central Presbyterian church, at which "Industrial Education" was the topic, and the speakers were Professor Booker T. Washington of Alabama, Dr. Cyrus Northrop, S. H. Comings and Miss Jean Gowdy.

The great movement for industrialism was practically discussed in many of its phases and from various viewpoints.

The closing features of the convention was the lecture in the Central Presbyterian church by Booker T. Washington.

ONE OF THE POSSE SHOT.

Citizens of Glyndon, Minn., Fight a Battle With Burglars.

Glyndon, Minn., Dec. 27.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the general store of C. G. Tracy & Co. The robbers were discovered in the act.

They put up a strong fight before being captured, and R. B. Webb, a member of the posse which surrounded them, was shot through the leg by one of the cracksmen. The proprietor was shot at several times, but was not harmed. The burglars were equipped with tools and dynamite cartridges for safe-cracking, and are held responsible for a number of similar jobs recently performed in this vicinity.

They gave the names of King and Daley, and have been taken to Moorhead for safe-keeping. Their plunder from the store here has been entirely recovered.

Ordered Sold at Auction.

Duluth, Dec. 26.—By the terms of a decree in foreclosure the property of the Duluth Transfer Railroad company will be sold at auction Jan. 2. The property comprises railway tracks, switching yards and right of way from the Union depot to New Duluth. Captain T. H. Pressnell has been designated as special master-in-chancery to conduct the sale and his instructions state he is not to consider any bid of less than $500,000.

Suicide at Eighty-two.

Cambridge, Minn., Dec. 26.—John W. Bodfors, aged 82, for 30 years a resident of this county, committed suicide by hanging himself to a spike in his shanty about two rods from his son's home in the town of Cambridge. He lived alone and no cause is assigned for his act. He tied three scarfs together and made a noose. When found his feet were but three inches from the floor.

Killed His Aged Mother.

Taylors Falls, Minn., Dec. 27.—Abe Nelson, an old resident, killed his mother, 80 years of age, splitting her head open with an axe. He was weak-minded and had been drinking, but was considered harmless. He is 55 years of age and was alone with his mother at the time. He has been lodged in jail.

DISCREPANCIES IN STATISTICS.

Coal Men at a Loss to Understand Captain Gaillard's Figures.

Duluth, Dec. 26.—Captain D. D. Gaillard, United States engineer in charge at Duluth, has prepared a statement of the coal receipts at the head of Lake Superior for the season of 1901, with a comparative statement of receipts for other years. It shows that the aggregate coal receipts have been increasing since 1895, as far back as the comparisons extend. The present season's receipts were the largest on record.

For the present season the total receipts are given at 2,880,426 tons, of which 1,958,895 tons were bituminous and 921,531 tons anthracite.

Local coal men affect to be deeply puzzled at these figures. They do not criticise the soft coal report, but assert the hard coal figures do not correspond with the Sault figures. According to one of them the estimated total of all hard coal delivered to Lake Superior this season was 820,000 tons, of which they claim only 80 per cent is delivered at the head of the lake. This makes a large discrepancy from the 921,531 tons reported by the government, which can't be accounted for.

Captain Gaillard says his report has been carefully compiled from individual reports of vessel masters.

INDIAN FORGER.

Red Man Presents Bogus Checks to St. Paul Merchants.

St. Paul, Dec. 30.—The police believe they have rounded up the gang of alleged bogus check workers who have fleeced local merchants during the past few weeks. Hole-in-the-Day, a young full-blood Indian, who claims to be a student in the Indian school, is said to be the chief conspirator. He was arrested by the detectives. Carl W. Swanson was arrested Saturday and Frank Ashton was run down Friday. Daisy King, a young woman, is said to be implicated.

Hole-in-the-Day is accused of writing the checks and giving them to the others to circulate. The name of R. E. Cohn and other merchants were signed to the checks. One of the checks, drawn for $25, was accepted at a clothing store in payment for a suit of underwear costing $6. Attempts were made to get checks cashed at a restaurant and at the Royal hotel on East Seventh street, but without success. Several checks were secured from the prisoners by the police and the writing on them is said to correspond with that on those that had been disposed of to local merchants.

A DIPLOMATIC MOVE.

How Hill's Statement Is Received by Wall Street.

New York, Dec. 26.—At a meeting of the directors of the Union Pacific railroad executive committee the statement was made that the annual report was completed and would be given to the public this week. E. H. Harriman, chairman of the board, declined to make any statement regarding James J. Hill's disclosure of the facts concerning the Northern Pacific agreement. Other representatives of the Union Pacific said that they did not regard Mr. Hill's attack on the Union Pacific as significant. Mr. Hill, they said, was obliged to shape his conduct in the Northwest to meet conditions there and there was no disposition in New York to hold his attack on the Union Pacific as anything more than a diplomatic move on his part to offset the antagonism of the Northwestern states to the control of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern by the Northern Securities company.

SWAMP LANDS GO TO NATION.

Agent Thorpe Reports His Findings in St. Louis County, Minn.

St. Cloud, Minn., Dec. 24.—Special Agent Thorpe of the United States land office, who has been working since September in investigating 11 townships in St. Louis county lands claimed by the state as swamp lands, has reported locating 271 forties claimed by the state as swamp lands, which, he finds, do not come under the terms under which the state can properly lay claim to them.

Governor Van Sant has been notified and will be given an opportunity to defend the state's claim in a hearing ordered by the St. Cloud land office for Jan. 28. Two other special agents have also been working in St. Louis county and it is estimated that their findings will result in from 20,000 to 30,000 acres being returned to the federal government. It is said that the land bears evidences of having valuable mineral deposits, but that it is almost valueless as agricultural lands.

NEW EXTENSION.

Chicago and Northwestern to Connect Princeton and Elroy.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Dec. 29.—It is given out on reliable authority that the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company will commence work early next spring on an extension of its line from Princeton to Elroy, a town some 40 miles west of Princeton. This road has already been staked out and the right-of-way secured. The road, when completed, will afford a freight and passenger service directly across the state on the lines of the Northwestern road from Sheboygan to points in Minnesota. The Princeton line will be directly connected with the line running west from Elroy.

The new line is to be constructed principally for the purpose of transporting coal from Lake Michigan to points in the West.

Government Will Establish One at the White Earth Agency.

GARNES.

Happy New Year to you all.

How do you appreciate this most beautiful winter weather that we are now enjoying?

Just arrived at the home of Mr and Mrs. H. Vettleson another bab girl. Where are the cigars, Halvor?

Mrs. Gunstein O. Skreland, mother of Osav Skreland, who has been attending Mrs. Osav Skreland during her sickness, returned home last Friday.

While working in the woods near Bemidji, Jorgen Gulseth had the misfortune to badly freeze the fingers on one hand during that cold spell, and he is now at home doctoring the injured members.

John Larson, one of our old bachelors, has lately made great improvements about his house. Something must surely have caught his eye. That is right, John, "There will be no place like home by and by."

Not long ago a small gathering of friends met and honored Mr. and Mrs. Ljote Segarson with a pleasant surprise, by presenting them with a nice set of chairs and bed stead. The evening was spent keeping time to the music.

Ed Havik, the Grit merchant, returned last Monday from one of his usual round about trips to McIntosh, with a load of store goods. Mr Havik has a very brisk trade, and it keeps him hustling on the road nearly all his time to keep the necessary supplies on hand.

Considerable sickness has prevailed in this vicinity of late. Mrs. O. G. Skreland was suddenly attacked by a bad cramp in the stomach, and Dr. Neraal was at once summoned to her aid, and she is now fast on the way to recovery though very weak. Mr. Osav Skreland had also been under the weather for a few days but is well again.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Ed. Havik, Mrs. Ole Lee, and Mrs. W. E. Swanson, we had the pleasure of enjoying a merry Christmas evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Swanson. In the evening a nice little tree was decked in the most attractive manner, and many beautiful presents were stored beneath its boughs, which cheered the hearts of the happy receivers. A nice supper was served and for the balance of the evening Mr. Havik held the audience in good cheer, by giving us some of his favorite old "Norske sanger."

On the 12th of Dec. a wedding was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustim O. Skreland. The contracting parties were William A. Swanson and Miss Marie G. Skreland, both of Grit P. O. and well known in this vicinity. The wedding took place in the midst of a host of friends and relatives. The couple were joined in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. Kolstoe, shortly after seven o'clock p. m., after which a bounteous supper was served to some hundred guests. The bride wore a wreath of orange blossoms and a dress of white serge nicely trimmed. They received many handsome and valuable presents.

Now since the merry Christmas bells have ceased to ring, and the echo has died in the stillness of the past, and can now only be awakened by tender recollections such as have been impressed upon the dial of our memories in the hours of joys and sorrows; while we yet realize this we harbor in our hearts deep thanks to the Prince of Peace for the blessings and endearments this grand old year has bestowed upon us. Soon the parting will come when this faithful year will have to step behind the curtains of the past, to behold its rival, The Happy New Year. So we bid farewell to the old and welcome the new.

A Prominent Woman Speaks.

Prof. Roxe Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Women's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by W. A Schreiter.

Weekly Market Letter.

Edwards, Wood & Co., 8 Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis, 310 Board of Trode, Duluth, Grain Commission Merchants, write:

Dec. 31.—During the past week the market has been increasingly broad and active. On Friday and Saturday of last week wheat lost 1 cent per bu. Yesterday cables were all from ½ to 1 cent lower but notwithstanding wheat here advanced ¾ cents per bu. This morning European cables came ¾ cents higher. Wheat has been actively traded in today and the close the same as yesterdoy as follows: Chicago—May wheot, 82⅜; May corn, 66⅜; May oats, 45⅜ S: Minneapolis—May wheut, 78⅜; May flax, 159. The active wheat market at this time comes as a surprise to most people, a dull market being naturally expected during the holidays. A remarkable amount of interest is now being shown in wheat and buying by the country is heavy. It is suspected that there is o strong professional bull party in Chicago that is manipulating for higher prices. The market is helped by small receipts and by great scarcity of red winter wheat for which a premium of 3 to 5 cents per bu. is being paid. In this connection it is important to remember that winter wheat is supposed to comprise 60 per cent. of the total crop. Northwestern receipts continue moderate and we look for moderate receipts in the near future. The visible supply decreused 157,000 bu. as did also the amount on passags which is now less than 7 million bu. The great strength of our market yesterday and today in the face of Europe's apparent indifference shows the independent position of the United States and its ability to fix prices.

Wheat is now the leader and is followed by corn and oats. Reports are very conflicting, but very good opinions anticipate much larger receipts and consequently lower prices.

Flax has continued to advance on small stock on hand, the May option gaining 3 cents yesterday. Write for our private telegraph cipher explaining speculation and our daily market letter mailed free.

Beat Out of an Increase of His Pension.

A Mexican war veteran and prominent editur writes: "Seeing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension fur on every renewal a dose of it restores me." It is unequalled as a quick cure for diarrhoea and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

Away From Home.

It is becoming the fashion for a woman to seek a maternity hospital that her children may be born amid conveniences lacking ot home. The children are sent away from home to school. They are married away from home, and members of the family are taken to hospitals for their final illness and buried from an undertaker's parlor. It is becoming a fashion to take everything from home except the family rows. They are still sacred to the family hearth.—Atchison Globe.

Italian Brigandage in 1848.

One summer evening in the crowded theater an impatient house demanded the drawing of the curtain preliminary to the first act. When at last it was upraised, Il Passatore and his armed band occupied the stage, with muskets aimed at the affrighted audience. The chief stated that he should levy a tax per head, which he then and there collected. The gang made off with their booty unmolested.—Lady Presturch's "Essays."

SOCIAL ITEMS, GOOD OF THE ORDER AND RECESS GOSSIP OF INTEREST.

A reception in honor of Bro. Frederick Dubuque will be given by the Catholic Foresters on Tuesday, January 7.

North Star Court C. O. F. held its annual election of officers Friday night. The attendance was unusually large, and considerable enthusiasm was manifested at the meeting. Jos. LaFramboise and Edward Vaudrin were visiting members from the Gentilly court. The officers elected are: Chief Ranger, Jos. Tschirhart; Recording Secretary, Keogh Leroux; Financial Secretary, Anthnny LaFreniere; Treasurer, Eus. Normandeau; Trustees, Arthur Lizee, Paul Berthon, Isreal LaFrambois. The following were appointed by C. R.-elect Tschirhart: Conductors, J. P. Harren, Oliver Carron; Sentinels, Jos. Lachance, Jos. Tessier; Chaplains, Rev. Fr. Fayolle, Rev. Fr. Ansgar. Installation of officers will be held Jan. 10.

The New Year's Ball given Tuesday evening under the auspices of the M. B. A. was one of the most successful ever held in Red Lake Falls. The Woodman hall was taxed to its utmost capacity, there being the largest crowd that was ever in the hall, but all present, both young and old, were in their happiest frame of mind, and enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The illumination was fine. Many were the favorable comments heard on all sides regarding the effective manner in which the affair was managed, and much credit is due the president, Mrs. Jos. A. H. Lemieux, in the management of everything, especially for the manner in which so large a crowd was served in such a short time with such a delicious lunch. After two o'clock, when the musicians were tired out, the dancers were still reluctant to leave, as they never had the opportunity to dance to more entrancing music. The officers and members wish to thank those who contributed to make the affair a success, not only financially, but socially as well, and wish them all a Happy New Year.

Joan of Arc Court W. C. O. F. elected officers for the year 1902 at the last meeting. Mrs. J. P. Harren was elected chief ranger for the third consecutive term. The other officers are as follows:

Vice Chief Ranger, Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere.

Financial Secretary, Mrs. W. T. Spillane.

Recording Secretary, Miss Emily LaFreniere.

Treasuer, Mrs. Ed. Bray.

Trustees, Mrs. P. A. Kaufer, Mrs. A. E. Garceau and Miss Eugenie LaBissoniere.

Delegate to the biennial convention to be held at Chicago in June, Mrs. J. P. Harren; alternate Mrs. A. E. Garceau.

The two sentinels and two conductors are to be appointed by the chief ranger.

It is likely that the C. O. F. and W. C. O. F. will join in the installation ceremonies.

Vic's Letter.

Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Jan. 2, 1902.
Editor Gazette:

I will drop you a few lines to let you know that we arrived here safe and sound on the 26th of December. Since that time we have been busy getting fixed up for winter quarters.

We are now comfortably quartered here. This post is about ten miles south of St. Louis and connected by a street car line. The mess is a consolidated mess in which about 600 men are fed. Steam cooking is used throughout the whole place. Boilers higher than a man are used to make coffee, huge pots to boil soup in and also monster roasters that will roast 200 or 300 pounds of beef at a time.

Maj. Edwards is in command but Maj. Leech of the Eng. Corp is expected here soon when he will assume command. We will remain here for an indefinite period and will in all probability go to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where I will be with Simon Paul and Will Beautrow.

This is all for this time. As ever
"Vic."

SMALLPOX.

DR. BRACKEN SAYS THE MILD FORM CAN TRANSFER THE MORE DEADLY TYPE.

In an interview with the daily press, Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the State Board of Health, says the form of smallpox at present prevalent, is what is known in the profession as "varioloid," a mild form of the disease. This differs from chicken pox in that a virulent form of smallpox could be contracted from the varioloid, that is to say, that a patient suffering from the mild form which is fatal to the extent of about one in seventy, can transfer the more virulent and deadly type of the disease.

Asked as to the first symptoms of smallpox, Dr. Bracken stated that three or four days before the eruptions appear the patient feels quite sick and has more or less pain in the head and limbs, particularly in the back and loins; the temperature rises considerably, sometimes as high as 104 degrees, and sometimes not so much. This is accompanied by a general feeling of discomfort.

These early symptoms, the doctor says, are sometimes mistaken for typhoid fever during the warmer seasons of the year and for grippe during the cold season.

At the end of three or four days from these first symptoms, the eruption appears, which is apt to be on the exposed parts of the body—at first on the forehead and later on the face and wrists and hands and then on the entire body.

The first appearance of the eruptions is that of little red spots that are hard to the touch and might be described as having a shotty feeling, that is as though there were shots under the skin.

Following the eruption the red spots change into blisters or vessicles filled with fluid and within a few days the fluid becomes white and later dries up leaving scabs.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

The appointment of street commissioner was deferred until the next regular meeting. Fritz Gerke and John DeForge were re-appointed pound-masters.

E. F. Marshall, P. M.

Marriage of a Former Red Lake Falls Boy.

A very pretty wedding occurred New Year's Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Easton, in this city, when their elder daughter, Miss Susie K. Easton, was united in marriage to Dr. H. C. Stuhr, of Argyle, says the Warren Sheaf. Precisely at noon to the strains of Lohengrin played by Miss Mabie Frank, the bridal couple were ushered into the parlor, where the ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Miss Marian Darling, of Detroit, Minn, in the presence of a few immediate friends of the family. Miss Leora Easton served as bridesmaid and Mr. Dana Easton was the attendant of the groom. The bride was dressed in her traveling gown and carried roses. The decorations were carnations, producing a very pleasing effect. A sumptuous dinner was served at one o'clock, Miss Helen Franklin and Miss Mabel Frank being the waiters at the table.

Dr. Stuhr and bride boarded the south bound evening's train for a short wedding trip, and though the happy couple had endeavored to keep the pleasant event secret, nevertheless the news spread and the result was that they were liberally pelted with rice by their friends as they entered the car at the station.

The bride has grown up from childhood in this city and is a highly esteemed and cultured young lady. She graduated from the Warren High School a few years ago and has since taken a course at the State University. She has served as a primary teacher in the Warren school.

The groom is a successful practicing physician at Argyle. His parents reside at Euclid. Unaided except by his own industry, perseverance, determination and ability, Mr. Stuhr has worked his way to an honorable profession, in which he undoubtedly will achieve success.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. Stuhr in this city and vicinity extend to them most hearty congratulations, and wish them much joy and happiness in life.

A Resolution.

The H. S. O., which takes in the membership of both the Spartan and Athenian literary societies, passed the following resolution, which is published by request:

Resolved, That we, the members of the H. S. O., hereby extend our thanks to Phil. A. Kaufer for his interest in our behalf manifested in the Xmas story contest and for the generous reward bestowed upon the deserving society.

All Good Lookers.

No wonder the Crookston Journal man was led to pen the above heading and the following lines, when he saw that crowd of Red Lake Falls teachers waiting for the train at Crookston last Saturday morning:

The Great Northern depot was filled this morning with a bevy of handsome school teachers who were returning to their work at various points along the branch lines after spending the holiday vacation at their homes, or in visiting friends when their homes were too remote to warrant the journey. They were a smiling bright faced lot of people and the educational interests of the upper country are safe under their management.

Padden-Schreiter.

Mr. J. J. Padden and Miss Lorena Schreiter were married Tuesday morning in early mass at St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. Ansgar officiating. Miss Olga Kretschmar was bridesmaid and Mr. Norman Schreiter groomsman. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. Padden, the groom, is bookkeeper for the Red Lake Falls Milling Company, a position he has held with credit for several years. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Schreiter, who hold a very high position in the estimation of our citizens, having been prominent residents of the city for 20 years.

The Gazette's best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Padden.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

"Everything shall be as you wish, Molly—everything, believe me."

He then, by way of illustrating this assurance, proposed a thing which he himself wished.

"We must be married immediately, Molly, because I am called away by affairs of importance to Gloucestershire. I ought to leave this place not later than Saturday." The day was Thursday.

"Saturday? We must be married on Saturday?"

"Sooner than Saturday. Tomorrow. That will give us time enough to make what little preparations may be necessary."

"Tomorrow! But we cannot be married so soon."

"Everything is prepared. I have the license. We can be married tomorrow."

"Oh!" It was all she could say.

"There is another thing. Your guardian would like to make a public ceremony of the wedding. He would hang the town with flags and ring the bells and summon the band of the marrowbones and cleavers, while all the world looked on."

"Yes. He is so proud of the marriage that he would like to celebrate it."

"And you, Molly?"

"I should like to be married with no one to look on and no one to know anything about it until it was over."

"Why, then, Molly—then we are agreed. I was in great fear that you would not think with me. My dear, if there is one thing which I abhor it is the public ceremony and the private feasting and merriment with which a wedding is accompanied. We do not want the town to be all agog. We do not want to set all tongues wagging, nor do we want to be a show with a grand triumphal march and a feast to last three days afterward."

"Can we be private, then?"

"Certainly. I can arrange everything. Now, Molly, my plan is this: We will be married privately in St. Nicholas' church at 6 in the morning, before the company are out of their beds. No one will see us. After the marriage you will come back here. I will return with you, and we will then inform the captain and your mother of the joyful news. Believe me, when they come to think it over they will rejoice to be spared the trouble and the preparation for a wedding feast."

"MOLLY SINCE WE ARE TO BE MARRIED WE MUST BE MARRIED AT ONCE."

"But I cannot deceive the captain."

"There is no deception. He has agreed to the match; he knows that you have agreed. There is one consideration, Molly, which makes a private marriage necessary. I could not consent to a public wedding or to a wedding feast, because my rank forbids. It would be impossible for me to invite any person of my own position to such a feast, and it would be impossible for me to sit down with those persons—worthy, no doubt and honest—whom the captain would certainly wish to invite."

This was certainly reasonable and certainly true. Rank must be respected, and a noble earl cannot sit down to feast with merchants, skippers, mates, parsons and the like.

"Then it shall be as your lordship pleases."

"Be at the church at 6," he said. "I will provide everything and see that everything is ready for you. Do not be recognized as you pass along the street. You can wear a domino with the pink silk cloak which you wore the other night at the assembly. Then I shall recognize you. No one else, Molly, need be considered. Are you sure that you understand?"

"Yes," she sighed; "I understand."

"Then, Molly"— He bowed low, and without offering to kiss her this wonderful lover left his mistress and was carried home in his chair.

CHAPTER XII.

THE "SOCIETY" AGAIN.

THE "society" continued to meet, but irregularly, during this period of excitement when everybody was busy making money out of the company or joining in the amusements or looking on. The coffee house attracted some of the members, the tavern others, the gardens or the long room others. It must be confessed that the irregularities of attendance and the absences and the many new topics of discourse caused the evenings to be much more animated than of old, when there would be long periods of silence, broken only by some reference to the arrival or departure of a ship, the decease of a townsman or the change in the weather.

This evening the meeting consisted at first of the vicar and the master of the school only.

"We are the faithful remnant," said the vicar, taking his chair. "The mayor, no doubt, is at the coffee house, the aldermen at the tavern and the doctor in the long room. The captain, I take it, is at the elbow of his noble friend."

The master of the school hung up his hat and took his usual place. Then he put his hand into his pocket.

"I have this day received"—

At the same moment the vicar put his hand into his pocket and began in the same words:

"I have this day received"—

Both stopped. "I interrupt you, Mr. Pentecrosse," said the vicar.

"Nay, sir; after you."

"Let us not stand on ceremony, Mr. Pentecrosse. What have you received?"

"I have received a letter from London."

"Mine is from Cambridge. You were about to speak of your letter?"

"It concerns Sam Semple, once my pupil, now secretary to the Lord Fylingdale, who has his quarters overhead."

"What does your correspondent tell you about Sam? That he is the equal of Mr. Pope and the superior of Mr. Addison, or that his verses are echoes, sound without sense, trash and pretense? Cost me a guinea."

"The letter is a reply I addressed to my cousin, Zackary Pentecrosse, a bookseller in Little Britain. I asked him to tell me if he could learn something of the present position and reputation of Sam Semple, who gives himself, I understand, great airs at the coffee house as a wit of the first standing and an authority in matters of taste. With your permission, I will proceed to read aloud the portion which concerns our poet. Here is the passage:

"'You ask me to tell you what I know of the poet Sam Semple. I do not know, it is true, all the wits and poets, but I know some, and they know all those who frequent Dolly's and the Chapter House and the other coffee houses frequented by the poets. None of them at first knew or had heard of the name. At last one was found who had seen a volume bearing this name and published by subscription. "Sir," he said, "'tis the veriest trash. A schoolboy should be turned for writing such bad verses." "But," I asked him, "he is said to be received and welcomed by the wits." "They must be," he replied, "the wits of Wapping or the poets of Turnagain lane. The man is not known anywhere." So with this I had to be contented for a time. Then I came across one who knew this would be poet. "I was once myself," he said, "at my last guinea when I met Mr. Samuel Semple. He was in rags, and he was well nigh starving. I gave him a sixpenny dinner in a cellar, where I myself was dining at the time. He told me that he had spent the money subscribed for his book instead of paying the printer; that he was dunned and threatened for the debt; that if he was arrested he must go to the Fleet or to one of the Comptors; that he must then go to the common side and would then starve—in a word, that he was on his last legs. These things he told me with tears, for indeed cold and hunger—he had no lodging—had brought him low. After he had eaten his dinner and borrowed a shilling he went away, and I saw him no more for six months, when I met him in Covent Garden. He was now dressed in broadcloth, fat and in good ease. At first he refused to recognize his former companion in misery, but I persisted. He then told me that he had been so fortunate as to be of service to my Lord Fylingdale, into whose household he had entered. He therefore defied his creditors and stood at bed and board at the house of his noble patron. Now, sir, it is very well known that any service rendered to this nobleman must be of a base and dishonorable nature. Such is the character of this most profligate of lords. A professed rake and a most notorious gambler, he is no longer admitted into the society of those of his own rank. He frequents halls where the play is high, but the players are doubtful. He is said to entertain decoys, one of whom is an old ruined gamester named Sir Harry Malyns and another a half pay captain, a bully and a sharper, who calls himself a colonel. He is to be seen at the house of the Lady Anastasia, the most notorious woman in London, who every night keeps the bank at hazard for the profit of this noble lord and his confederates. It is in the service of such a man that Mr. Semple has found a refuge. What he fulfills in the way of duty I know not." I give you, cousin, the words of my informant. I have since inquired of others, and I find confirmation everywhere of the notorious character of Lord Fylingdale and his companions. Nor can I understand what services a poet can render to a man of such a reputation, living such a life.'

"Do you follow, sir," my father asked, laying down the letter, "or shall I read it again?"

"Nay, the words are plain. But, Mr. Pentecrosse, they are serious words. They concern very deeply a certain lady whom we love. Lord Fylingdale has been with us for a month. He bears a character, here at least, of the highest kind. It is reported, I know not with what truth, that he is actually to marry the captain's ward, Molly. There is, however, no doubt that Molly's fortune has grown so large as to make her a match for any one, however highly placed."

"I fear that it is true."

"Then, what foundation has this gentleman for so scandalous a report?"

"Indeed, I do not know. My cousin, the bookseller, expressly says that he has no knowledge of Sam Semple."

"Mr. Pentecrosse, I am uneasy. I hear that the gentlemen of the company are circulating ugly rumors about one Colonel Lanyon, who has been playing high and has won large sums—larger than any of the company can afford to lose. They have resolved to demand and await explanations. There are whispers also which concern Lord Fylingdale as well. These things make one disgusted. Then I also have received a letter. It is in reply to one of my own addressed to an old friend at Cambridge. My questions referred to the great scholar and eminent divine who takes Greek for Hebrew.

"'You ask me if I know anything about one Benjamin Purden, clerk in holy orders. There can hardly be two persons of that name, both in holy orders. The man whom I know by repute is a person of somewhat slight stature, his head bigger than befits his height; he hath a loud and hectoring voice; he assumes, to suit his own purposes, the possession of learning and piety. Of theological learning he has none, so far as I know. Of Greek art, combined with modern manners, he is said to be a master. Inglese Italianato Diavolo Incarnato is the proverb. He was formerly tutor on the grand tour to the young Lord Fylingdale, whom he led into the ways of corruption and profligacy which have made that nobleman notorious. He is also the reputed author of certain ribald verses that pass from hand to hand among the baser sort of our university scholars. I have made inquiries about him with these results. It is said that where Lord Fylingdale is found this worthy ecclesiastic is not far off. There was last year a scandal at Bath in which his name was mentioned freely. There was also—but this is enough for one letter.'"

The vicar read parts of this letter twice over so as to lend the words greater force. "The man says publicly that he was tutor to Lord Fylingdale on the grand tour. I have myself heard him. On one occasion he proclaimed with loud voice the private virtues of his patron. Sir, I very much fear that we have discovered a nest of villains. Pray God we be not too late."

"SIR," I GASPED, "THIS IS MORE OPPORTUNE THAN YOU SUSPECT."

"Amen," said my father. "But what can we do?"

"Aye, what can we do? To denounce Lord Fylingdale on this evidence would be impossible. To allow this marriage to take place without warning the captain would be a most wicked thing."

"Let me send Jack," said my father. "The boy is only a simple sailor, but he loves the girl. He will now be aboard his ship."

It is not far from the Crown to the quay, nor from the quay to any of the ships in port. I was sitting in the cabin, melancholy enough, about 8 o'clock or so, just before the sunset gun was fired from the redoubt, when I heard a shout, "Lady of Lynn, ahoy!" You may be sure that I obeyed the summons with alacrity.

No one else had yet arrived at the Crown. The vicar laid both letters before me. Then, as when one strikes a spark in the tinder and the match ignites, flaming up, and the darkness vanishes, so did the scheme of villainy unfold itself; not all at once—one does not at one glance comprehend a conspiracy so vile—but part, I say, I did understand.

"Sir," I gasped, "this is more opportune than you suspect. Tomorrow morning at 6 at St. Nicholas' church they are to be married secretly. Oh, a gambler, a rake, one who has wasted his patrimony, to marry Molly—our Molly! Sir, you will interfere. You will do something. It is the villain, Sam; he was always a liar, a cur, a villain!"

"Steady, boy, steady," said my father. "It helps not to call names."

"It is partly revenge. He dared to make love to Molly three years ago. The captain cudgeled him handsomely, and I was there to see. It is revenge in part. He hath brought down this noble lord to marry an heiress, knowing the misery he is preparing for her. Oh, Sam, if I had been there!"

"Steady, boy," said my father again. "Who spread abroad the many virtues of this noble villain? Sam Semple—in his service, a most base and dishonorable service. Mr. Purden, the man who writes ribald verses"— I

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he becomes more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a travelling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

BOARD OF CONTROL DECISION.

The decision of the state supreme court has gone against the state normal school managers, and the board of control has financial management of the state educational institutions under the law creating it. The decision is based on the character of the normal schools, which are held to be, in a broad sense, charitable institutions. Simmered down, the theory by which the court was governed seems to be reasonable. Tuition in the normal schools is practically free for the benefit of the students of the state who cannot afford to pay for their education at institutions where the payment of tuitions is part of the entrance requirement. An inmate of the state hospital is held to be an object of civic charity no more than those accepting the gift of free instruction provided by the state.

There can be no doubt that the board of control, which will eliminate local considerations in dealing with the state institutions, will have the power to affect much good and many needed reforms. It will remain to be seen whether it will have the ability or the disposition.

MINNESOTA RECOGNIZED.

Minnesota's strong delegation in congress has produced in the committee appointments further proof of its high standing and its ability to get into the game where it can best subserve the interests of the people of the state. The recognition accorded our delegation comes as a testimonial to the good judgment displayed by Minnesotans in retaining year after year their faithful representatives. Minnesota's delegation has secured places as follows:

Tawney—Ways and means, insular affairs, special committee on arts and expositions, chairman.

McCleary—Appropriations, labor, library, chairman.

Heatwole—Foreign affairs, select committee on census, select committee on examination and distribution of documents, printing, chairman.

Fletcher—Interstate and foreign commerce, levees and improvements of the Mississippi river

Stevens—Merchant marine and fisheries, military affairs.

Eddy—Public lands, mines and mining, chairman.

NEW YEARS AT WASHINGTON.

New Years day in the national capital witnessed the usual brilliant function at which all the members of the diplomatic corps, the officers of the army and navy, the judiciary and the government officials pay their respects to the President of the United States. Promptly at eleven o'clock the members of the diplomatic corps arrived at the White House in all the gorgeousness of their full dress uniforms and filed through the East room where the President was receiving. So important is this ceremony in the estimation of the foreign representatives that M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, made an especial effort to arrive in Washington in time for it. After the reception at the White House the diplomats repaired to the residence of Secretary of State Hay and were entertained by Secretary and Mrs. Hay at a sumptuous breakfast.

A RED LAKE FALLS POET.

It transpires that Red Lake Falls harbors a real poetical genius in the person of Dr. Jules Gendron. Under an assumed name he has for years contributed to some of the leading literary publications of Canada. His identity has come out, and no less a personage than Flechette, the seer of French Canadian literati, has recognized his ability. Dr. Gendron's writings are in French. Le Canadien, the French paper of St. Paul says:

> It is with great pleasure we see the poems of our Canadian poet of the West, Dr. J. Gendron of Red Lake Fulls, Minn., which we publish in our paper, attract the applause of the people of Canada. Several of his poems have been reproduced over there.
> The other day, the director of the Foyer, literary department of the "Journal" Montreal, after having published a little poem in prose bearing us title "First Look on Death" wrote: This little poem is ravishing. It brought tears to our eyes, in the office, and moved tender hearts which beg of me to thank the author for them, which I do for them and myself. These poems are real masterpieces, sublime poetry.
> When Dr. J. Gendron was a student in Minneapolis Flechette (the Canadian Laureate) wrote, in answer to a piece Dr. Gendron had sent to him: "Your verses are very beautiful. I congratulate you."
> Even when Dr. Gendron was a student in Canada, Chapman, as a remembrance of some help Dr. Gendron lent him, made him a gift of his "Feuilles d'erable," (Maple leaves) which appeared a little later on, and wrote on the first page of the book: "To Mr. Jules Gendron, with homage of the author."
> Dr. J. Gendron is a poet and a writer of real merit and does us honor in contributing by his writings to the success of our paper. We wish that there were more men like him to help the work of the French press in the States of the West.

The Gazette has made arrangements for publishing the official proceedings of the board of county commissioners for the year 1902, together with the delinquent tax list, the financial statement and all other notices required to be published by the county board. This feature, together with the fact that The Gazette always has published more legal notices than any other county paper, makes the paper valuable not only for those interested in county affairs in a general way, but particularly so for land men and realestate dealers, bankers, lawyers and those dealing in securities.

Red Lake county people are interested in a new railroad which will probably run through this garden of eden. It is known as the "Continental Railway Company" and will build south from the Lake of the Woods to Kansas City, 700 miles, and afterwards extend to some point on the Gulf of Mexico. This road will be of immense benefit to Minnesota as it will induce the settlement and improving of lands now vacant, thus increasing the products of the country, as well as swelling the tax list. Sawmills will be established along the line and lumber will be sent south at all times of the year. It will connect the Canadian railway system with the Southern railways and will be a potent factor in the development of Northern Minnesota.

The Minnesota Historical Society, is doing a great work. Files of all newspapers published in Minnesota as a territory and state since 1849 have been gathered and preserved by this Society. Its number of bound newspaper volumes at this date is 4,959; and its number of Minnesota newspapers, daily, weekly and monthly, regularly received, is 432, these being donated by the editors and publishers, who appreciate the importance of having them placed on file where they will be preserved for all coming time. This department of the library is a priceless treasury of material for future historians, showing the development of Minnesota, of its counties, and of its separate townships, from their beginning to the present date.

Mrs. Sangster says that we hear a good deal in this age, as if it were a novelty, about the futility of being anxious, and people having established "don't worry clubs." MOTHER'S CORNER

BY MOTHER KATHERINE

A Staff contributor, who will write of every day affairs—the little units that go to make up the sum total of existence. Mother Katherine writes exclusively for THE GAZETTE. OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Your aunty promised to tell you how dear little Eddie happens to be in the hospital, so here is the story.

One beautiful Sunday afternoon Eddie was playing about, when his mother told him to call his older brother home.

Now Eddie was a nice, good little chap and on this particular Sunday he was glad to go for a walk for he had on a brand new suit. In going for his brother, Eddie passed a railroad turning table. Eddie's mother had told him never to go near such a dangerous place. There were several big boys who coaxed Eddie to come and take a ride. At first our little fellow said no, but later he jumped on only to have one leg broken just below the knee, and the other very badly hurt. Poor Eddie, and all because he forgot to obey his good mamma.

He has been in the hospital for many weeks, and is sweet and patient. He is so delighted to see the girls and all other children when they go there to sing and play. I hope that some day I may tell you that Eddie is well again, but it will be many weary weeks for the little boy of six years to wait.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

The following items have made several wise housekeepers yet more wise; perhaps they may continue doing so:

When baking pies, if a little cone is make of paper and inserted into the centre of the top crust, not a drop of juice is wasted.

The papers covering crackers in pound packages are found to be very useful to turn cake out upon. Many other ways in which the paper can be used present themselves. Covering jelly with paper instead of tin will prevent mould, which annoys many.

FRESH AIR.

In this season, when double windows, storm doors, and big fires are the rule, we are apt to neglect the supply of fresh air requisite in a home. Those housed up ones, dear to every loving heart, are literally starved for God's pure air, and think what a supply to draw from. Blankets are used by many in place of sheets, and warm gowns are now to be had in all the department stores. The frequent washing of these articles is a foregone conclusion. Even so. It will make your sleeping room less dusty and your bed much more sanitary if both robes and blankets are often shaken in the open air. Should this plan cause my reader to fear a cold let her leave articles in question in a warm room a short time before returning them to the sleeping room. Happy she who airs her bedding, her clothing, her rugs, her sofa pillows. Good cheer is given many an invalid when she is greeted by a sense of freshness as she walks into the living room for the day. Ah that blessed air! Many a time have I felt utterly weary when the coming in contact with a freshly aired pillow would act as an elixir. If the bed of the adult is frequently aired and the bedding washed, more often still should baby's bed be made sweet from counterpane to mattress. You perhaps say that volumes have been written on this subject. Yes, and I say the pity of it, for with volumes upon volumes to teach these, so many people go on blindly, as if fresh air were poison indeed.

Odors from the kitchen often greet one at the reception hall. How I wish every door connecting kitchen and living room would close automatically! You may air, and air, and air yet again; if you allow steam from soap-suds, sour-krout, cabbage, fish, or onions to penetrate the whole house, your airing is in vain. The steam can be gotten rid of through the kitchen window. We have all been greeted with the odor of one or perhaps all of those strong articles as we found ourselves in public halls or in crowded churches.

Then the cellars!

A few decayed leaves, a bad apple, or a few bad potatoes—mere trifles, you say. Mere trifles? Not a bit of it. It takes only a few minutes to look over the vegetables, thus avoiding that dreadful danger of poisoning. Many a case of typhoid fever can be traced directly to just such trifles, to say nothing of the repulsive odor that assails one's nostrils upon entering a house filled with foul air.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Common Cows For Beef Cattle.

It is not only possible to start with common cows as a foundation and build up a good herd of beef cattle, but it is one of the best moves that the average farmer can make, provided, of course, he has the common cows to begin with, says a Kansas correspondent of American Cultivator. There is no earthly reason why he should sell such a herd and proceed to put a lot of money to well bred cows. I should advocate building up the herd every time from common stock, so that one would gain experience while making improvements. Place the average man without experience in possession of a fine herd, and he will in most cases abuse it through ignorance. If a man cannot breed carefully enough to build up a herd, he cannot handle fine bred animals well enough to keep them up to their standard. If there is going to be any failure, it is better to have it out with the common herd, so the loss will be less keen.

COOK SUICIDED.

Chas J. Cook of Warren, found dead near the railroad track east of Mandan, N. D., undoubtedly committed suicide. An investigation proved that the young man, who was 19 years old, had purchased a revolver at a local hardware store. He had a great ambition to become wealthy but had been unsuccessful in all his ventures—Crookston Journal.

SMALL POX IN THE WOODS.

Officer Wm. Blakeslee, of Bemidji, came up last Saturday in response to a telegram and took a small pox patient, Andrew Johnson, to the county pest house. Mr. Blakeslee informs us that there are a large number of patients at the pest house, most of the cases coming from the Red Lake country, and that several of the logging camps will be quarantined. Mr. Johnson, the patient taken to the county pest house from here, arrived to town last Wednesday from Red Lake, where he had been working for the Thief River Falls Logging Company, and he was immediately put to the local pest house here, and the county authorities notified.—Tenstrike Tribune.

SCHAEFER'S ESTIMATE OF HILL.

Your Uncle Jim Hill has done a deal of explaining about the railroad merger, but he has been mighty careful not to follow the example of the parrot that talked too much. He virtually sets up the claim that he has to do the Great Northwest what it is. So the inference is that the people are indebted to him and that his further schemes to place them under obligations to him should not be interfered with. Of course, the consolidation of the N. P. and Great Northern is for the benefit of the people—and Hill is simply trying to do the right thing regardless of the consequences to himself. It is decidedly kind of him, but somehow his generosity is not appreciated. The fate of the millionaire trust philanthropist is hard, indeed.—Nobles Co. Democrat.

BLACKDUCK'S RAILROAD.

W. H. Gemmell, general manager and A. D. Ball, superintendent of the Minnesota and International Ry. Co., made their first visit to our city last Friday on a tour of inspection. The party arrived shortly before noon on their private car, and in company with M. D. Stoner the "father of Blackduck" who happened to be in the city, and a number of prominent citizens, repaired to National hotel for dinner. In reply to an inquiry as to how soon the road would be opened to the public Mr. Gemmell said, "We have an agent and operator on the way and they ought to be here in a day or two. Freight will then be shipped in immediately and you may say that not later than Jan. 10 daily passenger service will begin." Blackduck will then have direct communication with the twin cities as well as the head of the lakes. There will be one departure and one arrival of passenger trains daily.—Blackduck American.

The price of gas at Duluth took another drop this year, and it is now $1.15 per thousand feet, instead of $1.25. Last year the price was cut from $1.50 to $1.25, and the use of gas increased. The city owns the gas works.

The St. Paul Trust company, capital $200,000, has voted to go into liquidation. The chief cause is a recent supreme court decision making the trust company liable for the judgment of $100,000 in the estate of C. D. Strong, which has been in charge of the company for the past nine or ten years. The creditors will probably be paid in full, but the stockholders will receive an uncertain amount.

At Duluth Judge Cant has decided for the settlers in the case of Frederick Weyerhaeuser and others and the Northern Pacific railroad against settlers on the famous second indemnity strip, which has been in litigation in the land department and the courts for some time. The court holds that the settlers were entitled to the land, and not the plaintiffs, who acquired title through the Northern Pacific.

The Ann River Land company has sold to the Ann River Farm company 42,000 acres of land in the counties of Mille Lacs, Kanabec and Aitkin. The consideration was $210,000. Among those interested in the purchase and who are connected with the Ann River Farm company are Scara McHenry of Denison, Ia., Robert W. Webb and C. E. Cook of Minneapolis, and M. E. Rutherford of Mora, M. S. Rutherford of Princeton and H. E. Barnum of Milaca. The lands will be put on the market at once.

The state supreme court, by a majority opinion, decided that the newly organized state board of control has full charge of all matters pertaining to normal schools, the normal school board having in formal court proceedings questioned the right of the board of control to dictate in normal school matters. This closes a notable contest of interest to the whole Northwest. Justice Lovely wrote the majority opinion and it is concurred in by Justices Lewis and Brown. Chief Justice Start and Justice Collins dissent.

At Duluth T. Pressnell, United States court commissioner, sold the Duluth Transfer railroad under the order of Judge Lochren. The property was bid in by John G. Williams, a Duluth attorney. He represents the reorganization committee of the bondholders. The holders of the bonds are largely Baltimore people. The road is a terminal property in the city of Duluth and was built some years ago, and is valuable, although it has had a checkered career, having been in the hands of a receiver during a portion of its existence.

The authorities of Litchfield are now firmly convinced that a double murder caused the death of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gorton, an aged couple who were burned to death in their home on a farm a few miles north of there last week. There were but three persons in the house, the two old people and the hired man, Frank Addy, 18 years old. He escaped with but a shirt, and that was on fire, and he was compelled to take it off. Addy says that about 10 o'clock in the evening Gorton had a fit and that he and Mrs Gorton got up to bring him out of it. They detected the presence of smoke and found the kitchen and woodshed partly in flames, in three places. Addy ran through the flames and Mrs Gorton also came out, but went back into the burning house.

FIGHT THE MERGER

ATTORNEY GENERAL DOUGLAS IN WASHINGTON TO BEGIN PROPOSED SUIT.

Duluth Transfer Railway Sold at Auction—Supreme Court Decides in Favor of the Board of Control—Aged Woman Missionary Dies at White Earth—News of Interest From All Parts of the State.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—Attorney General Douglas has left for Washington, where he will petition the supreme court of the United States for an order to file his suit against the Northern Securities company.

His suit can be filed in the supreme court only after an order issued on a petition. General Douglas expects that the court will take immediate action upon his petition, and by so doing one of the questions of jurisdiction will be definitely settled.

If the court grants his petition to file suit he will commence an action for an order restraining the Northern Securities company from operating in Minnesota and for the dissolution of the company. If the supreme court assumes jurisdiction probably no other action will be commenced until that is settled. If the supreme court refuses to acknowledge jurisdiction actions may be instituted at once in the supreme courts of Minnesota and New Jersey. General Douglas holds, though, that the United States supreme court has jurisdiction and that even if the consolidation has become an established fact prior to the institution of his suit the court may issue a peremptory order dissolving the company or ordering a resale of the stocks.

DULUTH TRANSFER SOLD.

Road Is Bid In by Attorney for Reorganization Committee.

Duluth, Jan. 4.—T. Pressnell, United States court commissioner, has sold the Duluth Transfer railway under the order of Judge Lochren.

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

Normal Schools Matters Under Charge of State Board of Control.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—The supreme court by a majority opinion decided that the newly organized state board of control has full charge of all matters pertaining to normal schools, the normal school board having in formal court proceedings questioned the right of the board of control to dictate in normal school matters. This closes a notable contest of interest to the whole Northwest.

Justice Lovely wrote the majority opinion and it is concurred in by Justices Lewis and Brown. Chief Justice Start and Justice Collins dissent.

Duluth Overtaxed.

Duluth, Jan. 5.—County Auditor Halden has discovered that St. Louis county has the worst of it on state taxes. Cannot Take Her Mother Away.

Mantorville, Minn., Jan. 5.—Judge Jones has ruled that Mrs Percy, of Galesburg, Ills., cannot take her mother, Mrs. Prosper Robinson, from Mantorville to her home. He holds that it is her desire to reside here and her late husband acted upon that premise when he constructed a house here. The Perceys tried to spirit her out of the state and were stopped by habeas corpus proceedings. Mrs. Robinson is now residing with a daughter, Mrs. Raymond, who had been caring for her.

Newspaper Man Arrested.

WHOLESALE FORGERY.

Feared Mesaba Range Towns Have Been Flooded With Bogus Checks.

Duluth, Dec. 31.—Some of the cleverest and most extensive check forging in this section for years was discovered when the First National bank of this city received dozens of worthless checks from a bank at Hibbing, on the Mesaba range. The amounts ranged from $29 to $76 and had been deposited with the Hibbing institution as cash by various business men there who had honored them. They were First National bank counter checks and most of them purported to be signed by the Northern Lumber company, a Weyerhauser corporation. They were recognized as forgeries at once and the Hibbing bank notified. It is feared that the range towns are flooded with them and telegraphic inquiries have been sent out.

BURNED IN THEIR HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gorton Cremated Near Litchfield, Minn.

Litchfield, Minn., Jan. 3.—Milton Gorton and his wife were burned to death at their home, four miles northeast of here. The fire was noticed about 9:30 by Mrs. Gorton and a young man who was attending Mr. Gorton, who was at the time sick in bed. The young man tried to extinguish the flames, but his clothing caught fire and he had to pull off his clothes and run half a mile to the home of Mr. Brandt for aid. It was impossible for him to re-enter the house. By the time help arrived the place was completely enveloped in flames. Only a few charred bones were found. Foul play is suspected, but the rumors seem to be without foundation.

Mr. James goes there to make arrangements for the extensive colonization of the island by farmers from Iowa, Illinois and other Western states. A large body of land has been acquired in the island by a company incorporated under the laws of Iowa. Thirteen families from the town of Spirit Lake, Ia., already are settled there and are well pleased with the country. Their letters home have been so satisfactory as to promise a large emigration there and Mr. James goes to the islands to put the lands in condition to receive the emigrants.

LOOKS LIKE A SCRAP.

War Between Cane and Beet Sugar Interests Expected Soon.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 4.—What is thought to be the opening of war between the cane sugar trust and the beet sugar interests has come to light here. Nearly $100,000 worth of cane sugar in excess of the amount required to supply the demand here and in the vicinity has been shipped to this city, consigned to a representative of the cane sugar trust. Similar shipments will be made to Minneapolis, St. Paul and other Northwestern distributing points in the near future. Miss Annie Hetu, the village school teacher, returned from Red Lake Falls Saturday to resume her work in the school

O. Tardis and wife, of Crookston, came to visit friends and tarried long enough to attend the Hinee and Asselin wedding Monday.

Chas. Champeau, who is employed in N. Swansons's store, fell from the stairway of the building Saturday and sustained serious injuries.

Onesine Asselin and Parmella Hiace were married last Monday. The wedding was such as to make it a good starting point for the young couple

Two or three young men of Terrebonne had the good idea last Sunday, of chaperoning here a few of those charming young ladies who form the centre of attraction for many.

Blown to Atoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and sick headache. Only 25 at W. A. Schreiter.

BRAY.

Peter Lindbloom and A. E. Anderson made a business trip to St. Hilaire Monday.

Messrs. Chas. Eklund and Chas. Lindquist left last Saturday for a trip to the woods.

A. P. Hogstrom left last week for a couple weeks' visit with friends and relatives in Carver county.

O. P. Johnson, accompanied by John Forsberg, made a business trip to Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Chas. Carlson and family, of Thief River Falls, former residents of Bray, visited at Mr. Lindblom's New Year's.

August Johnson, of Thief River Falls, passed through Bray Sunday evening for a visit with friends in Polk Centre.

A Prominent Woman Speaks.

Prof. Roxa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

EMARDVILLE.

S. J. Melcer was a visitor to Red Lake Falls last week.

Norwegian services were conducted by Rev. Ole Kolstoe on New Year's day.

Fine weather indeed, but more snow is wanted. As it is hauling is difficult with either sleigh or wagon.

The annual meeting of the members of Immanuels Scb. Lutheran Congregation was held on Friday, the 3rd last.

The remains of John Hansoa were interred in the Norwegian graveyard Dec. 31, Rev. Ole Kolstoe officiating.

The temperence lecture by Gustaf Eide which had been set for Jan. 9 has been postponed until further notice.

A Unique Experiment.

A Manitoba man is about to try a unique experiment in raising apples. The Nor'-West Farmer states it this way: He has made a trial of apples as seedlings, and says: "One year ago last spring I planted some apple seeds, gave them no attention and have now nine young trees three feet in height, and three-quarters inch in diameter at the base, which I intend grafting and setting out next spring, each one close to a box elder tree, the inner limbs of which I shall keep pruned to make room for apple limbs. The outer ones I shall encourage to density that they may be a safeguard against both wind and frost. I feel positive that this idea regarding apple seed planting will be followed with most satisfactory results, placing us above the meagre supply our circumstances permit us as a general rule to purchase."

Weekly Market Letter.

Jan. 7—The wheat market the past week is best described as a nervous one with a tendency to high r prices. Wheat closed Saturday night an even cent higher for the week. Trading was on a liberal scale, but there was nothing important in the way of news and prices changes were small. Professional traders at Chicago and the Northwest were slow to believe that an advance in price was due, but the country bought well and Kansas City and St. Louis were decidedly bullish. As has been the case heretofore during this crop year the bulls have much the best of it. Faith in the value of cereals is very strong and it takes much courage to sell them.

Exports for last week were 4.800,000 bu. For the year 1901 they are the heaviest on record, 256 million bu., which is 83 million bu. more than last year. Primary receipts last week were 3½ million bu., the visible supply increased 281,000 bu. and the world's shipments increased 1¼ million bu.

Corn last week again displayed independent strength on revival of cash demand. Receipts were 30,20,000 bu., and exports 270000 bu. The visible supply increased 450,000 bu. The expected increase in receipts fails to materialize, but this is partly attributed to shortage.

Oats was strong on fair cash demand and good buying of the futures and though they are now high are very likely to go higher. The visible supply for last week decreased 261 000 bu.

Flax advanced 6 cents per bu. last week and 3¼ cents more so far this week. There is strong demand for it at Minneapolis. Country elevators are said to be buying in their May hedges at Duluth and shipping the flax to Minneapolis.

The close to-day was as follows: Chicago—wheat May 83¼ S, July 82¼ S, corn May 67¼, July 66¼ S, oats May 46¼ B, July 40¼; Minneapolis—wheat May 20¼, July 80¼, May flax 168¼.

LITERARY WORK.

A special meeting of the H. S. O. was called Tuesday. It was decided that Red Lake Falls would debate with Crookston, Fertile having withdrawn. The debate will be held in the Opera House Friday evening, January 17. The subject for debate is: "Resolved That Capital Punishment Should be Abolished." Red Lake Falls will take the affirmative. The debaters will be Rachel Taylor, Lealand Healy and Eleanor Findelsen.

The debate Saturday evening, Dec. 21 was won by the Athenians which was a great victory, the score being 28.67 and 28.12.

The debate for Jan. 17, "Resolved that manufacturing and trading pursuits are more desirable than agricultural," was declared off on account of the joint debate.

The five dollar gold piece offered by Mr. Phil. A. Kaufer was awarded to the Spartans Tuesday, their story having been declared the better by the judges.

The Spartan program will be given Friday, Jan. 10.

A committee of fifteen to decorate the opera house was appointed by the president. A committee on yells was also appointed.

INCIDENTS.

As a result of vacation some of the girls forgot the rules and consequently had to be called to order two or three times during the day.

The boys were requested by Miss Lusby to take their seats and keep them, but the girls were not, as they are privileged characters.

During roll call one of the boys evidently thought he was his brother although he does not resemble him.

Some of the boys are unable to escape the teacher's notice in making their way to the library, laboratory, etc., on account of the squeaking of their shoes.

In some mysterious way the floor of the high school building has become waxed, and sadder still is the fact that the girls are the only ones obliged to keep this fact in mind.

Tuesday Katy Berthiaume taught the physiology class.

PERSONALS.

After a three weeks' absence Bertha LaFreniere returned to school.

SCHOOL IN GENERAL

The new year sees many new scholars in the high school.

There are now 61 pupils in roll.

Each pupil was requested to make a list of the books they wish to have in the library which is to be enlarged.

Did you notice the shortage in Spartan notes since the reporters were changed?

All members that do not call their numbers will be counted as absent.

The Athenians advise the Spartans to spend as small a sum as possible for a trophy and use the rest to pay their large debt.

Fraternal Doings.

SOCIAL ITEMS, GOOD OF THE ORDER AND RECESS GOSSIP OF INTEREST.

The joint installation of officers by the Woodmen and Royal Neighbors was held last night at Woodmen hall. Deputy Head Consul W. T. Spillane conducted the ceremony for the Woodmen, while Past Grand Oracle Mrs. Wm. Findeisen eloquently officiated for the Royal Neighbors. After the ceremony, a dance was given, and 'tis said that never in the history of the lodges was a better time had—even the old men kicked up their heels very high in exhuberance of spirits. A lunch was served that did credit to the committee on arrangements, Mesdames Aug. Reichel Jr., Frank E Hunt, H. Hennemuth, W. T. Spillane and J. A. H. Lemieux. With these ladies to push the affair it could not have been otherwise than a success.

Among the interesting lodge events of the week was the installation of officers of Morning Star, Rebekahs. Miss Mabel Owen, Dist. Deputy President, acted as installing officer. Miss Owen's ability as an elocutionist and natural grace of manners added great dignity and impressiveness to the ceremony. The ingoing officers served a dainty lunch as a finale to an evening of pleasure and goodfellowship.

A reception and ball was given Tuesday night by the Foresters in honor of Bro. Duhuque and bride. Mrs. Duhuque was taken ill with diphtheria and the non-attendance of the guests of honor materally marred the complete success of the affair. However, there was a large attendance and the participants succeeded in thoroughly enjoying themselves.

To-night occurs the joint installation of the C. O. F. and Women's C. O. F. The largest attendance ever recorded for the two societies is looked for.

The Mother's Favorite.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the mother's favorite. It is pleasant and safe for children to take and always cures. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the best medicine made for these diseases. There is not the least danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

It Girdles the Globe.

The fame of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, as the best in the world, extends round the earth. It's the one perfect healer of cuts, corns, burns, bruises, boils, sores, scalds, ulcers, felons, aches, pains and all skin eruptions. Only infallible Pile cure. 25c a box at W. A. Schreiter.

Beat Out of an Increase of His Pension.

A Mexican war veteran and prominent editor writes: "Seeing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension for on every renewal a dose of it restores me." It is unequalled as a quick cure for diarrhoea and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

A Job For the Tailor.

It was a little Fifth ward boy who was walking on the street with his mother when his attention was attracted by a dog who wagged a stub that showed he once possessed a tail. "Isn't it too bad," said the mother, "that the doggie has lost his tail?" "Yes," replied the little fellow sadly, and then, brightening up, he asked. "But, mamma, why don't they take him to the tailor's shop?"—Elmira Advertiser.

Bright Tom.

Tom—Which animal would you choose for throwing a little light on the subject?

Dick—What subject?

Tom—Any subject.

Dick—I can't think.

Tom—The tapir.—Judy.

Later.

Having used the word "kick" in its slang sense, little Clarence was taken to task by his mother.

"You shouldn't say that word."

"That's true, mamma, I shouldn't. It's more up to date to say 'knock.'"

Didn't Want to Rust.

"Mamma," said a little five-year-old, as his mother was giving him his bath, "be sure and wipe me dry so I won't rust."—Christian Advocate.

Naughty Raindrops.

Some little silver raindrops,
Living in a cloud,
Were growing very selfish
And, oh, so very proud!

They did not like the world below
And said they wouldn't try
To live in any other place
Than a cloud up in the sky.

They hid the moon, they hid the stars,
They hid the sunshine, too,
And said they'd sail in their little boat
All through the skies of blue.

But the south wind laughed, "Ha, ha!"
And shook that soft gray cloud,
And down to earth in a frightened shower
Tumbled the raindrops proud.

NORTHWEST DRAINAGE

Comprehensive Review of its Progress---Topography of Valley Being Altered.

Red Lake and Polk Counties Are on the Progressive List.

By George A. Ralph, State Drainage Engineer. Read at Convention of Grain Growers and Stock Raisers, held in Fargo, N.D., Jan. 7, 8, 9, 10, 1902. Now published for the first time.

The practice of reclaiming wet and overflooded lands and rendering them productive is no new scheme. The drainage of flat lands lying above the surface of their natural outflow, has been practiced at different times in remote periods, by all civilized peoples that have inhabited the great valleys of Europe, Asia and Africa.

The lands subject to freshets and overflow along many of the rivers in England were protected by embankments as long ago as the time of the Romans, and millions of acres were reclaimed both by ditching and diking during the reign of Charles the First.

Large areas of the bogs of Ireland have been reclaimed from year to year from time immemorial up to the present and today land that used to consist of worthless bogs is producing the greatest returns of any in that wonderfully productive Island.

The prosperous little state of Holland which is indeed one of the greatest wealth producing areas in all Europe has been reclaimed from the allevial desposits of the Rhine, Meuse and Scheldt Rivers.

The great Pinsk marsh in Russia lying on the Watershed of the upper Dneiper and embracing an area of over seven thousand square miles has been in process of reclamation since the year 1870 and hundreds of miles of ditches have been cut through this marsh annually since that time; until at present nearly all of this vast area comprising as it does 4,480,000 acres is inhabited and yields rich returns for the labor performed.

"The Everglades" of Florida which up to a short time ago have been known only as impenetrable morasses are now undergoing a wonderful change. The legislature of the state of Florida has enacted a law whereby grants of swamp and overflowed lands are given in payment for ditching contracts, as a result many miles of great drainage canals are annually cut through these bogs, thus reclaiming and rendering fruitful what appeared to be destined to be a perpetual waste.

The great expenditures required to dike the lower Mississippi and place it in its present condition has yielded comparatively as rich returns as others of the great reclamation projects, enumerated.

The state of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois have and at the present time are reclaiming much of their swamp lands, and lands that today command the highest price per acre in these states are lands that have been reclaimed by the construction of ditches and dikes.

The people of Minnesota and the Dakotas are awakening to the fact that it pays to drain the low lands. The legislature of Minnesota has appropriated $207,000 for drainage purposes. The Great Northern Ry. Co., has added to this sum $25,000, all of which has or is being expended in the construction of drainage ditches. The legislature of Minnesota has enacted a law known as the "County Drain Law" under which land holders may petition the County Commissioners to construct a desired ditch and have the cost of the same assessed against the lands benefited. Such assessments being paid in ten annual installments. Under this act upwards of $350,000 has already been expended in the Red River Valley Counties in Minnesota. North Dakota has on her statute books a drainage law similar in many respects to the Minnesota law. A strong sentiment antagonistic to the construction of ditches is found, however, in some localities. This feeling I am informed is largely due to a conviction on the part of those paying for the work. That the cost of doing this work in North Dakota under this law is expensive and burdensome, and much greater in proportion to the work performed than is paid for the same kind of work in Minnesota. As a result of this sentiment expensive litigation is being carried on, which, for the time being is, in a large measure, delaying this kind of work. I am convinced that the people of North Dakota are as much in favor of ditches, and have as high an appreciation of their value as the people of Minnesota and when those who pay the bills are satisfied that they are getting good value for every dollar expended and that the work is being done under competent supervision and in the most economic manner, drainage work will be carried on in this state with renewed vigor.

The Province of Manitoba, is constructing ditches under the assessment plan. The Law under which they work being almost identical with the Minnesota law in its provisions, under this law many thousand acres of rich Red River Valley lands lying to the South and East of Winnipeg have been reclaimed and rendered highly productive.

Compared with the cost of the work, the benefits resulting from the drainage work executed up to the present time in the Red River Valley have far exceeded the orginal estimates of the most sanguine drainage promoter. The cost of the drainage ditches constructed by the Drainage Commission in Minnesota has averaged about $1200 per mile, while the cost of the ditches constructed by the several Counties has been slightly in excess of this figure. The assessments for benefits where constructed by the Counties have ranged from a few cents to $1.25 per acre. It will therefore readily be seen that the partial loss of one crop would more than pay for the entire cost of a ditch. As an evidence of the confidence in the beneficial results of proper drainage I would refer you to the work being done by Polk and Red Lake Counties, Minnesota. Up to the present time, nearly $200,000 has been expended for ditches by these Counties and fully as much more will be expended next season.

By the close of next season these Counties will have little if any low lands that have not been rendered fit for cultivation.

Indeed the topography of the entire Red River Valley is rapidly undergoing a change, a map showing the topographical features thirty years ago would look quite different from one showing the present topography.

The Indian appelation "Land of Water" is no longer appropriate for northern Minnesota. The swamp lands are not alone being wiped from the face of nature; but many of the shallow lakes have disappeared.

Land that a few years ago was valuable only as a habitat for water fowl was sold last summer for $17.00 per acre.

It would be useless waste of words to use further argument in attempting to convince any one that it pays to construct drainage ditches in the Red River Valley.

The question is often asked whether the construction of ditches is practicable in all cases in such a level country as the Red River Valley, speaking from a knowledge gained from many years experience in making, topographical and other surveys covering the entire Red River Valley, I can say that I know of but few places where ditches are not practicable and these are places comprising comparatively small areas of minor importance. It has been demonstrated that the construction of drainage ditches is practicable and highly profitable in almost all cases and that they can be constructed in the Red River Valley at comparatively low cost owing to the fact that the surface slopes are so nearly uniform, and that it is seldom found necessary to cut ridges. When once constructed the cost of keeping the ditches in working order has been but a trifling expense; in fact most of the ditches have not had one dollar expended on them for repairs, and are doing good service, the action of the water has not only kept the ditch free from weeds and aquatic vegetation but in many cases has broadened and deepened the channels to double their original size.

The slope or grade of Red River Valley ditches run all the way from two to ten feet to the mile The subsoil being a stiff white clay does not cave in, but wears smooth and offers the minimum of resistance to the flow of water: consequently the ditches have a greater carrying capacity than ditches of the same slope and sectional area in other localities.

The cost per cubic yard for excavating ditches in the Red River Valley under the management of the state drainage commission has averaged about ten cents. The cost of those constructed by the several counties has been a trifle higher which is principally due to the fact that the county ditch usually means a graded road along the bank of the ditch, which is constructed of the earth excavated from the ditch.

I am convinced that among the great problems that will come up for solution by the Legislatures of the western states effecting their industrial condition, none will demand a more careful consideration than the questions of drainage and irrigation, and the Legislator that successfully champions the cause of drainage and irrigation assists in building a monument which will commemorate his services, that time cannot destroy. In this connection it is gratifying to note that President Rosevelt in his message to Congress cordially indorses the plan for providing irrigation for the arid regions of the country wherever such irrigation can be successfully maintained.

If any precedent were needed to demonstrate anew the value of Drainage and Irrigation carried out on a large scale it can be found in what is being done by the British Government in Egypt.

Lord Cromer in a recent report states that over $35,000 000 has been expended by the Government of Egypt since the year 1885, in drainage and irrigation; as a result of this expenditure over $25,000,000 is added to the income of the people annually in the increase of the cotton crop alone. Basing conclusions upon the results thus obtained by improved irrigation in Lower Egypt, the British Government are confident that even larger proportional benefits can be obtained along the upper Nile. It is therefore proposed to dam one of the lakes which form the source of the Nile thereby creating a huge reservoir which can be drawn on when needed.

Sir Wm. Garstin who has charge of the Engineering problems involved in the scheme, states in a recent report that a series of dams and canals can be so constructed that the completed work will not only provide irrigation for millions of arid acres but will also drain extensive swamps and finally improve the navigation of the upper Nile as well. The accomplishment of three such important and lasting benefits by a single scheme of improvement will rank among the best things that the white man has yet performed in the great task of improving the condition of the inferior races.

The whole country west of the Mississippi river yields less than 20 per cent of soil products that nature has made it capable of producing.

In this vast area a great field is open for the drainage and irrigation engineer and looking into the future in the light that has been achieved during the past fifty years, who can foretell the extent of the vast area of what is now arid and overflowed lands that will in fifty years hence be yielding rich returns as the fruit of labor. The work of reclaiming these waste lands has just begun. The beneficial results derived so far warrant the conclusion that drainage and irrigation work will in the future be prosecuted with much vigor and that owing to improved machinery and facilities for doing this kind of work, the cost of doing the same will be greatly reduced.

RED LAKE FALLS STANDS OPPOSED TO THE LOCK AND DAM PROPOSITION.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS MEETING, AND SCHEME IS DENOUNCED.

The Board of Trade held a meeting Saturday night to discuss the project of a lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake. Our people were thoroughly aroused to the need of a public expression of the sentiment here, inasmuch as a concerted effort, is being made, apparently backed by the lumber interests, to establish a sentiment with the hope of inducing a congressional appropriation. Red Lake Falls is united in opposition to the project. We want no lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake, and at the meeting of the Board of Trade Saturday night the fact was brought out that our water powers would be seriously jeopardized Thoroughly aroused to the seriousness of the situation, those present at the meeting with great earnestness and remarkable unanimity, expressed their opposition to the scheme.

A committee, composed as follows, was appointed to draw up a resolution: S. M. Sivertson, Ed L. Healy, C. F. Johnson, John E. King, Phil A. Kaufer. The resolution as reported and unanimously adopted, is as follows:

Whereas, the immense area of Red Lake, officially given as 400 square miles, forms one of the largest natural reservoirs in the United States, dispensing through its outlet, the Red Lake river, its waters in continuous, gradual and even flow; and

Whereas, for the past twenty years, as has been found by actual experience of mill men and others along its course, the Red Lake river, above its conjunction with the Clearwater river, has not varied more than three feet between its highest and lowest stages; and

Whereas, the spring freshets and floods which have done damage in the Red River Valley are in no wise augmented or affected by the flow from Red Lake, coming rather, as can be proved, from the tributaries of the Red river below Red Lake Falls; and

Whereas, the building of a lock and dam as proposed would make it possible to hold back the waters of Red Lake, and present opportunities for the manipulation of the water flow, that will endanger the water powers in the Red Lake river; and

Whereas, Red Lake Falls' water power, second only to that of Minneapolis,—our main resource to-day and our chief hope for the future, would be damaged if not utterly ruined by the construction of the proposed lock and dam; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Red Lake Falls Board of Trade, that the proposed project of a lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake be opposed and that a copy of this resolution be sent to our senators and representative in congress.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself. but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Where Goes the Woolen Mill?

A delegation of Fosstonites spent the night in the city while enroute to Thief River Falls on business relative to a new location for the Fosston Woolen mills. The committee consisted of Lewis Lohn, L. W. Larson and S. S. Stadsvold. When seen by a Times representative this morning, the committee was positive in asserting that the mills would be moved in the near future. At the present time the choice of location is between the Upper and the Lower Falls.

The increasing business of the mills makes it necessary for the company to double its plant before the rush of the next season. As the source of power at the present would make it necessary for them to expend $10,000 for power. The water supply and sewerage are both inadequate at Fosston and a location in a larger place is imperative.

Either the Upper or the Lower Falls will save them about $4,000 a year on power and the one will be selected which will give them the best accomodations in other directions. Crookston has not been considered by the company for the simple reason that the power here would be as expensive as at Fosston.

Notice.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned until January, 27 '02, at 6 o'clock P. M. for 100 cords of poplar and 50 cords of oak. To be delivered on the school grounds of Ind. School Dist. 15, as directed by the Trustees of said district.

IN JOINT DEBATE.

RED LAKE FALLS AND CROOKSTON HIGH SCHOOL ORATORS WILL MEET.

EVENT TRANSPIRES TOMORROW NIGHT AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Supt. Whiteley has been more than busy this week arranging for the joint debate to be held at the Opera house in this city tomorrow night between Red Lake Falls and the Crookston High School. The subject will be "Should capital punishment be abolished?"

The Red Lake Falls debators are Misses Rachel Taylor and Pauline Neiland and Leland Healy; while Crookston brings up a trio flushed with victory by defeat of the Ada team on the same subject—Clifford Dufour, Willard Selleck and Maurice Rosentahl.

Supt. J. Nelson Kelly, of the Grand Forks schools; and Atty. Thos. Keefe, of Fertile have consented to act as judges together with a third member to be selected by them from the faculty of the University of North Dakota.

Crookston was given the privilege of naming the chairman, and C. F. Newberry, principal of the Crookston schools has been chosen.

The Red Lake Falls pupils will occupy one side of the gallery, and the Crookston school the other. There will be such a display of class yells, songs and colors as was never before seen here, and the enthusiasm will run high.

The Crookstonites has chartered a special train which will come in over the N. P. via Fertile, arriving at 8:00 and returning at 11:30.

That this will be an epoch making event in the history of our schools goes without saying, and every citizen of Red Lake Falls having the welfare of the schools at heart should put his shoulder to the wheel to push the good work along. Educative and stimulating to a degree, these debates rouse enthusiasm of pupils for school in general, and every encouragement should be extended our superintendent and the teachers and pupils in the educational crusade, of which this is an important incident.

Admission will be 25c; and 35c for reserved seats. Only a few will be reserved so call early at Schreiter's Drug Store where seats are now on sale.

Anent the debate, the Crookston Journal says: Much interest prevails in the coming debate, and everything is being done to put the team in condition to do credit to the school. A large quantity of bunting has been ordered and will be used in decorating the train and hall. The young people evidently are bent on having a good time and will have music all the way Whether they will close the debate with a major or minor tune will depend entirely on the judges' decision. In any event, they are perfectly willing to leave that matter with the judges, and gracefully accept defeat if the Red Lake Falls team is considered the better.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Improvements to be made on the Baltimore and Ohio system during 1902 will cost fully $50,000,000. A large portion of this sum is to be expended on the lines west of Pittsburg to Chicago.

Owing to the absence of necessary witnesses, Hill, Harriman and others, the inquiry of the interstate commerce commission into the workings of the "community of interest" plan of the railroads has been postponed until Jan. 24 and the commission itself adjourned to meet in Chicago at that date.

The SPORTING WORLD

The coach is always one of the most important factors in developing a winning football team. In the college world large salaries are paid to players of fame for their services during the whole or part of the pigskin chasing season.

"Beef" Heffelfinger, now one of the coaches of the Yale eleven, is one of the best judges of gridiron play in the country. He is looked up to as a sort of demigod by this year's New Haven team, and whatever "Beef" says "goes." Heffelfinger was a guard at Yale in 1889-90-91. During those three years he was the best man in the position in the college arena. Heffelfinger held a position on the All America teams of 1889-90-91 and was associated with such famous players as Gill, Stagg, McClung, Hartwell and Hinkey of Yale, Channing, Ames, Riggs, Homans and King of Princeton, Lee, Hallowell, Newell and Lake of Harvard and Adams of the University of Pennsylvania.

"BEEF" HEFFELFINGER, THE FAMOUS YALE COACH.

Heffelfinger gives his attention especially to the line men. He is peculiarly fitted to instruct the center men in the possibilities of their positions, and to his efforts are due the extremely creditable performances of the Eli guards and center during the season now closing.

Auto Racing Records.

The breaking of automobile records is getting to be an almost daily occurrence, and the minimum time in which a high geared, many horsepower machine can circle a mile track seems to be still unfixed. Within a month the record has been lowered several times, and a machine now that cannot whirl the distance in at least a minute and a quarter need not hope to win in the race. The contests for lower record have been intensified by the international element entering into the sport by the hot rivalry between French and American makers. Until recently it was necessary in order to get a really fast machine to go to the foreign makers.

The two chauffeurs who have been most prominent in the automobile world lately are A. C. Bostwick, the young millionaire sportsman, who is one of the vice presidents of the Automobile Club of America, and Henri Fournier, the well known French chauffeur, who won the long distance race from Paris to Berlin this year and who has won many competitions on this side of the water. Fournier was the mentor of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., in the sport, and Vanderbilt has been his companion in some of his most sensational rides.

World's Turf Bodies Agree.

That an agreement between the leading horse racing bodies of England and the United States of America will be made, whereby the authorities of the turf will have control of all racing affairs has been settled beyond the shadow of a doubt by the recent statement made by August Belmont, one of the organizers of the Jockey Club of America and for several terms president of that organization.

Mr. Belmont is now in England and has had important conferences with the authorities of the English turf. He also visited France, where he talked with the leading men in French racing affairs and, as was stated afterward by French turf writers, induced the French Jockey club to agree to an arrangement whereby the relations between the French and the American turf shall be reciprocal.

Mr. Belmont saw the English turf authorities on the same matter and from all reports obtained an agreement on the subject. When seen, he declined to talk further than to state that he had discussed turf affairs with the officials of both the English and the French turf and that they had displayed the most friendly spirit toward the Jockey Club of the United States.

The state tax commission has filed its report, together with the bill for a new tax code, with the governor. The report contains 75 typewritten pages and the bill 225 pages. CALLS LEGISLATURE

Principal Business Will Be to Consider the Tax Commission's Report—St. Paul Leads the Country in Percentage of Gain in Building Operations for 1901—Younger Brothers Petition for a Complete Pardon—State News in General.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—Governor Van Sant has issued a formal call for a special session of the legislature on Feb. 4 to consider the report of the tax commission and to revise the law governing taxation. The call is in accordance with an agreement whereby the legislature cut short its session of last winter.

The early date of the extra session is necessary because the proposed tax law changes the time of beginning an assessment. The assessor, under the bill submitted by the tax commission, will begin work April 1 instead of May 1, as formerly. The governor deemed it expedient to call the session as soon as possible, in order that the proposed tax laws may take effect before the next assessment is made.

The message of the governor, it is said, will deal alone with the work of the tax commission and the necessity for doing away with the present system, but it will sum up the railroad situation in the state and the railroad merger. The governor suggests that his call includes only the matters that are most important to the state, yet it will be possible for the legislature to pass upon a great many things.

NEW TAX CODE.

Report of the Minnesota Tax Commission Made Public.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—The state tax commission has filed its report, together with the bill for a new tax code, with the governor. The report contains 75 type-written pages and the bill 225 pages.

Among the most important of the new features is the creation of a permanent state tax commission of three members; a county supervisor of assessment, and changes in the state and county boards of equalization, which are to be known hereafter as boards of review.

The state tax commission is to be composed of three members, who are to receive $3,000 per year each, to have extensive powers with regard to the examination of records and persons and the increase or abatement of assessments.

The commissioners also have supervision over the county supervisors and at least one of them is to visit each county in the state during the year to investigate the workings of the tax law. Township assessors are retained. Over them is the county supervisor of assessments, who in counties of over 75,000 inhabitants is to devote all his time to the office. The supervisor is not only to instruct the assessors, but to investigate books and records in the several towns and cities himself.

WANT TO LEAVE MINNESOTA.

Younger Brothers Ask for a Complete Pardon.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—Formal application has been made to the board of pardons to commute the sentences of James and Cole Younger to 35 years imprisonment. Both are under life sentence, but are under parole under a special act passed by the last legislature.

If the present request is granted the action of the pardon board will be equivalent to a pardon, as both men have already served, good time allowance included, more than 35 years.

In the petition the fact is set out that the men desire to return to Missouri to their friends and relatives. Their friends say they are willing to provide the necessary capital to establish them in business.

James Younger also alleges in his application that he is suffering from six bullet wounds which threaten to produce paralysis and he desires to go to a warmer climate.

PETITION FOR NATIONAL PARK.

One Is Presented in the House and in the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 9.—A petition urging the establishment of a national park in Minnesota was presented in the house and senate by the state delegation. It was signed by many associations in Minnesota, including the National Park Forest Reserve association, State Medical society, State Homeopathic institute, State Federation of Women's Clubs, academy of medicine, state board of health, Hennepin County Medical society and the American Public Health association. The petition is quite elaborate and points out the benefits to the people of the state that would follow the reservation of Indian pine lands.

ST. PAUL LEADS COUNTRY.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The Construction News prints the building statistics of the 13 leading cities in the United States for 1901, showing that the sum of $241,379,754 was expended for 48,725 new structures, as against $138,885,820 in 1900 for 37,054 structures; an increase of 11,661 permits and $102,493,440 in their cost, or a general increase of 74 per cent. The most notable increase was that of St. Paul. The figures in that city show that its percentage of gain was 259.

Minnesota Man Dead in Korea.

Buffalo, Minn., Jan. 8.—C. E. Oaklay has received a cablegram from Korea stating that his son-in-law, Rev. George Leck, formerly of Owatonna, had died from smallpox. Mr. Leck and Miss Frances Oakley were married a year ago last July and left for Korea where they began work as missionaries.

A FRIGHTFUL MURDER.

Daniel Corbo Nearly Severs David Myllymaki's Head With a Knife.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—A frightful murder was committed in this city when Daniel Corho slashed David Myllymaki with a pocketknife several times, almost cutting his head off.

Both men were Finns and lumberjacks, and the murderer had lately arrived from near Two Harbors and the murdered man had come in from Foodwood. They were sitting at a table in a saloon when Corho suddenly drew his knife, pressed Myllymaki's head down on the table and slashed at the back of it, making a deep gash. The injured man got up and started to run, but Corho followed, caught him half way up the saloon, pushed him against the bar and cut into his neck, severing the windpipe and cutting to the backbone.

Myllymaki, mortally wounded, staggered a few steps and fell dead. Corho then jumped on his body again and again and made several horrible gashes in his back, cutting to the bone. Then an officer entered and Corho gave himself up without a struggle.

There was no quarrel and the men were not drunk. Corho acted peculiarly, but the officer could not determine whether he was insane or attempting to simulate insanity.

ATTRACTS DULUTH MEN.

Rich Discovery of Gold in Western Ontario.

Duluth, Jan. 12.—Attention is being attracted in this section toward a new gold mining district in Canada. Rich discoveries have been reported from the Sturgeon Lake district, north of the Canadian Pacific railway. Peter King, an adventurous explorer, discovered the location two years ago, and he brought back samples that were practically 25 per cent gold. There has been a rush to the place, and many prospectors report that it is the richest yet discovered in Western Ontario. The many local indications of gold have been evidence that somewhere in Canada near the boundaries there are rich gold mines. A. E. Shores of Ashland, some Saginaw lumbermen, and others are interested in the new gold field. It is reported that besides quartz there are placer deposits in the Sturgeon Lake country.

TO UTILIZE LIGNITE COAL.

A Minnesota Expert Learning German Methods.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—Investigations concluded in Germany by Lucius Storr of St. Paul, Minn., geologist, may result in the opening of vast coal fields on the Hill system. Mr. Storr has made an exhaustive inquiry into the use of lignite or brown coal briquettes, which are burned on the German railways.

He believes that enormous quantities of lignite buried in the Northwest of the United States and hitherto considered unfit for firing purposes may, through the German process, be utilized with great advantage, and may even ultimately obviate the necessity of transporting Eastern bituminous coal to the West.

Mr. Storr has also studied the system of retort coke ovens, which gives Germany one great advantage in the manufacture of iron.

FELL TO HIS DEATH.

One Bridge Workman Killed and Two Others Are Injured.

West Superior, Wis., Jan. 13.—William Colton, a workman on the new bridge which the Eastern Minnesota is building over Stony brook, was killed during the afternoon by being thrown from the bridge to the ground below, a distance of 40 feet. He struck a stone pier and was at once killed.

With Colton on the bridge were two companions, Gilbert Ammerson and Victor Carlson. They escaped with severe injuries.

It is not known just how the accident happened. It is supposed that they were brushed from the bridge by a car of the construction train when it jumped the track. The two injured men are now at a local hospital.

YIELDED LARGE INCOME.

Shells and Pearls Taken From the Mississippi.

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 10.—It is estimated that during the year just closed not less than 6,800 tons of clam shells were taken from the Mississippi river between Dubuque and Red Wing, Minn., which were sold to button factories at this city, Muscatine and Eastern points for $81,000. The freight charges for transporting the shells amounted to $13,000. In addition to this, $170,000 was paid to pearl hunters for specimens, so that altogether the clam shell and clam pearl industry in the Northwest assumed the huge proportions of a $254,000 business in 1901.

BIG LUMBER DEAL.

Duluth Firm Buys Timber Worth Two Million Dollars.

Duluth, Jan. 9.—It is reported here that the Clark-Jackson Lumber company has purchased 300,000,000 feet of standing pine from the Weyerhaeuser-Sauntry interests situated in Douglas county, Wis., for a sum in excess of $2,000,000. An investigation of the report revealed that the deal is well progressed, but the details have not been closed up. The pine will afford supplies for the mill for about six years, night and day run.

Farmer Loses $1,020 in Cash.

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—Frank Moreth, a farmer from Bristol, Wis., lost $1,020 while on the way to St. Paul to pay off the mortgage on the farm. His mother gave him the cash before he started from home. He arrived in St. Paul at 3:15 in the afternoon and went to the land agents to pay off the mortgage and discovered that his money was gone.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

A SERIOUS PROPOSITION.

This proposition of building a lock and dam at the outlet of Red Lake is a serious proposition for Red Lake Falls. As will be seen by the resolution passed by the Red Lake Falls Board of Trade, our water powers are "our chief resource to-day and our main hope for the future." To endanger our water powers is to strike at the very root of our prosperity, so that the industries already established will be ruined, and the prospects of establishing others wiped out.

It is plain that the proposed lock and dam is not a necessity.

Perhaps the carrying out of the proposed plan would benefit the lumber industry to the extent of facilitating log driving. The benefits would all go into the pockets of the millionaire pine barons, and the river driver who had been making good wages on the drive would find it necessary to look elsewhere for employment. His services would no longer be required. Two or three men, with the assistance of the lock and dam, would do the work of fifty. It is clearly not in the interest of the laboring man.

The claim that the danger from spring floods would be obviated, is a delusion and a fraud. We know that the Red Lake river above its conjunction with the Clearwater river here is a very docile stream, never varying more than three feet between its highest and lowest stages. This includes the spring time when the loudly heralded "freshets" are supposed to be augmented and made dangerous by the waters flowing from Red Lake, through the Red Lake river. The proposed lock and dam would not make it possible to hold back the waters in the tributaries of the Red Lake river below Red Lake Falls from whence much of the damage comes. If dams are of so much utility, why is it that the dams on the Clearwater river above this point have not tended to prevent the Clearwater's frequent and desperate rampages?

Quite to the contrary, these Clearwater dams have resulted in all but ruining the water powers on the Clearwater river. The Terre Bonne mill, which is run by water power, has been compelled to shut down for months at a time when the lumber company was holding back the water, and a suit for damages has been instituted by the flour mill men against the lumbermen.

Red Lake Falls' water powers are the wonder of the Northwest, second only to those of Minneapolis, and as this section developes and this city becomes a manufacturing centre, we will more and more rely upon them for future prosperity. Therefore we are unalterably opposed to this lock and dam scheme, which is not a necessity, which is not called for by any equitable demands and which could serve only as a boon to the lumber interests in furnishing means to float logs past the towns nearest the source of supply with the expenditure of the minimun sum for labor.

To change the conditions as they exist today, means to inflict untold damange, and a blighting injustice against those who, accepting conditions as they found them, have put capital, labor and time int utilizing the natural advantages. No reason of equity or public policy or need, calls for the revolution that would be effected by the carrying out of the lock and dam scheme.

Ruin would follow in its wake, and the only ones to be benefited would be the pine barons who have already had too many favors.

Let justice be done.

There are but two conclusions to be arrived at in this connection: Whether the Chippewa Indian reservation shall be opened for settlement, thereby preserving for all time to the Indian his just and rightful patrimony, which is now being rapidly diminished, affording homes for thousands of settlers, the pine timber being permitted to be cut in an honest and equitable manner, giving employment to thousands of men in the winter; the northern part of the state of Minnesota being permitted to develop and prosper into thriving communities similar to Prainerd, Aitkin, Wadena, Bemidji and Grand Rapids, which are all similiar in their surroundings, this part of the state being given an opportunity to add its share toward the upbuilding of Minnesota; or whether the ideas of a set of visionary enthusiasts shall prevail, and northern Minnesota be closed from further development, settlement and progress, and be set aside for a park, for which it is not at all adapted, necessitating the general government investing vast amounts annually for the preservation of timber which must, sooner or later, be destroyed.

Judge Page Morris, congressman from this district, knowing and fully appreciating the wants and great needs of his constitutents, has introduced in Congress the so-called Morris bill for the relief of the situation, the help of the settler, and to do justice to the Indian, as the government has for years been pledged to do.

This bill ought to prevail; and with its passage this part of the great state of Minnesota will develop as no other section has in the past. (Signed)

Committee Appointed by Combined Business Organizations of Northern Minnesota.

Dr. H. M. Bracken makes the assertion that smallpox ought to be made a criminal offense and suggests that everybody of discretionary years found afflicted with the disease ought to be first cured and then given ninety days. Dr. Bracken was discussing smallpox before the sanitary conference at the state university. He took the position that thorough demonstration had been given of the preventive value of vaccination and that there really existed no excuse for the existence of smallpox in civilized countries nowadays.

Several of the smaller cities in this state nave an elephant on their hands in the shape of the new primary law. Nominations must be filed twenty days before the day of election and in many places no candidates can be found who are willing to put up $10 for the privilege of being a target for the other fellows during election and a large number of the citizens the remainder of the year—and pay for their fun.—Ada Index.

According to the Crookston Times, C. G. Comstock can have the Republican Congressional nomination if he wants it and will hustle for it. But Comstock can not be sure of all the votes in his supposed stamping ground. He is a good man, though, and the voter might go further and find worse.

The Minneapolis Journal says there is a deep laid plot to do up Gov. Van Sant for renomination, and that Heatwole and Dunn are into it. But you can't believe every thing you read in the Journal, even though it is on the right side of the merger proposition, and generally with the people.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Now is the time to replenish your supply of linen.

The stores as a rule are glorying in displays fitted to entice the most reluctant of shoppers. And the laces, ruffles and tucks on the pretty articles for my lady are cheap. Prospective brides could do no better than get a supply during January. The shirt waist is shown in white as well as in many colors. Many of the waists are bottoned in the back, have no fullness whatever in shoulder or neck. A fullness which reminds one of a pouch, so long and full is it graces (?) the front waist line. Sleeves are a trifle fuller but have the same neat band at the wrist which was worn last summer.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children:

How would you enjoy living in a country where there are no hills? Did you ever think about it? Now the Girlies and all the other children about here have no way of coasting, so when they were smaller they oiled the cellar door and the porch steps high with snow and were coasting to their hearts' delight when discovered. Of course that would not do, so they built a snow man and a fort. When you are enjoying a fine time coasting on one of your many beautiful hills do not forget to feel glad and thankful to God for letting you live in a hilly country. Many of our children have never seen a hill. Your auntie has amused more than one little visitor with stories about your lovely hills. Some of you long to live in a great city, I have no doubt, Now you are much happier, and will have more freedom where you are. Do not wish to leave your country. it is a fine place to live in.

A WORD TO THE DISCOURAGED AND OTHERS.

Now, indeed, after all evidence of holiday times has vanished, our presents are stored away, Christmas trees dismantled, and the much loved and admired college youths and maidens have returned to their respective seats of learning, are we prone to fall back and be discouraged.

Perhaps the man of business finds accounts short, perhaps the loving and generous housekeeper finds her allowance swallowed up with the merry making of the past two weeks. No doubt many that have spent the holidays at home have returned to their work and many a sinking or lonesome feeling comes creeping along unbidden.

To all I say, Cheer up! You man of business, look about you, how many items could you account for wherein you and your dear ones were favored.

You, generous housekeeper, look upward, not downward. You may be obliged to "manage" for awhile, but have sighs ever helped you out of a difficulty?

Then you, lonesome ones. Write letters. They are such a remedy, you will feel so bright after having said lots of nice loving things to those whom you have left behind.

Perhaps there is a neglected wife among you. Let her do as this one did. Among my holiday visitors was one old friend whom I had not seen for years, she having moved to a town far distant. I noticed the bright happy smile she wore, and when we were finally alone I said: "Are things better dear?" (She had always come to Mother when her heart was sore.) I wish you could have seen that radiant face. She said: "Yes, John and I are happy, but it took so long and I had prayed and prayed till I began to lose hope. John is so kind, so thoughtful; that all those weary years seem like a dream. I'm so glad that you gave me that perie to read. Now here are the words that helped this faithful one: "DO NOT DISPAIR IF YOUR HORRIZON BE CLOUDED. WATCH AND PRAY AND THE SUN IS SURE TO SHINE AGAIN." My friend readily gave me permission to write out her story. For she said: "If I had been cross to John those days instead of hoping, watching and praying, how sad it would have been."

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

Visitors to the capitol who admire the beautiful decorative work to be seen in the rotunda and in the corridors, especially in the senate end of the building, will find additional interest in the work of the artist when they learn the source of his inspiration for many of the female figures that appear in the designs. The aged artist Brumidi, whose brush did most of the most beautiful of the decorative work of the capitol, married in this city Miss Jennie German, a young lady well known for her beauty, which has been perpetuated in many of the paintings executed by her husband. Features a little too well rounded to be thoroughly classic, black hair, a fair complexion and blue eyes, together with a shapely form, were the characteristics of Mrs. Brumidi. She was the third wife of the celebrated Italian artist. She was greatly admired not only for her beauty of person, but for her qualities of mind, which made her a general favorite here. One of the figures in the ceiling of the rotunda is said to be an exact likeness of the artist's beautiful wife, while most of the figures he painted in the capitol portray some of her characteristics.

The President's New Team.

President Roosevelt, who has been scouring the country for a pair of high steppers suited to the needs of the executive mansion, has found what he wanted in Baltimore. They are Admiral and General, cherry bay geldings, five and six years old, sixteen hands high and weighing about 2,350 pounds. They are full brothers and were sired by Abdullah Belmont, by Lakeland Abdullah, 351, by Hambletonian, 10. Their dam was by Red Archie, Jr., by Red Archie. The geldings were bred and reared in Michigan. They make an extra high class pair, with fine heads and necks and a bold, resolute way of going. They are beautifully mannered, and it is safe to say that no handsomer pair will be seen in Washington. The sale was conducted through A. G. Hurly, foreman of the executive mansion stables. The horses were inspected by United States Veterinary Inspector Browe.

Reception For Coleridge-Taylor.

Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor, the young Anglo-African musical composer of London, has written to friends in Washington of his purpose to make a visit to this country during the winter, and plans are on foot by the colored people to entertain him. One of the purposes in view, it is said, is to form a large chorus of 200 or 300 voices, have the singers thoroughly drilled in the production of his masterpiece of choral music, "Hiawatha," and to give a public presentation under his direction. It is known among musicians that the colored people of Washington have among their number very many good singers and that they have already done considerable chorus work.

Acting upon the suggestion of Mr. Taylor's coming and the desire to honor him as one of their race, the leading colored musicians and citizens generally have formed a choral society and have named it in Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's honor.

Repairs to White House.

In his last monthly report to the war department Colonel Bingham, the engineer officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, showed that in order to provide accommodations for the servants in the White House it became necessary to utilize a portion of the attic which had never before been used for living purposes. Two new rooms were constructed in that part of the building, and to light and ventilate them it was found necessary to put dormer windows in the roof. For heating purposes gas stoves will be used, and gas pipes were run into the rooms on that account. The rooms were provided with electric lights and were furnished with beds and other necessary furniture.

President a Good Narrator.

The cabinet has a new rule of procedure. It used to be the law that when that illustrious body assembled at 11 o'clock on Tuesday and Friday mornings business should be taken up at once. But that is not the practice now. Instead of getting to work at once on the supposedly great questions of state the president takes from fifteen to twenty-five minutes to tell his advisers the experience he has had with the gentlemen who have been giving him "hot air" about offices and schemes they want him to recommend to congress.

The president is a good narrator, and therefore the first half hour is unusually interesting. He doesn't tell stories to illustrate a point he is making, as Lincoln did, but tells everything that has been happening that has impressed itself upon his mind. His sense of humor is good, and the humorous side of the pictures that pass before him is not overlooked.

High Priced Real Estate.

A lot at the corner of F and Tenth streets, which is in the heart of the best business center, has lately been sold for what is said to be the highest rate ever realized on land in this city—namely, $52 a square foot, equivalent to $2,265,120 an acre or to $10,400 a front foot for Main street lots running back 200 feet to Washington street. The big price was paid by a saloon keeper. Hardly any other business could stand such a rate.

Divorces in the District.

The District of Columbia is rapidly becoming the most popular place in the United States for mismated couples to seek separation. Scarcely a day passes that the courts of Washington are not asked to grant anywhere from three to six divorces, and in nine cases out of ten the applicants are accommodated. This is a rather sad commentary upon the morality of the nation's capital. But it is a fact, nevertheless.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

thought of the Lady Anastasia, but refrained. She at least had nothing to do with this marriage. So far, however, there was much explained.

"What shall we do?"

"We must prevent the marriage of tomorrow. The captain knows nothing of it. Lord Fylingdale persuaded Molly. He cannot marry her publicly, because he cannot join a wedding feast with people so much below him. Molly shall not keep that engagement if I have to lock the door and keep the key."

"Better than that, Jack," said the vicar. "Take these two letters. Show them to Molly and ask her to wait while the captain makes inquiries. If Lord Fylingdale is an honourable man, he will court inquiry. If not, then we are well rid of a noble knave."

I took the letters and ran across the empty market place. On my way I saw the captain. He was walking toward the Crown, with hanging head.

Let us first deal with the captain. He entered the room, hung up his hat on the usual peg and put his stick in its accustomed corner. Then he took his seat and looked round.

"I am glad," he said, "that there is none present except you two. My friends, I am heavy at heart."

"So are we," said the vicar. "But go on, captain."

"You have heard, perhaps, a rumor of what has been arranged?"

"There are rumors of many kinds. The place is full of rumors. It is rumored that a certain Colonel Lanyon is a sharper. It is also rumored that Sam Semple is a villain. It is further rumored that the Rev. Benjamin Purden is a disgrace to the cloth, and there is yet another rumor. What is your rumor, captain?"

"Lord Fylingdale proposes to marry Molly, and I have accepted, and she has accepted, but it was to be a profound secret."

"It is so profound a secret that the company at the gardens this evening are talking about nothing else."

The captain groaned. "I have received a letter," he said. "I do not believe it, but the contents are disquieting. There is no signature. Read it."

The vicar read it: "Captain Crowle—Sir, you are a very simple old man. You are so ignorant of London and of the fashionable world that you do not even know that Lord Fylingdale, to whom you are about to give your ward, is the most notorious gambler, rake and profligate in the whole of that quarter where the people of fashion and of quality carry on their profligate lives. In the interests of innocence and virtue make some inquiry into the truth of this statement before laying your lovely ward in the arms of the villain who has come to Lynn with no other object than to secure her fortune."

"It is an anonymous letter," said the vicar, "but there is something to be said in support of it. From what source did you derive your belief in the virtues of this young nobleman?"

"From Sam Semple."

"Who is in the service of his lordship. I know not what he does for him, but if he is turned out of that service he will infallibly be clapped into a debtor's prison."

"There is also that grave and reverend divine"—

"The man Purden. He is notorious for writing ribald verses and for leading a life that is a disgrace to his profession."

"There is also the Lady Anastasia."

"I know nothing about her ladyship except that she keeps the bank, as they call it, every evening and that the gaming table allures many to their destruction."

"My friends," said the captain, "what am I to do?"

"You must make inquiry. You must tell Lord Fylingdale that things have been brought to you; that you cannot believe them if, as is possible, you do not, but that you must make inquiries before trusting your ward to his protection. You are her guardian, captain."

"I am more than her guardian. I love her better than if she was my own child."

"We know you do, captain. Therefore write a letter to him. Tell him these things. Say that you must have time to make these inquiries. I will help you with the letter. And tell him as well that you must have time to draw up settlements. If he is honest, he will consent to this investigation into his private character. If he wants Molly and not her money bag, he will at once agree to the settlement of her fortune upon herself."

"I am an old fool, I suppose," said the captain. "I have believed everything and everybody. Yet I cannot—no, my friends, I cannot think that this man, so proud, so brave, who risked his life for Molly, is what this letter says."

"Other letters say the same thing. Now, captain, let us write."

The letter which was dictated by the vicar was duly written, signed and sealed. Then it was sent up stairs to his lordship's private room.

CHAPTER XIII.

A RESPITE.

I WAS as one who carries a respite for a man already in the cart and on his way to Tyburn, or I was as one who himself receives a respite on the way to Tyburn, for if the charges in those letters were true there could be no doubt as to the result of an inquiry. Nor could there be any doubt that Lord Fylingdale in such a case would refuse an inquiry. I ran, therefore, as if everything depended on my speed, and I arrived breathless.

Molly was alone, walking about the garden restlessly. The sun was now set, but the glow of the sky lingered, and her face was flushed in the western light. "Jack," she cried, "I thought we had parted this afternoon! What has happened? You have been running. What is it?"

"A good deal has happened, Molly. For one thing, you will not be married tomorrow morning."

"Why not? Is my lord ill?"

"Not that I know of, but you will not be married tomorrow morning."

"You talk in riddles, Jack."

"Would you like to put off the wedding, Molly?"

"Alas, if I could put it off altogether! I am downhearted over it, Jack. It weighs me down like lead. But there is no escape."

"I think I have in my pocket a means of escape—a respite at least—unless there are worse liars in the world than those we have at Lynn."

"Liars at Lynn, Jack? Who are they? Oh, Jack, what has happened?"

I sat down on a garden bench. "Molly," I said, "you hold the private character of Lord Fylingdale in the highest esteem, do you not?"

"There is no better man living. This makes me ashamed of being so loath to marry him."

"Well, but, Molly, consider. Who has bestowed this fine character upon his lordship?"

"Everybody who knows him—Sam Semple for one. He is never weary of singing the praises of his patron."

"He is a grateful soul and, on his own account, a pillar of religion. I will show you presently what an ornament he is to religion. Who else?"

"The Rev. Benjamin Purden, once his tutor. Surely he ought to know."

"Surely. Nobody ought to know better. I will show you presently how admirable a witness to character this reverend divine must be esteemed."

"There is Sir Harry Malyns, who assured us that his lordship is thought to be too virtuous for the world of fashion."

"He is himself, like the parson, a fine judge of character. Is that all?"

"No. The Lady Anastasia herself spoke to me of his nobility."

"She has also spoken to me—of other things. See here, Molly." I lugged out the two letters. "What I have here contain the characters of all these excellent persons—the latest scandals about them, their reputations and their practices."

"But, Jack, what scandals? What reputations?"

"You shall see, Molly. Oh, the allegations may be false, one and all. For what I know Sam may have the wings of an archangel, and Mr. Purden may be already overripe for the new Jerusalem. But you shall read."

I offered her the letters. "No," she said. "Read them yourself."

"The first, then, is from my father's first cousin, Zackary Pentecrosse, a bookseller in Little Britain, which is a part of London. He is, I believe, a respectable, God fearing man. You will observe that he does not vouch for the truth of his information."

I then read at length the letter which you have already heard.

"What do you think, Molly?"

"I don't know what to think. Is the world so wicked?"

"Here is another letter, concerning the Rev. Benjamin Purden. Observe that this is another and an independent witness." So I read the second letter, which you have also heard.

"What do you think of this worthy gentleman, Molly?"

"Oh, Jack, I am overwhelmed! Tell me more, what it means"—

"It means, my dear, that a ruined gamester thought to find an heiress who would know nothing of his tarnished reputation. She must be rich. All he wanted was her money. She must not have her money tied up; it must be all in his own hands, to do with it what he chose—that is to say, to dissipate and waste it in riot and raking and gambling"—

"Lord Fylingdale? Jack, think of his face, think of his manners. Are they such as you would expect in a rake?"

"There are perhaps different kinds of rakes. Tom Rising would spend the night drinking and bawling songs. Another kind would practice wickedness as eagerly, but with more politeness. What do I know of such men? Certain I am that Lord Fylingdale would not scour the streets and play the Mohawk, but that he has found other vices more pleasant and more, apparently, polite is quite possible."

"I don't understand, Jack. All the gentlemen like Mr. Rising drink and sing. Do all gentlemen who do not drink practice other vices?"

"Well, Molly, you have seen the vicar taste a glass of wine. He will roll it in the glass; he will hold it to the light, admiring the color; he will inhale the fragrance; he will drink it slowly, little by little, sipping the contents, and he will not take more than a single glass or two at the most. In the same time Tom Rising would have gulped down a whole bottle. One man wants to gratify many senses; the other seeks only to get drunk as quickly as he can. So, I take it, with the forbidden pleasures of the world. One man may cultivate his taste; the other may be satisfied with the coarse and plentiful debauchery. This is not, however, talk for honest folk like you and me."

"Go on with your story, Jack. Never mind the different ways of wickedness."

"Well, he heard of an heiress. She belonged to a town remote from fashion—a town of simple merchants and sailors. She was very rich; much richer than he at first believed"—

"Who told him about this heiress?"

"A creature called Sam Semple, whom the captain once cudgeled. Why, Molly, it was revenge. In return for the cudgeling he would place you and your fortune in the hands of a man who would bring misery upon you and ruin on your fortune. Heavens, how the thing works out! And it happened just in the nick of time that a spring was found in the town—a spring whose medicinal properties— Ha!" I jumped to my feet. "Molly, who found that spring? Sam Semple. Who wrote to the doctor about it? Sam Semple. Who spread abroad a report that the physicians of London were sending their patients to Lynn? Sam Semple. How many patients have come to us from London? None, save and except only the party of those who came secretly in his lordship's train to sing his praises and to work his wicked will. Why, Molly"— I burst into a laugh, for now I understood, as one sometimes does understand, suddenly and without proof other than the rapid conclusion, the full meaning of the whole. "Molly, I say, there has never been any medicinal spring here at all. The doctor's well is but common spring water. There are no cures. The whole business is a plan, a bite, an invention of Sam Semple!"

"Jack, have a care. How can that be when the doctor has a long list of cures?"

"I know it, but I do know that Sam Semple invented the spa in order to bring this invasion of sharpers and gamblers and heiress hunters. Oh, what a liar he is! What revenge! What cunning! What signal service has this servant of the devil rendered to his master!"

IT WAS MOLLY'S FIRST LETTER.

Truly I was carried out of myself by this discovery, which explained everything.

"So," I went on, "they came here all the way from London, their lying excuse that they were ordered here by their physicians, and we, poor, simple folk, fell into the snare. All the countryside fell into the snare, and we have been fooled into drinking common water and calling it what you please, and we have built gardens and engaged musicians and created a spa, and, oh, heavens, what a liar he is! What a liar! This comes, I suppose, of being a poet."

Then Molly laid her head upon my arm. "Jack," she said very seriously, "do you really believe this story? Only consider what it means to me." Molly was more concerned about Lord Fylingdale than about Sam Semple.

"I believe every word of it, Molly. I believe that they have all joined in the conspiracy, more or less; that they have all got promises and that tomorrow morning, if you do not refuse to meet this man in St. Nicholas' church, you will bring upon yourself nothing but misery and ruin."

"I have promised to meet him. I must at least send him a message, if only to say that I shall not come."

"I should like to send him nothing, but you are right. It is best to be courteous. Well you may send him a letter. I will myself take it to the Crown."

"But afterward, Jack? What shall we do afterward? If he is innocent, he will take offense. If not"—

"If you were engaged to marry a young merchant, Molly, or to a skipper and you heard rumors of bankruptcy, drink or evil courses, what would you do?"

"I would tell him that I had heard such and such about him, and I should ask for explanations."

"Then do exactly the same with Lord Fylingdale. He is accused of certain things. The captain must make inquiry. He is bound to inquire. Why, the vicar himself says that he would, if necessary, in order to ascertain the truth, travel all the way to London, there to learn the foundations, if any, for these charges, and afterward into Gloucestershire, where his country mansion stands, to learn on the spot what the tenants and the people of the country know of him."

"But suppose he refuses explanations. He is too proud to be called to account."

"Then send him packing. Lord or no lord, proud or humble, if he furnishes explanations, if these things

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

A Prominent Woman Speaks.

Prof. Roxe Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by W. A Schreiter.

TERREBONNE

Eugene Gaudet's only child was called Beyond last Friday. The child was about one year old and had been in very delicate health every since her birth.

The school reopened on Monday last and every body has such confidence in Prof. M. E. Todd that we will certainly have one of the most flourshing schools in the county.

Do you know that at the Terrebonne Upper Village are the Catholic church, the Catholic priest, Prof. M. E. Todd, Lawyer Tessier, one blacksmith shop, one harness shop, one shoe shop, a professor of music and two grocary stores?

About the weather: Last week people could see at the Terrebonne Upper Village an old gentleman sitting out doors and plucking the feathers off of a bird killed by his grandson. What is the use of going to Washington or California!

J. B. Archambault, the pioneer blacksmith of the Terrebonne Upper Village will next week take Mr. Guerin, formerly of the Terrebonne Lower Village, as a partner in his business. The two will constitute an extraordinary strong partnership; one being an expert at shoeing horses and the other at repairing farm machinery.

Frank L. Cyr, the 16 year old son of Joseph Cyr, when four years old met with an accident by coming in contact with a mowing machine which cut his left leg off about one inch above the ankle, leaving only a few pieces of skin and flesh to hold his foot. Doctor Lemieux, of Red Lake Falls, was then called and had to amputate the end of the already shattered leg and made quite a success of the operation. Young Frank made use of a wooden leg for twelve years, but lately a new amputation was declared inevitable and Doctors Lemieux and Tessier agreed to meet at Mr. Cyr's residence on the 8th of this month to perform the second amputation but during the previous night Dr. Tessier was called to the Meadows to take care of a case which the lady of the house emphatically declared could not be postponed and when this meadow case was over Dr. Tessier struck for the rendezvous with his colleague, Dr. Lemieux, but got there just in time to give his felicitations to the Red Lake Falls surgeon on the skill displayed: The surgical operation was done. Let it be said that young Frank was game before, during and after the painful test. The whole family is quite satisfied with the result as it could not be avoided. The boy is doing well under the care of Dr. Tesser.

Albert E. Stewart, who for the past week has been visiting with W. A. Swanson, left for the woods near Tenstrike last Friday. Mr. Stewart was more than pleased with this part of the country, and he says if the balance of the reservation opens, he will be the first one on it.

Mr. and Mrs T. G. Rome from Equality spent a couple of days visiting relatives here, during the later part of last week.

Gustave E Swenson, made a flying trip to Wyandotte last Tuesday for a load of furniture that they had stored there last fall on account of the bad roads.

Mrs. O. N. Skomdahl is not expected to live, and her death is expected at any hour now. She has had the sympathy and the help that kind hands could bestow upon her, from her many friends and relatives, during her severe illness.

Ljote Segarson the mail carrier from Grit to Lambert, moved into Mrs. Anna Skaali's house for the balance of the winter, last week. Mr Segerson says this shortens his route several miles which will greatly benefit his horses.

Ole O. Lee returned last Saturday from a visit to his old Aunt down near Bamidji, whom he had not seen for about eighteen years. Miss Anna Idal, a cousin of Mr. Lee accompanied him back, and has since been the guest of Mrs. Lee.

How little we think of others' griefs and sorrows, and our own general wellfare, as we go marching through life in the blossom of health and vigor. Little do we think of the clouds that may in after life, shade the untrodden path of our future. Oh! if we could but this moment behold the bitter tears that each must shed through life, would we not be more kind and thoughtful to our fellow men, and more true to ourselves. Would we not harbor deeper sympathy for the poor and unfortunate, the grief stricken, and the sorrowful that are always among us. Remember the Angel of Death is always at sombody's door, someboy's tears must always flow, somebodys heart is always sad. It may be your neighbor to-day and it may be yours tomorrow, So therefore do not any longer carry that selfish pride of yours, that has already caused you many a foe, but cast it aside, and conquer all hate and anger, for to exist we must depend upon one another in joy as well as sorraw, and so let us try and live through life, as friends and neighbors.

When you stop To think of it Then you'll stop To drink of it For just a tiny Wink of it Perpetuates The "think" for it.

LITERARY WORK.

The subject for next Friday night's debate between Crookston and Red Lake Falls as announced last week is: "Resolved that Capital Punishment should be Abolished." SCHOOL IN GENERAL

Hereafter nobody is allowed to use books in the library without direct permission from the teachers.

Monday we were enjoying tests.

New pupils coming in necessitates the changing of a few seats.

All pupils are requested to bring their report cards before Thursday.

Monday the teacher asked for the ages of the pupils to be written neatly on a slip of paper.

Two of the Spartan members failed to give their recitations on Friday's program and were asked for them Monday morning. As they failed to have them they were excused from their studies until they had prepared them.

The geometry class knows how to use elegant language when asking for a piece of pie.

It has been reported that a large crowd of Crookstonites are coming to "whoop er-up" Friday night on a special train.

Monday night we practiced the yells in order to hold our own Friday night.

PERSONALS.

We are glad to see Miss Wyman back at her work after her long illness.

Dora Marchand and Abner Fletcher were chosen by the Spartans and Florence Dautremont and Joseph Schmitz as members by the Athenians.

Owing to the fact that Eleanor Findelsen has been taken sick with small pox, Pauline Neiland will take her place in the coming debate with Crookston.

INCIDENTS.

Owing to the ignorance on the part of some of the meddlesome "kids" in the High School, the water covering the phosphorus was poured off. The phosphorus consequently caught fire. Luckily it was discovered at the noon hour and, the fire, which would have resulted in the burning of the building was put out by four of the boys. It is hope that those who are ignorant of the elements in the chemical laboratory will take a lesson and keep their hands off.

A number of hoarse voices are the result of Monday night's practice in yelling.

Confectionery stores are losing their trade in gum as the girls have discovered some parafine in the labratory and are chewing it all day.

The High School has been very quiat of late. We wonder why?

The Spartans, we noticed did not move or second the Athenian's program, after it had been read. We wish hereafter they would do so, as the Athenians always move the Spartan's program be accepted.

ONLY A SLIP OF PAPER

Twelve years ago the firm of Wade, Scale & Co. of Chicago received an order from John Fox for 400 bags of sugar, each bag to weigh 100 pounds. The order was filled, the bill paid, and the transaction closed.

One day recently a man with a sombrero on strolled into the office of Wade, Scales & Co. He took the blank slip of paper offered him and wrote this on it:

Mr. Nobody, from Nowhere. This is my name until after our conversation.

"Give that to the boss," he said, "and tell him I think he'll be glad to see me."

Curiosity more than anything else led the staid and dignified Mr. Wade to allow this unconventional visitor a chance to get into his private office. Once there, Mr. Nobody said, "If I'll show you where there is $1,500 due this firm and easily collectable, $1,500 that you know nothing about, what will the information be worth to me?"

"I don't see how it's possible," said Mr. Wade, "that even with our great business there could be that large amount due us and we know nothing about it."

"Tell me what it's worth to me if my information is correct—and I'll prove to you by your own books inside of five minutes that it is correct—and then we'll proceed to business."

"Information that this firm is so foolish as not to know that an easy, collectable $1,500 is due is worth $50 to any man who will prove it. Show me that we are such business idiots, and I'll give you $50 right out of my own pocket. More than that, if by the faintest chance what you say should prove true and we can collect the $1,500, I'll give you a third of it."

The sombreroed stranger went down into an inside pocket. "Go to your books Sept. 12, 1889," he said.

Mr. Wade went to his books. There, after the stranger had mentioned an invoice number, they found what in a nutshell was this: "Shipped to John Fox, Bicknell, Ariz., 400 bags of sugar of 100 pounds each—40,000 pounds."

"Now turn to your books of Jan. 14, 1890."

It did not take Mr. Wade and his bookkeeper more than a minute to find out that instead of sending a bill for 40,000 pounds of sugar to John Fox they had sent him a bill for 400 pounds, a bill which he had paid promptly. A receipt had been sent Mr. Fox and the transaction closed, and the error had never been discovered. There was due the firm of Wade & Scales from John Fox $1,500 and interest thereon for something like twelve years.

"You see," said the visitor, "I was Mr. Fox's bookkeeper for years and years. When the bill for 400 pounds of sugar came in, I said, 'I'll pay the bill as it stands, and if they ever send a bill for the remaining 3,600 pounds I'll pay that too, but I guess we don't need to worry about the mistake.' The other day John Fox kicked me out of his employment for a trivial mistake—kicked me out penniless at that. What I am doing now you may consider a piece of revenge. So it is largely, but I also need money."

The westerner left the place with $50 in his pocket, and the next mail took a bill to John Fox for $1,500 plus the interest for twelve years. Actuated by curiosity to know how the man would explain the matter, Mr. Wade inclosed with the bill a query as to why, having received 40,000 pounds of sugar, Mr. Fox had sent on pay for only 400 pounds.

Within a week a check for the full amount of the bill and interest was received. John Fox was too good a business man not to know that he must pay instantly, but as far as his dishonesty was concerned this is what he said in his letter, the only bit of writing that appeared except the name and figures on the check:

I make it a point never to pay until bills are presented. You never sent the bill for the extra 3,600 pounds. JOHN FOX.

Was Fox a thief or simply commercially shrewd?

In the years that had passed John Fox had become a multimillionaire. Recently he wished to open a great establishment in Chicago. A real estate agent found him a finely located building near the heart of the business district. Fox came way on to look at it. He went to the agent's office and found him looking somewhat downcast, as a man might look who was out a fat commission.

"Mr. Fox," said the agent, "I was utterly dumfounded this morning when informed by the owners of the building selected for you that they would not let you have it under any circumstances. The owners are a firm of wholesale grocers. When I pressed them for a reason for refusing to let the property to you, the head of the firm handed me a slip of paper and said: 'I understand Mr. Fox is to come to see you today. When he asks you for our reason in declining to rent to him, simply give him this piece of paper.'"

John Fox held out his hand and received the slip of paper from the agent. He unfolded it. He saw that it was one of his own letterheads, and below the printing he read this, written in his own hand:

Wade, Scales & Co.:
Gentlemen—I make it a point never to pay until bills are presented. JOHN FOX.

A Feathered Thief.

A Parisian actress who had for some time been suffering losses of jewelry determined to set a trap for the thief. So she left a diamond bracelet on her bureau, retired into an adjoining room and began to watch through the keyhole. Presently a starling hopped through the window, seized the bracelet and deposited it in the chimney, where all the missing jewelry was subsequently found.

WAVE THE STANDARD HIGH

This Success Placing the 9th District Championship Within Our Grasp.

Next Debate Feb. 7 With Fergus Falls, Probably at Moorhead.

The Red Lake Falls and Crookston High Schools met at the Opera house in this city Friday night in joint debate, and the Red Lake Falls schools were victors, after an intensely interesting and dramatic contest.

The N. P. special bearing a hundred and thirty Crookston enthusiasts and sixty Fertilites, drew in at five o'clock. The train was decorated with Crookston's rich high school color—cerise—and the color was placed in evidence so skillfully that it seemed to pervade everything. All the available conveyances of the city were brought into requisition to carry the visitors to their stopping places, and the procession of swift-going rigs laden with bright-faced crowds of sunging, singing, laughing, effervescent, spirited humanity formed a striking spectacle. Several of the rigs completed no less than three trips each back and forth to the depot. Large groups of the impatient throng cheerfully faced the long distance from the depot and walked to the hotels.

It was evident from the first that our welcomed guests were in the happiest and most friendly frame of mind, and they responded heartily to the spirit of cordiality and good will with which our pupils and our citizens greeted them. Goodfellowship from first to last was the rule, and it was gratifying to our High School to meet a foe worthy of its steel, and who could take defeat so gracefully and with such genuine and hearty acquiescence in the justice of the verdict.

The debate was held in the opera house, and this was soon filled with an expectant audience. The galleries were reserved for the visitors and popils of our schools. Banked in opposing phalanx on either side were the sympathizers of the two teams—Fertile taking the back wing and joining us.

The stage was occupied solely by the debaters and the presiding officer. Red Lake Falls supported the affirmative and Crookston the negative of the question, "Resolved that capital punishment should be abolished in the United States." Mr. C. W. Newberry, principal of the Crookston high school presided, and the judges were Professor Chandler of the university of North Dakota, Sup't. Kelly of the Grand Forks schools, and Thomas Keefe of Fertile. The Red Lake Falls debaters were Leland Healy, Rachel Taylor and Pauline Neiland, and they make a strong team. Their lines of argument and methods of presentation, are distinctive and each seem to supply what the others lack. Their efforts were characterized by intense earnestness, fine logic, and the evidences of patient and thorough research. But little effort was made at an appeal to sentiment, the speakers presenting their side of the controversy with such zeal and an accompanying array of facts and good arguments as to drive the soundness of their position home.

The debate was opened by Leland Healy, leading speaker for the affirmative side. He set a hot pace for Crookston and as he progressed it was evident Red Lake Falls had in him a champion in whom she might well feel great confidence. A cleaner, sounder, speech showing maturer judgment not only in the line of argument followed, but in the manner of its delivery, would be hard to find. Upon his conclusion the overconfidence of our Crookston friends gave way to perplexity.

After the tumultuous applause following this speaker's splendid efforts had subsided, the Crookston girls sung sweetly:

Red Lake Falls is jolly,
Red Lake Falls is gay,
But when we start debating
They will feel the other way.

Clifford Dufour, Crookston's leading speaker followed, and it must be admitted his fine voice, his excellent diction and delivery and his telling arguments tended to cool down the ardor of the home crowd, who felt that the struggle was not by any means a one-sided one.

The third speaker was Miss Rachel Taylor, of the home team, and as she progressed it was evident that the large audience, the stress of combat and the excitement of the hour had little effect on her. Cooly, incisively, eloquently, she analyzed the subject, and her ease of delivery and perfect control of the situation was the admiration of all. Red Lake Falls realized that if Crookston was to win she would have to quicken her pace.

Ever and anon the Red Lake Falls criers would make the welkin ring. One of the favorites was

Boom a-lacka,
Boom a-lacka
Bow, wow, wow!
Chick-a-lacka,
Chick a-lacka,
Chow, chow, chow.
Ricker racker,
Fire-cracker,
Sis, boom, bah,
Red Lake Falls High School
Rah, rah, rah!

The second speaker for Crookston was Willard Selleck. He was a little man in knee pants, and when his voice grew husky he would quietly stop and take a drink of water, like a practiced veteran of the forensic arena. He confined himself strictly to arguments and presented a formidable array of logic and deductions couched in fine language, and delivered in a free and taking manner. Of the three negative speakers, his arguments were most bullet-proof, and the judges gave him the highest marking.

During the progress of the debate the scene was one never to be forgotten. Banked on the gallery which skirted the hall on three sides were the representatives of the opposing schools. The Red Lake Falls High School colors, old gold and purple majestically and proudly waved in unison with the music, formed a striking contrast to the Crookston's cerise, streaming from the right. Class songs and yells, alternately from each side, stirred the blood of the most stoical, until the suppressed excitement knew no bounds.

Miss Pauline Neiland was called upon to parry the final thrusts, and to present the finishing arguments on affirmative side. Miss Neiland supplied exactly what was needed, in the way of statistics, and her well known elocutionary power was brought into play with an effectiveness which swept all before it. Devoid of theatrical effect, her summary would have been strong, but when sent home as they were, in a flood of oratory they were simply irristible. Her climax was masterful, and most dramatic, and the applause that followed showed how she had swayed her audience.

Maurice Rosenthal, the third champion for the negative side, excelled in eloquence and faultless diction, and this with his magnetic and pleasing personality at once made a marked impression on the audience, which he held spell bound. From a stand-point of artistic merit his address was very fine, but confining his arguments as he did largely to citations from scripture, he laid himself open to attack, and Mr. Healy in the rebuttal completely knocked him out.

Mr. Dufour next spoke in rebuttal, and here is where he failed. This was the weakest spot in Crookston's effort. The final effort was left to Leland Healy, and his rebuttal was without a doubt one of the strongest hits for the affirmative side. With consummate skill he picked the arguments of his opponents to pieces, and finished by adding a few more telling arguments.

The Red Lake Falls band under Prof. Frick made its first public appearance and created a favorable impression.

The judges were not long in making their decision. Chairman Newberry, who by the way presided in a manner to gain the plaudits of both sides, made a few minor announcements, and then stepping toward the back of the stage said: "There were three judges—two of them voted for Red Lake Falls." That was enough. The joy of success welled up and the voices of the multitude went up in one great roar—on chairs men and women waved their handkerchiefs and wraps, the din of the bass drum and the maogphone, swelled the tumult, the gold and purple waved in triumph. The ecstacy of triumph had siezed the crowd, and stirred them to a common jubilation most dramatic and intense. Red Lake Falls was proud of Mr. Healy, of Miss Taylor and Miss Neiland, proud of Supt. Whiteley, who had engineered the debate, proud of the parents of these boys and girls, and proud of itself, and we have reasons to be. It was not a walk away, but a battle royal.

The hall was cleared for dancing as soon as the mixup resulting from the exhuberance of Red Lake Falls spirits could be handled, and all jyined in heartily, Crookston setting a pace for goodfellowship that was extremely graceful and much appreciated by the victors, who agreed that "great was Crookston even in defeat. About twelve the dance broke up and the visitors wended their way back to the depot where they found the train gaily decorated (as if in mockery now) in readiness for the return trip.

As the special pulled out the Crookston crowd struck up:

Strawberry shortcake,
Blueberry pie.
V—I—C—T—O—R—Y!
Are we in it?
Well I guess
Crookston high school, nit, nit, nit.

Who are we, who are we?
We are the vanquished, don't you see?

Are we in it?
Well I guess—nit!

The gross receipts of the debate were $134 85. The expenses were $79.06, but over $25 of this represents investment in bunting and decorations which stand as a school assett. $20 was expended for hauling chairs back and forth. This feature is an injustice to the patrons of the opera house and there is a general feeling that the management should not longer delay providing proper seating accommodations.

The winning of this debate places Red Lake Falls in line for the 9th district championship, which will be decided by the next debate, between our school and Fergus Falls. This will be held either at Moorhead or Fargo on Febuary 7. Every effort has been made by Supt. Whiteley to have Crookston chosen as the battle ground, but the Fergusites absolutely refuse to listen to it. "Barnesville, Moorhead or Fargo" is their ultimation.

The Fergus Falls team won twice—once on each side of the question. The sides in the coming contest were chosen by lot, and Red Lake Falls maintains the affimative, in which we won over Crookston.

A special will be run to Moorhead if we can guarantee the sale of sixty tickets at $3 each. It is very desirable that a strong lusty-voiced contingent accompany our team, to give them moral backing, and if Crookston had been chosen a delegation of three hundred could easily have been secured. The wiley Fergusites know this, and are determined to do nothing which will endanger their success. They have an exceptionally strong team, but our people feel the utmost confidence in the ability of its splendid champions, Mr. Healy and the Misses Taylor and Neiland, to do them up. Win or lose, we have received much advertising from these debates and the high standing of our High School will be recognized as never before.

Total Vote For Governor of Ohio, Massachusetts and Iowa is 1,542,581.

Those who participated in the vote guessing contest will be interested in the following official announcement from the Press Publishing Co:

The total aggregate vote for Governor of Ohio, Mass., and Iowa is 1,542,581.

As soon as these Contests closed all coupons were turned over to the Committee on Awards, comprising of the Hon. Wm. C. Maybury, Mayor of Detroit, the Hon. Jas. W. Donovan, Judge of the Wayne Circuit Court, and the Rev. Chas. L. Arnold, Rector of St. Peter's Church, Detroit, Mich.

This committee appointed Mr. Henry Otis, book-keeper and accountant of the Detroit National Bank, to take charge of the coupons and tabulate the estimates. Mr. Otis at once took possession of all coupons and removed them to his private vault, where no one but himself and the committee had access to them. Mr. Otis and his staff of assistants divided all the estimates in both contests into divisions of thousands and tens of thousands, so as to facilitate the work of finding the successful estimates, as soon as he would obtain the official figures.

Mr. Otis and the Committee on Awards are now engaged in ascertaining who are entitled to prizes, according to the official figures which they have just received. It will take the committee several days to complete their work, and as soon as it is determined who are the successful estimators, the cash prizes amounting to $25,000 in these contest will be awarded by the committee, and a list of the winners will be named to each certificate holder.

Our new contest in which we will award $15,000 in $1,000 cash prizes to those making the nearest correct estimates of the total Revenue of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1902 is now ready.

Very respectfully,

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

To the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota:

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of, the construction, of the ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health, convenience and welfare require the establishment and construction of a ditch along the following described route in the towns of Garnes and Emardville in said County of Red Lake and that the construction of the same would be of public benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said public ditch is as follows:

DEFECTIVE PAGE

ELOQUENCE OF THE NEGRO.

Notable Example Was That Presented in the Preaching of Rev. John Jasper.

Rev. John Jasper represented the highest type of ignorant eloquence. Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly contains an interesting account of the famous old preacher.

There were many other discourses, says the author, just as good as the "Sun-do-move" sermon, though not so well known. In every one he wrought himself up into a pitch that was astonishing. In preaching one Sunday on the final triumph of Christ's kingdom he soared aloft in his imagery. The audience, white and black, were wrought up to the highest pitch.

"An' Death," he said, "whar will Death be den? Chained—tied fas' to de golden chariot o' de Lowd. He will be groanin' an' stumblin' an' fallin'!" And taking up one foot in his hand with the suppleness and the activity of a trapeze dancer he hopped and hobbled and sprawled and fell around the pulpit until the congregation, run wild with the perfection of the acting, almost thought they were in the very presence of the chained Death, and the women shrieked and shouted and the men rose in their seats and shouted like wild.

In his speech John Jasper was denunciatory and as sarcastic as a man could be. He roasted his enemies alive. His strong point was his ability to ridicule his opponents. He could say more in a cynical grunt or a laugh or a wave of his long arm than most men can say in a paragraph.

Jasper could argue all day, if necessary, and none could beat him. He knew nothing of syllogisms, of their premises and their conclusions, but he proved what he said by staking upon it his own character.

"Ef tain' so, frien's, go into de highways an' de byways an' de streets an' de hedges an' tell ev'ybody you meet dat John Jasper is a liar!"

STILL LEFT IN DOUBT.

Pronunciation of St. Louis Remains a Problem Even to Residents of That City.

At the recent national convention of police chiefs one of the New York police captains called Chief of Police Kiely, of St. Louis, aside and requested a point of information of national importance, says the New York Times.

"Chief, will you tell me how the citizens of your city pronounce its name? Do they say Saint-Louis—giving the sound of the final s, or do they say Saint Lewi, which I believe is the French way of pronouncing it?"

"You've got me," replied the chief. "Our people are divided on that point. The plain, breezy westerner avoids the French pronunciation by the dropping of the final letter, and the so-called cultured adhere to it with persistent tenacity. I can best answer the question by a story they tell out of my town. A New Yorker came west on a visit to the metropolis of Missouri, who used the French pronunciation when talking to a friend and old resident of the city. The westerner called the easterner aside and told him that the people of the town didn't say 'Saint Lewi.' The visitor thanked him and decided to follow the custom of the town and do as the Romans did. Shortly afterward he met another friend and he used the name of the city as he was told by his other acquaintance. He was immediately corrected, and informed that the real people of St. Louis avoided the Anglicized pronunciation, but said 'Saint Lewi.' Again the New Yorker thanked his friend tutor, and later returned to New York. On his arrival home he met another old acquaintance, who inquired where he had been and what city in the west he had visited. The traveler hesitated for a moment and then answered: "I'll be hanged if I know how."

BEYOND THE SPAN OF LIFE.

Culprits Are Sometimes Sentenced to Centuries of Imprisonment.

To be sentenced to imprisonment for the term of one's natural life is hard enough, but to be consigned to a dungeon cell for a couple of thousand years is indeed harrowing. Yet foreign judges not infrequently impose sentences of several centuries without it being considered anything remarkable. Not long ago an Italian adventurer was convicted of 63 distinct forgeries. He was sentenced in each case, with the result that he will be free in the year 2[illegible]89.

A couple of years ago a young man was arrested in Vienna who, upon his own showing, should have been sentenced to 2,500 years' imprisonment. A total of 400 charges was brought against him, and he was convicted and sentenced on all of them. But the judge was a merciful man, and in passing sentence he threw off 1,000 years in consideration of the man's youth. A little time ago, in the great Calabrian brigandage trial in Naples, the public prosecutor demanded sentence upon 248 prisoners, and although the average sentence imposed was a little over five years the aggregate of the sentences amounted to 1,300 years' imprisonment.

Exploring Syrian Castles.

Castles in Syria, to the eastward of Moab, are being explored by Dr. Alois Nusil, of Vienna. On an earlier tour he came across one of these ruins and reported its plan, at the same time that he showed photographs of the frescoes that survive on its walls. They are believed to belong to later Roman centuries and to have been erected by powerful princes of Arab stock. Architecture and ornament show the influence of Perso-Grecian art.

WASPS, THE INVINCIBLES.

Where These Terrible Insects Swarm It Is Impossible to Resist Them.

From early ages to the present time the "fiery darts of the wasps" have furnished illustrations of invincible attack. In the Bible the Lord uses the hornet to help clear a way for the chosen people: "And I sent the hornet before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites." Not only have armies been dispersed, but cities have been abandoned because of the onset of hornets. In "Wasps and Their Ways" many interesting examples are cited.

In "Cruden's Concordance," in the introduction to the subject of hornets, we read that a "Christian city, being besieged by Sapores, king of Persia, was delivered by hornets; for the elephants and beasts, being stung by them, waxed unruly, and so the whole army fled."

Muffet says: "If we will credit Aelianus, the Phaalites, in times past, were constrained to forsake their city, for all their defense, munition and armor, all through the multitude and cruel fierceness of the wasps wherewith they were annoyed."

A more modern incident is this: "Eight miles from Grandie the muleteers suddenly called out: 'Marambundas! Marambundas!' which indicated the approach of wasps. In a moment all the animals, whether loaded or otherwise, lay down on their backs, kicking violently, while the blacks and others ran in different directions, all being careful to avoid by a wide sweep the swarms of tormentors that came forward like a cloud.

"I never witnessed a panic so sudden and complete. The alarm was not without good reason, for so severe is the torture inflicted by these pygmy assailants that the bravest travelers are not ashamed to fly the instant they perceive the host approaching, which is of common occurrence in the campos."

THAT WHICH IS QUOTED.

Of All Languages Latin Has Been the Most Cited, Says This Authority.

Quotation is a matter of memory, and when literature relied on memory literature mainly consisted of verse. It seems pretty clear that fixed rhythm was at least as much a practical expedient as an artistic device. And the poets most quotable and most quoted are those whose words have the most direct bearing on the common business of life, says a writer in the Saturday Review. The old theory of the poet's function was very different from the modern one. Now, he is taken to be a creature singing to himself, following out his own dreams, remote, in a sense that Horace or Horace's Greek models never contemplated, from common life. He does, in reality, hate the profanum vulgus; he shuts it off by a barrier of unintelligibility which the crowd shows no desire to break down. But the poet was formerly held to be one different indeed from his fellows, endowed with a special insight, but speaking to men of men's affairs in words that they could catch up and apply to many passages in life—that is, in words that naturally lent themselves to quotation. Too great insistence upon either aspect of the case naturally leads to error. Of all literatures Latin has been incomparably the most cited, partly because Latin is still familiar to every educated man, but largely also because of the practical bent of Latin genius. Horace is more quoted not only than Virgil but than any poet in the world, yet no one assigns to him a rank corresponding to this fact. The weakness of Horace lies just in the universal applicability of his sentiments; his counsels are so far-reaching in their wisdom that they approach to platitudes. As Mr. Austin Dobson puts it:

> No man can say that life is short
> With men so little fretful,
> And none to virtue's ways exhort
> In phrases less regretful.

College Graduates Increasing.

The graduating lists of the American colleges this year show an increase of 25 per cent. It seems probable that all the institutions of learning will have more than their usual quota of students next fall, says Success. As celebrated college presidents have shown in the columns of Success from time to time, the demand for college men in all branches of business, as well as in the professions, is gradually increasing. Our colleges graduate men and women with practical as well as artistic ideals. A notion prevails that girls who have been so fortunate as to complete a course in a college do not make good wives. This notion is devoid of common sense. The more brain a man or woman can put into his or her work the better that work will be. This rule holds as surely in the responsible work of housekeeping, in social relations and in domestic economy as in agriculture, the arts, mechanism, law, medicine or theology.

Censor Destroys Rhyme and Reason.

A Constantinople correspondent says that the Turkish government has prohibited the performance of Rostand's play, "Cyrano de Bergerac," declaring it to be of a revolutionary character. The Turkish censor is very particular that no royalty is presented on the stage, and in all pieces the king is replaced by a prince or a duke. The comic effect of replacing a monosyllable by a longer word in Italian opera, which alone is performed in Constantinople, may readily be imagined. Most certainly no imputation of encouraging high treason can be brought against the Turkish censor.

PRAIRIE HIGHWAYS.

DIFFICULTIES OF ROADMAKING IN IOWA AND ILLINOIS.

Methods by Which the Desired Results May Be Obtained—Taxes Must Be Paid in Money—All Property Must Contribute.

In an article in The Prairie Farmer Mr. H. H. Fitch of Iowa discusses the problem "How Shall We Improve Highways?" He says:

Not by running in debt and issuing bonds which will remain a mortgage on our farms until paid by increased taxation. Such measures would drive more people to the towns and make our boys and girls less willing to remain on the farms and follow the occupation of tillers of the soil. Yet we want and must have better roads. The demand for rural free mail delivery is urgent and pressing the general government from every quarter. This demand cannot be met without roads suitable for light vehicles at all seasons of the year, under all conditions of the weather.

How shall we make the roads better? We must make them, for the most part of the soil and near by where the road is located. The alluvial soil of the greater portion of Iowa, Illinois and a considerable portion of other adjoining states is rich in humus and all the constituents that are needed to enable it to produce bountiful crops. But these materials are not the best for making a solid roadbed impervious to water and free from mud and water in rainy weather. But roads of this material may be made possible even in wet weather if properly drained and the grade maintained in an oval form, so that the water which falls thereon shall find its way quickly to the ditches beside the road and on to the sea.

A very large number of good and sufficient grades have been built by the townships and counties of Iowa and other states, which, for want of proper care, are quagmires and almost, if not altogether, impassable in a rainy season or in the annual break up of the springtime. To put these in order and keep them so we must have some man or men who can do it when the ground is in condition for such work and the farmers are busy in their fields planting and sowing. The road supervisor must not be a farmer, and here in Iowa he should work under the direction of the township trustees.

We have machines in almost every township for grading and ditching which, if properly handled, will take the earth from the edges of the road and draw it into the center and place the roadbed in the proper form for conveying the water to the ditches and building a solid foundation for the wheels. This work cannot be well done when the ground is wet or very hard and dry, hence the necessity of having a man for this work who makes it his business and will give it timely attention.

HARD ON THE MULE.

All taxes for the highways must be paid in money. We have a law in Iowa that permits the placing of a township in a supervisor district and, if the trustees so elect, of making all the taxes payable in money. Township trustees have in some instances made the township a single district under one supervisor, but have rarely if ever required the entire road tax to be paid in money. It might be better to give the care and the expenditure of the highway funds to the county board of supervisors, permitting them to expend in the several townships all the taxes raised in the township by contract for new grades and the maintaining in good order all grades already made, contracting for graveling the grades wherever that is available.

Old methods of making and caring for the roads have followed us from primitive times in the older eastern states, and must be relegated to the dead past before we can hope for very much better highways. A more just method of taxation whereby the property of all the people, bondholders and railroads, telegraph, telephone and all other public utilities, are made to pay their just proportion of the taxes by an assessment of their properties according to their cash or selling value, the same as a farm or the merchant's stock of goods or the capital of a bank, will aid materially in equalizing the burdens of making and maintaining better roads.

For the Highways.

The good roads officials of the government are felicitating themselves over the fact that, although congress failed to pass the river and harbor bill, it did appropriate $20,000 for the cause of good roads. Even though this was $130,000 less than the amount asked for, the beautifiers of the public highways are thoroughly satisfied with the treatment accorded them by congress, all things and all appropriations considered.

Maintenance of Dirt Roads.

The maintenance of dirt roads after being properly constructed is usually left to the elements; consequently the roadmaker is compelled to rebuild his road annually, while the employment of a caretaker or overseer at all times on all roads would maintain our dirt roads in fair condition with present taxation.

Banking a Japanese.

"J. P. G." was only an enlisted man in Uncle Sam's navy, but his messmates called him "the Swell" because whenever he went ashore he carried a suit of civilian's clothes. At Yokohama, in his fine raiment and a white felt hat, he passed himself off to a Japanese coal merchant as the paymaster of the fleet and contracted for several thousand tons of coal. The price named was $14 a ton.

"What is my rake off?" he asked the dealer, who offered a generous commission. "Make the price sixteen dollars a ton and have —— thousand tons ready for delivery at the earliest possible hour tomorrow morning," he said.

The merchant opened wine, and when thoroughly warmed up the sailor remarked, looking indolently at his watch: "By the bye, I'm expected to visit the club tonight, and it is probable that I may need a little more money than I have in my pocket. Perhaps you had better advance me three or four thousand dollars on account."

Of course he got what he wanted. Next morning the vessels were surrounded with scores of barges laden with coal, and it was all the officers could do to prevent the Japs from unloading their cargoes. The dealer dared say nothing, for he had entered into a conspiracy to defraud the government, so he pocketed his loss in silence.—New York Press.

Now They Never Speak.

A coolness growing out of the following conversation has sprung up between Jones and Smith.

"I had a splendid time last night," said Jones. "I spent the evening at a little social gathering at the Goodman mansion."

"Are the Goodmans nice people?" queried Smith.

"Well, I should say so. They are very aristocratic. To get into their circle one must have either a great deal of money or a great deal of genius."

"You don't tell me so? And you say you were there?"

"Yes."

"You were invited, were you?"

"Of course."

"And to be invited a man has to have plenty of money or a great deal of genius?"

"Precisely."

"Well, Jones, I am very glad to hear you have become rich all of a sudden. Lend me five pounds!"—London Answers.

Reasons For a Divorce.

The Druses sometimes divorce their wives for apparently the most trivial causes. Thus a man named Soleiman Attaln had a wife, Ishakyeh. The woman frequently worked for us, and on several occasions I had to complain that she talked too much and worked too little. At length I was obliged to tell Soleiman that owing to his wife's laziness I could employ her no longer. Shortly afterward I went to England.

On my return after a couple of months' absence I was surprised to find that Soleiman had divorced Ishakyeh and had already married another woman. On inquiring from him the cause of this he replied, "Your honor told me that you would not employ my wife again, so I thought I would get rid of her and marry another woman whom you would employ."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Coaling a British Visitor.

A big British battleship coming here to attend a patriotic function of some kind on the invitation of our government ran short of coal, and Uncle Sam, as host, agreed to fill her bunkers free of charge. This courtesy was done through the medium of a Jersey City merchant, who supplied fine furnace coal, worth from $6 to $7 a ton and presented his bill to the English captain. "Send it to the navy department," said the latter, and to Washington it went, to be returned by the next mail with a memorandum attached saying that an error had been made in the charge, "the government contract calling for coal at $3 a ton." And that is all the smart Jerseyite ever received.—New York Press.

No Rebate.

When Adelina Patti visited Madrid one time in company with her husband, Signor Nicolini, who thought himself a tenor singer, there was an effort to engage the noted artist for an especial occasion. The opera director asked:

"How much will you charge us if you and your honored husband appear on this occasion for one night?"

"Ten thousand francs, sir."

"And how much if you come without the signor, madame?"

"Ten thousand francs."

Catherine de' Medici.

Catherine de' Medici of France was a tall, dignified woman of striking personal appearance. Her manner was often cold and repulsive, her language haughty. She was never popular, or well liked. Her features were regular, and the chief merit of her countenance was a full black eye that seemed to fascinate those on whom she looked.

Jungle Talk.

"Hello! Where are you going?" cried the lion as the fleet footed stag dashed by him.

"Oh, I'm just traveling for my health," panted the stag. "Why do you ask?"

"My friend the tiger invited me to participate in a stag dinner party today, and I was wondering if you were the party."—Philadelphia Press.

A Lesson in Washing.

Pliny the Great could see things in front of his nose as well as afar off. "I notice that the women rub the washing in cold water," he wrote one day. "Let them heat the water, and the alkali in the soap will be freed and take far better effect." And only after that did women know how to wash.

McKINLEY DAY.

J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction, has issued the following address to school super intendents:

The McKinley National Memorial Association through its president, Hon. Wm. R. Day, and Governor Nash of Ohio, have united in an appeal to all governors of states to have them issue a proclamation designating Wednesday, January the 29th, as "McKinley Day" in honor of the birthday of our late lamented president, and suggesting that appropriate exercises be held in every school throughout the United States, that our youth may be impressed with the nobility of his character and the fidelity with which he discharged every public trust.

No better lesson can be taught the rising generation, that it may be an inspiration to emulate his example.

Governor Van Sant and the Minnesota Auxiliary of the National Association have requested me to take the necessary steps to bring this matter to the special attention of our schools and set January the 29th as a day for a free-will offering of the children of this state in aid of the proposed monument to be erected over the grave of our martyred president at Canton, Ohio.

I suggest that on the said day appropriate exercises be held in each school and an opportunity be offered every pupil to give his might for this splendid object.

It is expressly desired that contributions be limited to ten cents for any pupil and that no family represented by more than one child give more than twenty five cents in the aggregate.

I recommend that you interest the teachers under your charge in this movement. Have them take collections as suggested and remit to you with names and addresses of contributors, you to forward such lists of contributors with their names to Frank H. Forbes, secretary of the Minnesota Auxiliary Committee, 1119 LumberExchange, Minneapolis. These names will be sent to the officers of the National Association, who will acknowledge receipt by a neat souvenir.

The monument erected to commemorate the noble life of our beloved patriot, statesman and late president should in part also be a monument representing the public spirit, gratitude and patriotism of the people of Minnesota, and especially those who are nutured in lessons of patriotism and civic righteousness in our public schools.

Some of our rural postmasters need a shaking up. A man subscribes for the paper Nov. 28, and the paper is sent regularly to a post office not a thousand miles from Red Lake Falls. Subscriber complains of not getting his paper. It is continued regularly to the same post office. On Jan. 16 the postmaster comes to sufficiently to notify this office "Pursuant to instructions from the postmaster general, etc," said subscriber does not get his mail at that office, and wonder of wonders, actually giving the proper address. It took the postmaster just seven weeks to gather sufficient energy to drop a postal card In the mails, with this information! These are the days of the X Ray, and of wireless telegraphy, but it will take something more subtle than this to stir the energies of such as these.

Minnesota ranks second in number of creameries, and the Dairymen's association has won more prizes than any other similar state association.

ABOUT TAXES.

The taxes for 1901 are due as follows:

All taxes, both personal and real estate are due on the first Monday in January of each year.

Personal property taxes unpaid April 1st are collected by the sheriff with additional costs.

Real estate taxes may be paid in two installments.

Payment of the first half may be made on or before May 31.

A penalty of 10 per cent. on the whole tax is added June 1, provided the first one-half is not paid on or before May 31.

Payment of the second half may be made on or before Oct. 31.

A penalty of 10 per cent. is added Nov. 1 if the second one-half is not paid nn or before Oct. 31, and said tax will become delinquent on the first Monday of January, when an additional penalty of 5 per cent. is added.

Tax sales take place on the first Monday of May following, and the amount of sales draws interest at the rate of 1 per cent per month until redeemed.

If not redeemed within three years from date of sale, all lands become the absolute property of the state or purchaser.

The success in debate of Mr. Leland Healy, Miss Rachel Taylor and Miss Pauline Neiland, is a matter of great gratification to our citizens. Considering the fact that not until the 1901-2 school year was well on its way, did they have any training in this line, their splendid success stands out the more prominently, and is a source of wonderment as well as pride. There must be some especial talent in the young people, and this combined with their earnestness of purpose, their capacity for hard work, and the splendid painstaking, tireless instruction, has developed in a marvelously short space of time three speakers who could with confidence face any audience. Again we say, Red Lake Falls is proud of you, Mr. Healy, Miss Taylor and Miss Neiland.

The future is bright for you if you will continue in the path mapped out, with your ideals set high, never swerving until your goal is attained. Your example has awakened new worthy aspirations in the hearts of our youth, and your initial success should awaken new confidence in yourselves, and a new determination to cnntinue on the trail that leads upward.

Fergus Falls Journal: The arrangements for the coming debate between the Fergus Falls and Red Lake Falls high schools to decide the championship of the Ninth congressional district are progressing and the debate will probably be held Friday evening. February 7. Lots were cast to decide which school should have the choice of sides and Red Lake Falls won and has chosen the affirmative. This means that the Fergus debaters will take the same side that they took in the recent debate with Barnesville. It has been agreed that the debate shall occur on neutral ground and Moorhead was practically agreed upon as the most convenient place for holding it, but the Red Lake Falls superintendent writes today that he would prefer to have it held in Crookston. The city in which it is to be held will be definitely settled upon in a few days.

The secretary of the interior has forwarded to the house committee on Indian affairs the draft of a bill to allow three Chippewa Indians to take allotments of 160 acres each on the Red Lake reservation near the mouth of the Warroad river, on which they have already made improvements. Which goes to show that there are worse things than being a Chippewa Iddian.

Crookston Times: The literary societies of the Red Lake Falls high school are Spartan and Athenian and when they meet its the proverbial tug of war, but when they combine its the Greek against the world, which perhaps accounts for the Crookston high school's recent experience at the Lower Falls.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My dear children,—

How many of you have a pet at home, I wonder? I'm going to tell you of a water spaniel who was the property of a doctor. This particular doctor was very fond of children and the mammas found that when no one else could quiet their sick little ones Dr. Hugh would find some way. He had many pets about his office and it was very strange if he didn't have the sick child smiling at some cute thing done by one or the other of these pets. The dog's name was Bounce. He would do many funny things and it seemed wonderful how well he understood the doctor.

One day he went with the doctor to the house of a friend and did something very naughty, killing one of the pet rabbits belnnging to the children of the house. His master scolded him, telling him that he could never again go to that particular house. Bounce was so ashamed ever after when his master went to that home nothing could induce Bounce to go—on the contrary he would hang his head and slink away to his kennel.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Here is an excellent furniture polish. It has been tested and if you could step in and look at our piano you will agree with me that it is needless to have finger marks offend ing one's glance every time one looks around:

One part turpentine mixed well with two parts vinegar. Saturate small flannel cloth with mixture, rub article to be cleaned, small space at a time, then polish with large, clean flannel cloth.

Mothers, when your babies are fretful beyond endurance try taking off their shoes awhile. I have seen many a nervous baby brighten up after the tired mother or nurse had acted upon this suggestion. You know what a relief it is at times to get your own shoes off for a while? This does not imply the running about without shoes on. If older persons wish to rest their feet let them have a pair of soft shoes at hand. The feet should be well covered at all times.

SPEAK KINDLY; NEVER GOSSIP.

Here is a true story. After having read it ponder over it. I hope it will help you as much as it did me.

Two friends were talking about a mutual acquaintence. Said Sarah to Jane: "I always liked Mary; she is so thoroughly good." Sarah used more words but that was the sense of her expressions. Some months later Sarah and Jane chanced to meet again. Said Jane: "You do not know what a world of good it did Mary to hear the message you sent her. She came to me full of trouble about many things and to comfort her I told her what you had said."

Now Sarah had forgotten all about the last meeting but indeed she was very glad to have been the comfnrter of a troubled soul. Much more so because this particular Mary was, unfortunately, disorderly, improvident and careless. Now suppose Sarah had mentioned these traits; it would have annulled all the good of her sweet charity, which prompted her to speak only of the commendable in her friend; and unwittingly to send forth a message of cheer. We can all do likewise; we can shun gossip. Mothers, think of the seed of discord implanted in the hearts of your little ones when they hear you gossip. Break away from the habit—you can if you try. There are so many uplifting things to talk about—why gossip?

Teach your little ones to speak kindly of their mates. While a mother should hear everything which relates to her child's wellfare, let a wrong thing concerning another, be told you only in the strictest confidence. It is surprising how well a small child can be taught in those matters. But like all evil inclinations the tendency to gossip must be rooted out from the start. We are all God's creatures, let us be noble, kind and good. Even the weakest of us can find joy in living if we try to improve from day to day.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

are untrue, then—why, then you will consider what to do. But, Molly, I do not believe that any explanations will be forthcoming and that your noble lover will carry it off to the end with the same lofty pride and cold mien."

"Let us go into the parlor, Jack. There are the captain's writing materials. Help me to say what is proper. Oh, is it possible? Can I believe it? Are these things true? That proud man, raised above his fellows by his virtues and his rank and his principles! Jack, he risked his life for me."

"Ask no more questions, Molly. We must have explanations. Let us write the letter."

It was Molly's first letter—the only letter, perhaps, that she will ever write in all her life. Certainly she had never written one before, nor has she ever written one since. Like most housewives, her writing is only wanted for household accounts, recipes for puddings and pies and the labeling of her bottles and jars. I have the letter before me at this moment. It is written in a large, sprawling hand, and the spelling is not such as would satisfy my father.

Naturally she looked to me for advice. I had written many letters to my owners and to foreign merchants about cargoes, and the like, and was therefore able to advise the composition of a letter which should be justly expressed and to the point:

"Honored Lord—This is from me at the present moment in my guardian's parlor"—writing parlor when I as mate of the ship should have written port or harbor. "It is to inform you that intelligence has been brought by letters from London and Cambridge. Touching the matters referred to in these letters, I have to report for your satisfaction that they call your lordship in round terms a gamester and a ruined rake and your companions at the spa—viz, Sam Semple, the parson, the rickety old beau and the colonel—simple rogues, common cheats and sharpers. Shall not, therefore, meet your lordship at the church tomorrow morning as instructed. Awaiting your lordship's explanations and commands, your most obedient, humble servant,

"MOLLY."

This letter I folded, sealed, addressed and dropped into my pocket. Then I bade Molly good night, entreated her to be thankful for her escape and so left her with a light heart. Verily it seemed as if the sadness of the last two months had been wholly and suddenly lifted, and on my way back to the Crown I passed the Lady Anastasia's lodging just as her chair was brought to the house. I opened the door for her and stood hat in hand.

"Why, it is Jack!" she cried. "It is the sailor Jack, the constant lover. Have you anything more to tell me?"

"Only that Molly will not keep that appointment of tomorrow evening"—

"Oh, that interesting appointment in St. Nicholas' church. May a body ask why the ceremony has been postponed?"

"Things have been disclosed at the last moment, fortunately in time."

"What things, and by whom?"

"By letter. It is stated as a fact well known that Lord Fylingdale is nothing better than a ruined rake and a notorious gamester."

"Indeed! The excellent Lord Fylingdale! Impossible! Quite impossible! The illustrious example of so many virtues! The explanations will be, I am sure, complete and satisfactory. Ruined; a rake; a notorious gamester! What next will the world say? Does his lordship know of this discovery? Not yet? You said it was a discovery, did you not? Well, my friend, I am much obliged to you for telling me. You are quite sure Molly will not be there? Very good of you to tell me. For my own part I start for London quite early—at 5 o'clock. Goodby, Jack!"

Then I went into the Crown, where I learned that the captain had been reading another letter containing accusations as bad as those in the other two.

So we fell to talking over the business, and it was resolved that the captain should demand explanations by letter, that he should refuse to receive the villain Sam Semple or his lordship and that the vicar should, if necessary, proceed to London and there learn what he could concerning the past history and the present reputation of the noble suitor. Meantime I said no more about the intended marriage at St. Nicholas' church and the abandonment of the plan. As things turned out, it would have been far better had I told the captain and had we both planted ourselves as sentinels at the door, so as to be quite sure that Molly did not go forth at 6 in the morning.

That evening, after leaving me, Lady Anastasia sent a note to Lord Fylingdale. "I am leaving Lynn early tomorrow morning. I expect to be in London in two days. Shall write to Molly."

CHAPTER XIV.

A WEDDING.

I HAD rowed myself aboard that evening in a strange condition of exultation, for I had no doubt—no doubt at all—that the charges were true and that a conspiracy of the most deadly kind was not only discovered, but also checked, and I could not but admire the craft and subtlety with which the favorite of the muses had devised a plan by which it was made possible for the conspirators to come all together without the least suspicion to the town of Lynn.

Nobody could stand against him, nor could any one in Lord Fylingdale's rank visit the town in its ordinary condition without receiving an invitation to Houghton if Sir Robert was there unless, indeed, there were reasons why he should not be visited or received. What Sam had not expected was without doubt the wonderful success of his deception, the eagerness with which the country round accepted his inventions, the readiness with which they drank these innocent waters, the miraculous cures effected and the transformation of the venerable old port and trading town into a haunt and resort of fashion and the pursuit of pleasure.

Thinking of all these things and in blissful anticipation of the discomfiture of all the conspirators, there was an important thing that I quite forgot—namely, to send Molly's letter to her suitor in his room at the Crown. I carried the letter in my pocket. I undressed and lay down in my bunk. I slept with a light heart, dreaming only of things pleasant until the morning, when the earliest stroke of the hammer from the yard and the quay woke me up. It was then 5:30. I sat up. I rubbed my eyes. I then suddenly remembered that the letter was in my pocket still.

It was, I say, 5:30. The engagement was for 6 o'clock. I might have to run yet to stop Lord Fylingdale.

It does not take long to dress. You may imagine that I did not spend time in powdering my hair. In a quarter of an hour I was over the side of the ship and in my dingey.

By the clock in the Common Stath it was five minutes to 6 when I landed and made her fast. I climbed the stairs and ran as fast as my legs could carry me to the Crown inn. As I reached the door the clock struck 6. Was Lord Fylingdale in his room? I was too late. He had left the house only five minutes before and had been carried in his chair across the market place.

I followed. It was already five minutes past the hour. I should find him in the church chafing at the delay. I should give him the letter and retire.

The market place was filled with the market people and with the townspeople who came to buy. I pushed across, stepping over a basket and jostled by a woman with poultry and vegetables. It was seven or eight minutes after 6 when I arrived at the church. The doors of the south porch were open. Within I heard the sound of voices or at least of one voice. I looked in.

Heavens! What had happened? Not only was I late with my letter, but—but could I believe my eyes? Molly herself stood before the altar. Facing her was Lord Fylingdale, who held her hand. Within the rails stood the Rev. Benjamin Purden, beside him the clerk to make the responses, and the minister, when I arrived, was actually saying the words which the bridegroom repeats after the minister, completing in effect the marriage ceremony.

"I, Ludovic, take thee, Mary, to my wedded wife," and so on, according to the form prescribed, and again the words beginning:

"With this ring I thee wed"—

I stood and listened, lost in wonder.

Then came the prayer prescribed, after which the clergyman joined their hands together, saying:

"Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

I heard no more. I sat down on the nearest bench. What was the meaning of this sudden change? Remember that I had left Molly only a few hours before this fully resolved that she would demand an inquiry into the statements and charges made in the two letters—resolved that she would not keep the engagement, her admiration for the proud, brave, noble creature, her lover, turned into loathing.

And now, now, in the early morning, with her letter in my pocket stating her change of purpose, I found her at the altar and actually married.

"Whom God hath joined together let not man put asunder."

What if the man Purden was all that he was described? The priestly office confers rights and powers which are independent of the man who holds that office. Whatever his private wickedness, Purden was a clergyman, and therefore he could marry people.

Molly stood before the altar, as had been arranged. She wore a black silk domino; she had on a pink silk cloak with a hood drawn over her head, so that she was quite covered up and concealed. But I knew her by her stature, which was taller than the common, and by her dress, which had been agreed upon.

Then the bridegroom offered his hand and led the bride into the vestry. They were to sign the marriage register.

And here I rose and slunk away. I say that I slunk away. If you like it better, I crawled away, for I was sick at heart. The thing which I most dreaded, the marriage of our girl to a rake and a gamester, had been actually accomplished. Misery and ruin would be her lot. And in my pocket was her letter asking for explanation—and withdrawing her promise for the morrow. Could one believe one's senses?

I crawled away, ashamed for the first time in my life of the girl I loved. Women, I said to myself, are poor, weak creatures. They believe everything. Lord Fylingdale must have been with her early. He had but to deny the whole; she accepted the denial. Despite her resolution she walked with him to the church as the lamb goes to the shambles. Oh, Molly! Who could have believed it of you?

I left the church and went away. I thought of going to the captain; of telling my father; of telling the vicar, but it seemed like treachery, and I refrained.

Instead, I walked back to the quay and paddled to the ship, where presently the barges came alongside and the day's work began. Fortunate it is for a man that at moments of great unhappiness his work has to be done and he is desirous to put aside his sorrow and to think upon his duty. But—alas! Poor Molly! Who could have believed it possible?

Well, you see, I did not follow this wedding to an end. Had I gone into the vestry I should have been witness of something very unexpected.

The clergyman had the registers lying on the table open. He took a pen and filled in the forms. He then offered the pen to the bride.

"My lady," he said, "I must ask your ladyship to sign the register—in duplicate, if you please."

The bride sat down and in a large, bold hand wrote her name—Mary Miller.

Then the bridegroom took the pen and signed "Fylingdale."

The clergyman sprinkled the pounce box over the names and shut up the books, which he gave to the clerk. This officer took the books and locked them in the great trunk which held the papers and books of the church, putting the key in his pocket.

"And now," said Mr. Purden, "let me congratulate my noble patron and the newly made countess on this auspicious event. I have brought with me a bottle of the finest port the Crown possesses, and I venture to drink health, happiness and prosperity." So saying he produced a bottle and glasses. The bride, without saying a word, inclined her head to the bridegroom and drank off her glass. Lord Fylingdale, who looked, if one may say so of a bridegroom, peevish and ill at ease, raised his glass. "To your happiness, Molly," he said.

So all was finished. "You are going home, Molly?" he asked. "For the present—that is to say, for a day or two—it will be best. I shall claim you very soon. There is no one but ourselves in the vestry." (For the clerk, having locked the box and accepted the guinea bestowed upon him by the bridegroom, was now tramping down the church and through the porch. No one but themselves was in the vestry or the church.) "You may therefore take off your domino."

"As your lordship pleases." Lord Fylingdale started. Whose voice was that? "As you order I obey." So the bride removed her domino and threw back the hood.

The bridegroom started. "What is this?" he cried, furious with certain words which were out of place in a church.

"Lady Anastasia!" cried Mr. Purden. "Good Lord! Then we are all undone!"

"What does it mean? Tell me, she devil! What does it mean? Where is Molly? But this is play acting. This is not a marriage."

"I fear, my lord," said the parson, "that it is a marriage. The registers are in the strong box. They cannot be altered."

"Go after the clerk, man. Order him to give up the keys. Tear the pages out of the registers."

"I cannot," said Mr. Purden. "I dare not. The man is a witness of this marriage. He has seen the entry in the register. I dare not alter them or destroy a single page. I have done a great deal for your lordship, but this thing I cannot do. It is a marriage, I say. You are married to the Lady Anastasia here."

"Talk! Talk! Go after the man. Bring back the man. Tear the keys from him. Silence the man. Buy his silence. By heaven, I will murder him in order to stop his tongue!"

"Your lordship forgets your bride—your happy, smiling, innocent bride."

He cursed her. He raised his hand as if to strike her down, but forbore.

"I told you," she continued, "that in everything I was at your service—except in one thing. Tear the registers—murder the clerk—but the bride will be left. And if you murder her as well you will be no nearer the possession of the lovely Molly."

The bridegroom sank into a chair. He was terrible to look at, for his wrath and disappointment deprived

FASHION-TRUE CLOTHING
Honorably-Made and Staunch

FRIEND BROS. CLOTHING

is unique among other kinds. It is care-tailored clothing. The workmanship is of master-treatment by master-hands. The grade of trimmings, so often slighted by job-clothing makers, is one point of excellence with us, but only one. Like the dress of a well-groomed man you cannot pick out one feature in a Friend Bros. garment that overshadows the balance. The result is true harmony and an exceptionally thoroughbred effect. Be sure you find our name in the right hand breast pocket. Leading dealers sell our garments.

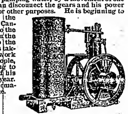
2½ H.P. Gasoline Engine.



TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philipines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year.

There has been considerable dispute and trouble about the erection of the church here. First about the site and now about the size of the building. Why not come to some understanding at once and let some something be done? This wrangling has been going on long enough. It is time we were getting in line with the rest of the well ordained communities. We have lived in the darkness long enough, so now unite and do matters up in a business like way.

The firm of Gjernes & Moen will soon move into the store recently occupied by Hughs & Nereson, and they expect to carry a full line of groceries and dry goods.

Garnes is considerably agitated just now over the church question. The eastern people want the church east, the western people want the church west and Garnes would a little sooner have it in Garnes, and consequently trouble is brewing.

THE ROMANCE OF MARY ANN

Both Jones and Brown loved Mary Ann,
And Jones was very small
And monkeylike, and people said
He had no brains at all.

Now, Brown was big and handsome, too;
At school he led his class,
And people, filled with wonder, turned
Ofttimes to see him pass.

Jones had a father who was rich;
Brown worked for what he had,
Because good luck had never tagged
Around behind his dad.

It chanced that Brown and little Jones
Went forth upon a day
To claim the lovely Mary Ann
And carry her away.

They found her playing on the links,
Where both rushed forward, and
While Brown was pleading for her heart
Jones pleaded for her hand.

"You won my heart long, long ago,"
She sweetly said to Brown,
"And now be kind enough to just Go way back and — —."

Then lovely Mary Ann that day
Said: "Fate has wisely planned.
My heart is his who yearned for it;
The other has my hand."

All He Knew About It.

"Here! Here!" said the rich old widower. "What are you doing?"

"I'm pinchin' your legs to see which of them's the wooden one," said little Willie.

"Boy," the old man testily replied, "you bother me. Run away. What do you mean by one of my legs being wooden? I haven't any wooden leg."

"Well, when Sister Fannie said the other night that she didn't want to marry you even with all your money mother told her not to be foolish, because you had one foot in the grave and wouldn't last long. So that's all I know about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How She Knew.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "why didn't you tell me you were going hunting yesterday? It would have relieved my mind ever so much, for I half suspected you were going to the races without taking me."

"How—er—how did you know I went hunting?"

"Because you were talking all night in your sleep about long shots."—Washington Star.

Tess—I told Miss Sharpe what you said about her sewing circle; that you would not join because it was too full of stupid nobodies.

Jess—Did you? What did she say to that?

Still Alive.

"What, you here again!" exclaimed the woman at the back door when Weary Willie presented himself. "I thought you were dead."

"Oh, no," replied Weary, touching his hat. "I didn't eat that piece of pie you gave me last time I was here."—Yonkers Statesman.

Another Outrage.

"Senator," she asked, "have you ever been caricatured in the papers?"

"No," replied the gentleman who has represented his state since away back in the fifties, "the confounded artists always insist on picturing my face just as it is."—Chicago Record-Herald.

It Would Be Too Costly.

"Women never go shopping in Turkey as they do here, do they?"

"Well, I should say not! It would put an end to polygamy in mighty short order if they did."—Chicago Post.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

High School Notes

By the Athenian Society.

LITERARY WORK.

The joint debate last Friday night at the Opera House between Crookston and Red Lake Falls was a victory for us. All debaters did well and interest was kept up to the last.

Don't forget the Athenian program to be given Friday afternoon, Jan. 24.

Subject for the debate to be held Friday January 31: Resolved; "That industrial combinations are for the highest interest of the United States." The Athenians chose the negative. Their debaters are Tom McNerthney, Katherine Pirath and Florence Deautremont. The Spartan debaters are Verne Healy, Marjorie Rodgers and Etta Garceau.

SCHOOL IN GENERAL

Hurrah! Hurrah! for the Red Lake Falls High School.

Did you attend last Friday night's debate? Were you disappointed?

Rumsky, Rumsky, Rumsky Roe,
We're the people, we told you so,
You didn't believe it, Ha! Ha! Ha!
Red Lake Falls, Ra! Ra! Ra!

Some of the High School members tried to overflow the river. We hope we can soon have a skate.

The H. S. O. appointed a committee of three, Olga Kretzschmar, Lulu Fletcher and Etta Garceau to write a resolution of thanks to those who took interest in the last debate.

We hope that the Spartan's decorations will be removed before the Athenian program is rendered.

The physiology class enjoyed an extra session between four and five o'clock Tuesday night.

We are not allowed to leave the assembly room without permission, after once entering it. If they do, five will be marked off on deportment. We are afraid many will receive—100.

When Crookston came over to try to debate
They did not last long, we are sad to relate.
They came with the train crowded to o'erflowing
Yelling and cheering, with their red flag all showing.
When they left 'twas under the cover of night,
And it was, oh! such a sorrowful sight.
For the victory of which they all felt so sure
Had answered its purpose and that was to lure
Them up from their town which is way down the river
So that Lee, Rachel and Pauline could knock them to slivers.
And when they had done, Crookston felt queer,
And went home to doctor up for next year.
And this much we will say about that town—Fergus,
If they are not extra good, they want to steer clear us,
For if they are not very good we will make them feel
As though they had stepped on a banana peel.

PERSONALS.

Della Toupin is on the sick list this week. Miss Toupin will sing a solo at Friday's program.

Henrietta Hennemuth is detained from school owing to illness.

Orilla Hennemuth, having sprained her angle was obliged to remain home a few days, is back at school.

INCIDENTS.

One of the teachers showed her partiality to the boys by saying the girls chewed gum obtained from petroleum barrels and sweetened. A few minutes after a boy was seen chewing what we think you would call y-u-m. After this we are sure the boys will not meddle with anything in the laboratory.

A collection will have to be taken up to buy one of the boys a pair of mittens, so that he'll not have to take the girls' mitts.

FOR THE CHILDREN

He Will Succeed.

Not long ago I was on the point of leaving Detroit for a day or two. As I went down Griswold street I was accosted by a bright little fellow, "Carry your satchel to the depot?"

"No," I replied as I entered the Ypsilanti waiting room, "I'm going to stop right here."

"Carry your satchel out to the car?" kept up the small boy as he followed me in.

I settled myself to wait for the car and thought my youthful man of business had given me up. He stood outside on the pavement talking with his companions and punctuating his remarks by sondry nods in my direction. Presently the Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor car was announced. Before I had time to lay hands on my baggage my small boy had marched straight in, seized my suit case and marched out again. He boarded the car before it reached the depot, not even waiting for it to stop. In fact he had not waited for anything, not even for my consent. Probably he was of the opinion that "silence gives consent."

After I had seated myself he spread out a paper on my lap. "Have a Tribune, something to read all the way over." He evidently considered that he had scored a point by having a big paper to sell. Of course I bought it. He was so quick and so businesslike that I could not but admire him. That boy will never wait for something "to turn up."—L. M. Dithridge in American Boy.

The Timid Schoolmaster.

Great men when they were boys were often just like other boys, full of fun and mischief. The boy who became Professor Gillespie proved this. He noticed—trust boys for noticing—that the schoolmaster was in great fear of thunder and lightning. Even when the sky grew overcast he used to eye the windows tremblingly. The boys, led on by Gillespie, turned his weakness at times to their own advantage. When a holiday was wanted, they used to get a herd laddie to "work" a stick against the railings outside and in other ways to make a noise that might pass for distant thunder. When the boys heard the sounds, one would utter in a stage whisper, "Thunder!" Some would even cry out, "There's a flash!" By and by the teacher would say, "You had better go home, boys, for a thunderstorm is coming on, and it will rain in torrents." The lads obeyed.

Why He Ran.

Two boys busily engaged fishing in strictly preserved water, for which only one was provided with a permit, were quite suddenly confronted by the gamekeeper, whereupon one of them, hastily collecting his tackle, set off at his best speed across the fields, the keeper following. After covering three or four miles of very heavy country the angler seated himself and awaited the panting and angry water bailie.

"Do you know," asked the keeper, "that you are not allowed to fish in that water without permission?"

"Yes," answered the lad, "but I have permission. I have a pass."

"What did you run for, then?" said the astonished and irate keeper.

"Oh, just to let the other lad away. He had not a pass."—Scottish American.

RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE.

WILL DEBATE FEB. 7

SEVENTH DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP WILL BE DECIDED AT MOORHEAD.

RED LAKE FALLS AND FERGUS FALLS WILL FURNISH THE TEAMS.

Supt. F. A. Whitely, of the Red Lake Falls schools, met Supt. J. A. VanDyke of the Fergus Falls schools at Moorhead Saturday, and final arrangements were made for the debate between the High School teams which is to decide the 7th district championship.

The business men of Moorhead guarantee the expenses of the visiting teams, the judges and superintendents, besides furnishing the ball. Supt. Whiteley says when the Moorhead people found that there was a possibility of the debate being held across the river, at Fargo, they demonstrated what real hustle meant. Inside of an hour the committee had secured twenty-three signers for $5 each which clinched the matter and it was then and there voted to have the debate held in Fraternity hall, Moorhead, on Friday evening, Feb. 7. The hall in question has a seating capacity of 700.

Ex-Congressman S. G. Comstock has consented to act as chairman and a distinguished body of judges has been secured in the persons of Judge Amndon, of the U. S Circuit Court, Fargo: Pres. McFarland, of the state normal school at Valley City. N. D.; and Col. Purcell, the well known Whapeton attorney.

The judges are all from outside this state, and were thus chosen with a purpose. So intense has become the interest in these debates, that it would be hard to find a disinterested judge in northern Minnesota. That these gentlemen will discharge the delicate task so as to merit the continued confidence and good will of both sides, there can be no possibility of a doubt.

Each speaker will be allowed ten minutes for direct debate and five minutes in rebuttal. There will be two time keepers. One minute before time is up, the speaker will be warned by a sharp rap with a gavel. Two raps will be given at the expiration of the full time limit.

25c admission will be charged, proceeds going to Moorhead's High School.

Fergus Falls has arranged for a special train, and it is to be hoped Red Lake Falls can arrange for one. It will require the sale of no less than 100 tickets at $2.60 each, and considering how essential it will be to have our debaters backed by a fair showing of moral support, there ought be no difficulty in making the train a "go." The matter must be decided by Tuesday, so it will require some energetic hustling on the part of the committee having the matter in charge.

The high school winning the Moorhead debate will be champions of the 7th district, and will, according to the terms of the league's make-up, debate against the leading team of its adjoining district until the contest narrows to two teams who will meet in a final contest at the university. By this same arrangement Duluth and St. Cloud got their respective districts by default, no other school having entered in these districts.

The subject for all the debates is, "Resolved: That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished."

The first of the inter-district series of debates between schools represented in the state debating league, took place Friday night at the Duluth High School auditorium. St. Cloud won.

RED LAKE LANDS

STRONG PROBABILITY THAT THEY WILL SOON BE OPENED.

Thief River Falls News: C. L. Dobner is in receipt of letters from both Senators Nelson and Clapp concerning the opening of the Red Lake reservation. Senator Clapp says that he finds there is no opposition in Washington to the opening of the Red Lake reservation. He is of the opinion that action in regard to the Red Lake reservation will be taken at this session.

Senator Nelson also says that there is little or no opposition to the opening of the Red Lake lands and thinks that a provision can be attached to the Indian appropriation bill authorizing the president to appoint a committee to treat with the Indians.

CHRISTIANSEN-COAD.

Two of Red Lake Falls' Popular Young People Married on Tuesday Morning.

Mr. Ole Christiansen and Miss Katie Coad were married Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church, the Rev. P. Ansgar officiating. The bride was handsomely attired in white silk organdie and was a vision of loveliness. She carried bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Nellie Coad, whose gown was of soft blue organdie The groom, Ole Christiansen, and his best man, J R. Poulliot, were attired in conventional black. A goodly number of friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony.

The happy couple in the afternoon took the Great Northern passenger for St. Paul where they will spend their honeymoon.

The contracting parties have hosts of friends who wish them fair skies in the journey through life. A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50cp at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Immigrant Who Would Have Been Dollars Ahead By Keeping His Mouth Shut.

The ingenious father was bleeding Jim Hill for the price of their passage to St Paul. When the car reached Dugdale the pretty daughter was not very presentable after five days in the car but the proud father must introduce her to some railroad man and tell how smart she was. The R. AGREEMENT REACHED REGARDING NORTHERN MINNESOTA RESERVATIONS.

Suit by Great Northern Stockholders to Prevent Transfer of Stock—State Swamp Land Question Appealed to the Government—Flour Exports From Minneapolis Reach an Immense Total—General State News.

Washington, Jan. 26.—For the first time in five years something tangible and substantial has been agreed upon by the Minnesota delegation concerning the opening of the Chippewa Indian reservation in Northern Minnesota and the disposition of pine upon the Leech Lake and Red Lake reservations.

Mutual concessions on the part of the park promoters, the Cass Lake delegation and the Indian bureau have been practically made, and the Morris bill will be amended so as to meet the approval of all interests concerned.

The agreement reached at conferences held this week is:

Opening up to settlement of 500,000 acres of rich agricultural land; the disposition of 100,000 acres of pine lands to be sold in bank sale at not less than $5 per thousand; the reservation and maintenance of a federal forest reserve comprising Bear island, the Peninsula and Sugar Point in Leech lake and Star island in Cass lake, covering about 11,000 acres.

It is proposed to put the disposition of timber under the supervision of the department of forestry in the agricultural department.

TO PREVENT TRANSFER.

Suit Brought by Stockholders of the Great Northern.

Minneapolis, Jan. 24.—The attorneys of Milton L. Bouden and Sophia Barth Chapman filed a petition for an injunction in the state district court here against the Great Northern railway and its directors to prevent the transfer of its stock to the Northern Securities company. Bouden holds 400 and Mrs. Chapman 100 shares of Great Northern stock. The attorneys are the same as those who, in behalf of Peter Power of New York, are seeking in the United States district court to have the retirement of the Northern Pacific stock declared illegal. The bill of complaint sets up the well known facts as to the attempted merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington systems; alleges that it is contrary to the statutes of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and Washington, and intended to destroy all competition, and charges that the separate organizations maintained are merely nominal and intended to deceive the public, the real management and control being vested in the Northern Securities company.

ENGINE RUNS AWAY.

Curious Accident on the Milwaukee Railroad.

Spring Valley, Minn., Jan. 27.—An accident occurred on the Milwaukee road about five miles east of this city about 1 a. m. An engine of a westbound extra freight had to run to this place for water, and on returning the engine got beyond control and crashed into its train. The engineer reversed and told all to jump. The four persons in the cab made the leap safely, except the engineer and Frank Deyo of this place, who were injured. The engine, being reversed, started rapidly ahead. Engineer Koudson managed to crawl on again, but a wild ride of over two miles was made before the engine could be stopped. The engine and one car were badly wrecked.

APPEALS TO GOVERNMENT.

Minnesota Swamp Land Question May Be Settled.

Duluth, Jan. 26.—The secretary of the interior has postponed action on 16 cases pending in the Duluth land office, involving state lands. The state has been losing much land, which contestants proved was not swamp land, and the state wants to have the lands it has accepted as swamp be considered such and remain in its hands.

The state has appealed to the secretary of the interior to make an order to this effect and it would appear that he is impressed with the proposition. A question now arises whether an order to this effect would be retroactive and the state receive back lands that it has lost under the present system.

DATA ON FLOUR EXPORTS.

Minneapolis Ships Over One-Fifth of the Total.

Minneapolis, Jan. 25.—The Northwestern Miller has compiled some interesting data on flour exports, which shows that Minneapolis contributes 22¼ per cent of the total flour exports of this country.

During the 11 years ending with 1901, the millers of the United States exported over 176,000,000 barrels of flour, valued at $715,500,000, an average of 16,000,000 barrels per annum, valued at $[illegible]5,000,000.

The flour exports from Minneapolis for those years amounted to 39,000,000 barrels, an average of 3,547,000 barrels per annum.

North Star Press Association.

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—The North Star State Daily Press association at its annual meeting here elected the following officers: President, H. C. Plumley, Fargo; vice president, C. E. Wise, Mankato; secretary, W. E. Easton, Stillwater; treasurer, L. P. Hunt, Mankato; executive committee, Frank Dean, Owatonna; W. M. Fuller, Little Falls, and C. F. Macdonald, St. Cloud.

Pioneer Minnesota Woman Dead.

SPEND MILLIONS ON SNELLING

Congressman Stevens Thinks the Fort Will Be Enlarged.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Representative Stevens of the house military affairs committee is now of the opinion that the prospects for Fort Snelling to be made one of the great military posts of the country are much better than they were.

He has recently had a conference with the secretary of war and with members of the military board which is selecting camp sites, and he thinks that the army officers are undergoing a change of mind.

Mr. Stevens is confident that the outcome will be recommendations that several hundred acres be added to the Fort Snelling reservation. He thinks that it will be agreed to add cavalry and artillery detachments to Fort Snelling.

He says that the permanent programme for Fort Snelling, in his opinion, will involve an expenditure of at least $1,000,000 in improvements, and that the importance of the post will be vastly increased.

SAY HILL HAS SECOND SCHEME.

Friends of Northern Securities Company Say Project Cannot Fail.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Herald says:

Friends of the Northern Securities company intimated very strongly during the evening that J. J. Hill has made ample provision for the successful carrying out of the Northern Securities project, in case the supreme court decision should be adverse.

Whether this is through a trust company plan, as was rumored, or through some other medium, could not be ascertained, but the statement was made that the project was too important to be defeated and would inevitably succeed.

It was pointed out that a decision adverse to the Northern Securities company might have a most disastrous effect upon existing corporations elsewhere, concerning which no question of validity has been raised.

A case in point is the Pennsylvania company, which owns or leases several roads of a more or less competitive nature.

SUIT FOR $5,000 DAMAGES.

Farmer Asks Balm for Alleged Alienation of Wife's Affections.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Jan. 24.—John C. Smith, a Redwood county farmer living near Vesta, is defendant in a suit for $5,000 damages brought by Fred Heuert, a former employe of his, the allegation being that Smith alienated his wife's affections. Heuert was married last August and thereupon he and Mrs. Heuert took up their abode in a house on Smith's farm, working the latter. On Oct. 27 Mrs. Heuert left her husband, and on Dec. 23 she filed suit for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment.

BROKE ALL RECORDS.

Pine Output From Upper Mississippi and Wisconsin Valleys.

Minneapolis, Jan. 26.—All records were broken last year in the shipment of white pine from the Upper Mississippi and Wisconsin valleys.

The total for 1901 was 2,513,976,821 feet, against 2,135,252,719 the previous year. The increase was 378,724,102 feet.

In July, the biggest month of the year, the increase over the corresponding month of 1901 was 69,518,371 feet.

The smallest increase of a month was in December, 10,071,730 feet.

Date of Execution Fixed.

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—Governor Van Sant has fixed Tuesday, Feb. 18, as the date of execution of Andrew Tappar of Carver county, convicted of the murder of Rosa Mixa last July. It has been decided, however, to give his sister a hearing before the state pardon board. She wants Tapper's death sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

BIGGEST LUMBER DEAL.

Wisconsin Firm Sells Eighty Million Feet of White Pine.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 24.—The largest lumber deal ever made on the Menominee and one of the largest ever made in the history of the lumber trade has just been consummated. At a meeting of the representatives of the Wilbeck company and N. Luddington company of this city, two corporations whose officers are about the same, 80,000,000 feet of white pine lumber was sold to the Edward Hines Lumber company of Chicago. The total consideration was over $1,500,000. The sale includes all the lumber, lath and shingles to be cut by three large sawmills during 1902 and a surplus to be sawed by another mill.

FOUND BIG GOLD NUGGET.

One Weighing Over Forty Pounds and Worth $10,000 Is Discovered.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 27.—A 42-pound nugget worth upward of $10,000 is reported to have been found in California gulch, one of the tributaries of the famous Alder gulch in Madison county, where gold was first discovered in Montana in 1863.

This nugget is said to be the largest of three found at the same time by Thomas Ramon and Joseph Lefebra.

Ramon deposited at the United States assayer's office at Helena, two weeks ago, a gold nugget weighing 84 ounces and worth $1,100.

Receiver for Harvester Company.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 27.—Judge Fruit has, upon motion of Morris & Hartwell for the Exchange State bank, appointed Robert Lowaey receiver for the La Crosse Brown Harvester company, capitalized at $100,000. The case was based on an unpaid judgment of the bank in company notes given for money loaned for experiments.

Warren Sheaf:—Mr. H. Gunderson, of Oak Park, returned last Friday from a prospecting tour to Roseau, Lake of Woods and Rainy River. He went up Rainy River as far as Koochiching, on the American side, which he describes as an ideal site for a town, in fact he says he has not seen a finer one in either Europe or America. The Koochiching Falls, about 24 feet high, is a magnificent water power, by far the largest in the state. In time this water power will be developed and be a mighty factor in the development of that part of the state. A large city will eventually grow there, and Mr. Gunderson was determined to get in on the ground floor, hence he bought three good lots in the town. Nearly all property there is held by syndicates. Three railroads are now heading for the town. At present it is a very rough place and Mr. Gunderson did not consider on it safe to stay there over night.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

him of the power of speech. Where was now the cold and haughty front? It was gone. He sat in the chair, upright, his face purple, his eyes starting from his head, as one who hath some kind of fit.

The clergyman, still in his white surplice, looked on and trembled, for his old pupil was in a murderous frame of mind. There was no knowing whom he might murder. Besides, he had before this divined the true meaning of the visit to Lynn, and he foresaw ruin to himself as well as his patron.

Lord Fylingdale turned upon him suddenly and cursed him for a fool, an ass, a villain, a traitor. "You are in the plot," he said. "You knew all along. You have been suborned."

"My lord, my lord, have patience. What could I know? I was bidden to be here at 6 to marry you. I supposed that the bride was the fair Miss Molly. I could not tell. I know nothing. The lady was in a domino. It is irregular to be married in a domino, but your lordship wished it. What could I do?"

"Send for the key, then, and destroy the registers."

"Alas, my lord, it is now, you may be sure, all over the town that you have been married, and to Miss Molly."

"Where is Molly? Where is Molly then? Why did she keep away?"

The bride looked on with her mocking smile of triumph. "You may murder me," she said, "but you will not undo the marriage. I have been married, it is true, under a false name, but I am married none the less."

"You have brought ruin upon us all," her husband said, "ruin, headlong ruin. I am at my last guinea. I can raise no more money. I have no more credit. You yourself are as much discredited."

"If you are ruined," the lady replied, "you are rightly punished. How many vows have you made to me? How many lies have you invented to keep me quiet?"

"With submission, my lord," Mr. Purden stammered, for terror and bewilderment held him. "This is a bad morning's work. Let me advise that before the town is awake we leave the church and talk over the business in her ladyship's rooms or elsewhere. We must be private. To curse and to swear helps nothing, nor does it help to talk of a jealous revenge. Let us go."

It was with a tottering step, as if he was smitten with palsy, that the bridegroom walked down the aisle. The bride put up her domino and threw her hood over her head and so, with the parson, in silence, walked away from the church to her lodging, leaving the bridegroom to follow by himself. As yet the market people had not heard the news.

But the news spread. The clerk told his wife. "I come from the church," he said. "I have witnessed the marriage of Miss Molly—Captain Crowle's Molly—with the noble lord, who wears the star and looks so grand. A private wedding it was. I know not why. The parson was the Rev. Mr. Purden, he who reads the morning prayers and preaches on Sunday."

Then the clerk's wife, slipping on her apron—for such folk find the shelter of the apron for their hands necessary in conversation—ran round to the pump-room. No one was there as yet but the two dippers. To them she communicated the news.

Then she went on to the market and told all the people of the town who were chaffering there.

At 7 o'clock, the captain, walking in his garden, was surprised by the arrival of the horns, who stood before the house and performed a noble flourish. "What the devil is that for?" said the captain. Then there arrived the butchers with their marrowbones and cleavers and began to make their music with zeal. The captain went out to them. Up went their hats.

"Huzza for Miss Molly and her husband!"

"Her husband? What do you mean?"

"Her husband, his lordship; married this morning."

"What?" The captain stared in amazement. Then he rushed into the house. Molly was in the kitchen. "What is this?" he asked. "The butchers are here and the horns, and they swear you were married this morning, Molly."

"Why, captain, I have not been outside the door. I am not married, I assure you, and I begin to think now that I never shall be married."

The captain went out and dismissed the musicians, but the thing troubled him, and he was already sick at heart on account of the last night's discourse and its discoveries.

CHAPTER XV.

A NEW COMPACT.

WHAT followed, by invention and design of the pious ecclesiastic Mr. Purden, was a villainy even greater than that at first designed, more daring, more cruel. The bride, accompanied by the minister officiating in the late ceremony, walked back to her lodging. She was still exultant in the first glow and triumph of her revenge. He, on the other hand, walked downcast, stealthily glancing at his companion, his big head moving sideways like the head of a bear, his sallow cheeks paler than was customary. The bridegroom, for his part, flung himself into his chair and was carried to the lady's lodging. A strange wedding procession!

She threw off her cloak and her domino and stood before her newly made lord, her eyes bright, her face flushed, her lips quivering. She was filled with revenge half satiated, but revenge can never be wholly satisfied, and with the triumph of victory.

"I have won," she said. "You tried to deceive me again, Ludovic, but I have won. You have been caught in your own toils."

He took the nearest chair, sitting down in silence, but his face was dark. As she looked upon him some of the triumph died out of her eyes; her cheek lost its glow; she began to be frightened. What would he say or do next? As for his reverence, he stood within the door as if ready for instant flight. Indeed there was cause for uncertainty because the man was desperate, and his sword was at his side.

"Silence," he said, "or I may kill you!"

Then there was silence. The other two did not speak. The lady threw herself upon the sofa, twisting her fingers nervously.

"You have married me, you say. You shall be a happy wife. You cannot imagine how happy you will be."

In a contest of tongues the woman has the best of it.

"So long as you, my lord, enjoy the same happiness or even greater I shall not repine. You intended my happiness in another way."

"You have destroyed my last chance. It is a good beginning."

"And ending, my lord. The fond mistress whom you have fooled so long becomes the wife. It is not the duty of a wife to provide for her husband. Nor will the Countess of Fylingdale allow the earl to enter her house. She will want the proceeds of her bank herself. In a word, my lord, you are not only my husband, but you are now privileged to provide for yourself."

He sprang to his feet and fell to common and violent cursing, invoking the immediate and miraculous intervention of that Power which he had all his life insulted and defied. The lady received the torrent without a word. What can one say in reply to a man who only curses? But she was afraid of him; his words were like blows. The headlong rage of the man cowed her; she bent her head and covered her face with her hands.

Then Mr. Purden ventured to interfere. "Let me speak," he said. "The thing is done. It cannot be undone. Would it not be better to make the best of it? Does it help any of us—does it help your lordship—to revile and to threaten?"

The bridegroom turned upon him savagely. "You to speak!" he said. "You are too mealy mouthed and too virtuous even to tear up a page from a register."

"I do not wish to be unfrocked or to be sent to the plantations, my lord. Meantime it would be doing you the worst service in the world if I were to tear out that page."

"Oh, you talk! You always talk!"

"Of old, my lord, I have sometimes talked to some purpose."

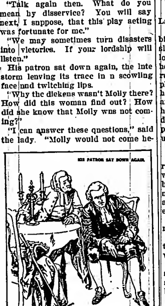
"Talk again then. What do you mean by disservice? You will say next, I suppose, that this play acting was fortunate for me."

"We may sometimes turn disasters into victories. If your lordship will listen."

His patron sat down again, the late storm leaving its trace in a scowling face and twitching lips.

"Why the dickens wasn't Molly there? How did this woman find out? How did she know that Molly was not coming?"

"I can answer these questions," said the lady. "Molly would not come because she learned last night, just in time, certain facts in the private life of the bridegroom."



HIS PATRON SAT DOWN AGAIN.

"What?" Lord Fylingdale betrayed his terror. "She has heard? What has she heard?"

He had not received Molly's letter nor had he opened the captain's.

"More than enough. You have lost your bride and her fortune. I might have warned you, but I preferred to take her place."

"What has she heard?"

"Apparently all that there is to be heard. Not, of course, all that could be told if Mr. Purden and I were to speak. Merely things of public notoriety. That you are a gambler and a rake; that you have ruined many; that you are ruined yourself—quite enough for a girl of her class to learn. In our rank we want much more before we turn our back upon a man. I myself know much more. Yet I have married you."

"She has heard," Lord Fylingdale repeated.

"Dear, dear!" said the parson. "All this is most unfortunate—most unfortunate. Your lordship had already lost your bride—lost her," he repeated. "Lost her and her fortune. Is there no way out?"

"Who brought these reports? Show me the man!"

"Ta-ta-ta! You need not bluster, Ludovic. Reports of this kind are in the air; they cling to your name; they travel with you. What? The notorious Lord Fylingdale? They have come, you see, at last, even to this unfashionable corner of the island. They are here, although we have done so much to declare your virtues. Acknowledge that you have been fortunate so far."

"Are these reports your doing, madam? Is this a part of your infernal jealousy?"

"I do not know who put them about. It is not likely that I should start such reports, especially after the scandal at Bath. I am, in fact, like his reverence here, too much involved myself. Oh, we have beautiful characters—all three of us."

"Who told Molly?"

"I say that I know nothing. She has been warned. That is all I can tell you, and she has been advised to take no further steps until full explanations have been made in answer to these rumors."

"Full explanations," repeated Mr. Purden. "Dear, dear! Most unfortunate—most unfortunate."

"Your lordship can refer to his reverence here, or to the admirable Semple, or to the immaculate Sir Harry, or to the colonel, that man of nice and well known honor, for your character. But who will give them a character? Understand," she said, facing him, "you had lost your bride before you got out of bed this morning. Your only chance is to imitate the example of Tom Rising and to carry her off, and she will then stick a knife between your ribs, as she intended to do to that worthy gentleman. But, no; I forgot. You cannot do that. You are already married."

His reverence again interposed. "With submission, my lord, some explanations will be asked. It will not certainly be convenient to offer any. There is, however, one way, and only one, that I can suggest." He looked at the Lady Anastasia. "It will be perhaps at first distasteful to her ladyship. It has, however, the very great advantage of securing the fortune, which, I take it, is what your lordship chiefly desires. As regards the girl, she is, in point of manners and appearance, so far beneath your lordship's notice that we need not consider her in the matter."

"I care nothing about the girl. But hang me if I understand one single syllable of what you mean—or how you can secure the fortune without the girl."

"A moment. Madam saw her way to the revenge of jealousy. She took the place of the bride, and she was married as Miss Molly. She signed the name of Molly Miller; the license was in that name. The clerk who was present has, I am sure, already carried the news all over the place. We have the evidence, therefore, of the bridegroom, the parson, the clerk, the license and the registers. Who is to prove that the real Molly was at home all the time? Captain Crowle, perhaps, though I doubt. The girl herself— But who will believe her? My lord, you have married Miss Molly and not the Lady Anastasia."

"What then?"

"You have only to claim your bride."

"Sir, you forget that I am the bride," Lady Anastasia interposed quickly.

Mr. Purden bowed and smiled, rubbing his hands softly. "With submission, madam. I do not advise that his lordship should carry her off nor that he should claim her ad mensam et thorum, as we scholars say. His principles would not, I am sure, allow that he should carry off an unmarried woman. Not at all. He will leave her with her friends. Indeed he would prefer to do so. I suggest only that we should proclaim the marriage and lay hands upon the fortune."

"And what am I to be?"

"His lordship's best friend. You will rescue him in his deepest need; you will restore him to affluence. It will be a service, madam, of the purest and most disinterested affection, instead of an ugly and ruinous revenge. Heavens, can you hesitate?"

They both looked at Anastasia, who made no response, her eyes in her lap.

"The trick will lie with us three," the tempter went on. "Neither of us will reveal it."

"As regards jealousy, Anastasia," said Fylingdale, "the girl will be here, and everything will continue just as before."

She threw up her arms and sprang to her feet. "Oh," she cried, "it is the most monstrous villainy!"

"We need not think of the girl. We must think of ourselves."

"The fortune is immense, Anastasia. It is ridiculous that the girl should have so much. We will leave her a competence, and there are the jewels."

THE SUNNY SOUTH
DEVOTED TO LITERATURE ROMANCE FACT AND FICTION

Fifty Cents a Year—Less Than a Penny a Number.

THE SOUTH'S LITERARY WEEKLY

Published at Atlanta, Ga.—Circulation Over 50,000.

The SUNNY SOUTH is the Great Literary Weekly of the South. It is devoted to Literature, Romance, Fact and Fiction, and gives the best of all that is current in its field. Among its contributors the most noted southern writers appear—Joel Chandler Harris, Harry Stillwell Edwards and others of growing fame. Serial stories from Anthony Hope, Maurice Thompson, Sidney R. Crockett, Mrs. George Corbett and Arthur W. Marchmont have appeared, and others are in waiting from the pen of authors of national note. A short story contest brought out nearly five hundred splendid short stories, all worthy a place in The SUNNY SOUTH'S readable columns. Other contests are contemplated that will successfully exploit the ripening field of talent that only needs such fostering to illustrate the wealth that is shy to assert itself.

The SUNNY SOUTH looms with the life of the great south. The genial sunshine warms everything into activity and the season is never cold enough to check the hand of industry. The paper comes fragrant with the breath of the magnolia and pine, and gives out the very air of the orange, palm and bay. The beauty and pathos, the romance and mystery of the land where the corn stores up the golden sunshine and the cotton whitens in the moonlight, will be given in the well-filled columns of this fascinating weekly.

The subscription price is Only Fifty Cents a year, alike to all persons, agents, newspapers, postmasters and every one else. Clubs of five, accompanied by the full $2.50, entitle the club raiser to the paper one year gratis.

Send on a Postal Card the names of six of your neighbors who would appreciate the opportunity to read a copy of The Sunny South, and one sample will be mailed free. You can get your club of five out of those very people.

The SUNNY SOUTH enters over 50,000 American homes once and during 190 is sure to be welcomed in fully as many more homes, as the great weekly feast of good things the Southern Literary Weekly, whose columns for 1902 will be the most readable of all the papers that come to you.

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

—BY—

PHIL A. SAUFER.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

RESULTS OF HUSTLING.

Despatches from Washington indicate that the Minnesota delegation has agreed upon matters relative to the opening of the Chippewa Indian reservatinn near Cass Lake, and the disposition uf the pine upon the Leech Lake and Red Lake reservations. This state uf affairs has been brought about largely by the efforts of the Cass Lake and Walker Commercial Clubs. At the same time the National Park scheme gets a quietus.

Not many months ago it was given out that nothing in the way of opening of reservations in Minnesota would be dune until the mixup on pine matters had been straighened out, and a new system of estimating adopted. Notwithstanding this attitude of the department, the hard work of the commercial clubs of comparatively unimportant Cass Lake and Walker, aided by their powerful allies in Duluth, who had made common cause with them on the national park opposition, has apparentiy served to overcome all difficultics and succeeded in a big double-headed undertaking that would look furmidable enough to dismay the most sanguine. Another illustration of what can be accomplished by live local Boards of Trade.

The agreement reached at conferences held this week is: Opening up to settlement of 500,000 acres of rich agricultural land; the disposition of 100,000 acres of pine lands to be sold in bank sale at not less than $5 per thousand; the reservation and maintenance of a federal forest reserve comprising Bear island, the Peninsula and Sugar point in Leech Lake and Star Island in Cass Lake, covering about 11,000 acres. It is proposed to put the disposition of timber under the supervision of the department of forestry in the agricultural department. On these lines the Morris bill will be amended and receive the united support of the Minnesota delegation.

THE OTHER SIDE.

The American Export Association has held the boards long enough, in the opinion of the "League uf Domestic Producers," which asserts the effort to establish free trade with Cuba is for the benefit uf the sugar trust and the tobacco trust. This is what they say:

This plea fur "Poor Cuba" is simply the beginning. If it is granted, it will mean an avalanche of tropical competion that will ruin every existing sugar cane plantation or sugar beet farm, and every sugar factory in the United States, utterly destroy our cigar leaf tobacco culture, transfer to Cuba and the Philippines the entire cigar manufacturing business uf the states and flood the dumestic market with South American wool, with tropical cotton and rice, as well as fruits, vegetables, nuts, etc.

Admiral Schley has Dewey's experience to guide him in the present head-turning crisis.

The editor of the East Grand Forks Valley View would like to see the High School debating team of his town take the conceit out of Red Lake Falls, but says he doesn't know if they have one. We pass them up. A team that couldn't unmistakably make its presence maoifest is no match for ours.

The smallpox report of the Minnesota state board of health for the week ending Jan. 20, shows 392 new cases over the previous week. Two deaths are reported, one from Perham village, Ottertail county, and one from Godfrey township, Polk county. New cases are reported from 86 localities in 49 counties, compared with 93 localities in 47 counties last week.

We publish elsewhere to-day the announcement of the Sunny South, the great weekly literary periodical of the Southern States. Published in Atlanta, Georgia, in the heart of the great south, it bears upon it the impress of its birthplace and environment. For more than twenty years the Sunny South has been a recognized factor in the field of Southern literature. It was established more than a quarter of a century ago as a Southern story paper and was published for a long time as a weekly and then as a monthiy.

Here ic a proposed reform beginning at the wrnng end: Commissioner Jones has sent to the ageots in charge of nearly every Indian reservation a circular letter directing him to forbid, in the name of the interior department, the wearing of long hair by the male Indians under his charge and the painting of their faces by Indians of either sex. Now isn't this discriminatiun against the Indian? So long as his white brother indulges in the luxury of long hair and an occasional "touch up" from the tonsorialist, and the white sister continues to tint her beauteous check, the same privileges should in justice be continued to the Red Man.

Thief River Falls News: The Board of Trade of Red Lake Falls is composed of some very ignorant men on the subject of water power. When the resolutions were passed saying that the proposed luck and dam would entirely ruin water power in the Red Lake river, it came about as near telling the truth as it did when it made the statement that Red Lake Falls water power is the second largest in the state, being exceeded unly by that at Minneapolis. As a matter of fact there are hundreds larger than that at Red Lake Falls.

Such dense ignorance as is displayed by John Eastman, the News editor, in the above paragraph, is almost as marvelous as our water powers themselves. John will learn after a while that Red Lake Falls' water power is the second largest in the state. He should know it now, having lived in the county for several years. But because Thief River Falls happens to have a little water power that is like a drop of water compared to the ocean when placed along side of ours, he would have the public believe we are not telling the truth about our wonderful water power. It strikes us as haviog resulted from a fit of jealously which no doubt has died away, ere this. In the mean time we would like to have him name the "hundreds" of water powers in Minnesuta larger than that at Red Lake Falls. We will give him a $50 check if he can do it and prove it.

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY MOTHER KATHERINE

A Staff contributor, who will write of every day affairs—the little units that go to make up the sum total of existence. Mother Katherine writes exclusively for THE GAZETTE. She is a mother who presides over an ideal home. A letter addressed to her in care of The Gazette will reach her. She is worthy of confidence.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children,—

Today I want to talk to you about a good man whose birthday on Jan. 29 there is much talk of making a national holiday. That man was loved by everyune because he was kind to everyone. The hand of an assassin felled him to earth and a nation mourned for its chief. You all know of whom I speak—our late lamented president. He left a noble example to great and small, and its keynote was KINDNESS. When he was hovering between life and death how everyone prayed that so good a chief be spared. But God willed otherwise and an example was given of an ideal death. Try to think of these things in connection with the observance of his birthday anniversary and resolve that it were better far to be kind than to be great or rich. You can do a kind thing for some one every day no matter how little you are. Try it and see how happy you will be. I'll have a story for you next time, my dears, and I hope you will bear with me in this little sermoo.

HOUSEHOLD.

A little vinegar added to boiling beef will make it tender.

Nuw and again one hears people asking how to make a calla lily bloom. If the lily can be placed in a south window and the flower pot be set in a dish which hot water will not harm the difficulty is about overcome. Pour hot water into outer dish frequently but do not keep so wet that the ground will sour. Blossoms will be a natural consequence.

Eggs boiled one half hour can be eaten by the weakest of persons without injury to the digestive organs.

If the oven be very hot when beef roast if first put in the juices will be retained as the heat hardens and browns the outside.

CELEBRATION OF GALA DAYS.

Those who are wont to look back upon their youth will linger fondly on the memory of red letter days. We can do a great deal to make red letter days for those about us.

In a home, even the busiest mother can do something especially pleasing just because it is somebody's birthday. Children so soon become imbued with the spirit of the day. They can be taught to arrange little tokens for oneanother. Even the little tots who do not go to school will enjoy the excitement of preparing a surprise for those who are at school all day. A mother need not even put aside her work for a mere suggestion from her will be enough to set the dear busy-bodies at work. Sometimes papa can be "surprised." Many times a child is called naughty by an eloer when a word or a little help as to a change of play would content this apparantly unruly member for at least an hour or two. Therefore I believe in makiog the most of every day in the calendar which gives us an opportunity. I recall about a man who after being married was asked why he never was seen at the club. He said: "Why that little wife of mine has an anniversary of some kind to celebrate every evening so I cannot get away."

There are times in every household when sorrows hover over us, in such times the thought of sunshine and mirth seems not for us. But let us be generous even when suffering and perhaps in thinking of others our own weight will be less heavy to bear.

GOOD BOOKS

One day I chanced upon a charming young lady, a graduate of the Dubuque high school, and found her to be reading a very poor sort of book. Having the right of an elderly friend I spoke to her of the waste of time and the degrading teodencies in reading such a book. "Well, but I cannot get hold of the other kind," she said. "Then I implore you do not read at all," I begged. Mothers, be just as careful as to the books your little ones read as you are of the food that they eat. Yes, even more so. A mind poisoned with poor, immoral or sensational reading is much harder to cleanse than a body run down with impure food is to cure.

This column will gladly furnish lists of books for old and young.

Once a taste for the sensational litrature is acquired, good classical reading has no charm. I contend that if children are furnished with good wholesome reading matter from yonth there will be no desire for the books which do so much harm. Again I contend that if children are read to and taught to rely upon good books for amusement they will be content to remain at home evenings. They will turn to the book shelves instead of running the streets for entertainment. Try it parents. I have tried it and succeeded. You will find that your girls and boys will disdain searching any but the best and purest writings and what a comfort it is to feel that you can trust them.

JANUARY 29.

On January 29 when we are reminded of the sad catastrophy which shrouded the hearts of the American people we can but whisper, why was McKinley so dearly loved? The answer resounds from far and near, "Because be was kind." A nation loved him, generations will revere his memory, and the two words, "Be kind," speak the example he gave up to the time of his noble death.

Let us emulate his example. We can be kind to some one every day and make the world the better and brighter.

Thief River Falls has appropriated $500 to help along the movemeot for the opeoiog of the reservatioo and sent Mayor Kratkn to preseot its claims. This was a wise move on the part of the people up the river. Personal representative is always the most effective.

To the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota:

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of, the construction of the ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health, convenience and welfare require the establishment and construction of a ditch along the following described route, running in the towns of Garnes and Emardville in said County of Red Lake and the construction of which will be of public benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said public ditch is as follows:

Ed. Havik sold a nice bunch of beef steers to Andrew Stovern of McIntosh and realized a nice litte sum of money for them. Even when prices are low, who says beef raising does not pay in Red Lake county?

Enghret Hova and W. A. Swanson were among those that sampled the walking to McIntosh Friday, and also had the pleasure of sampling it back Saturday against the wind and a nice little 22 degrees below zero nipping at the nose.

Out here on the plains how we do miss those dear old hills, and the happy hurrah cries of the merry young folks as they used to go coasting down the hillsides, as we all have more or less gone through in our happy childhood days.

The women folks around here are getting to be very fearless and bold of late. The other day one of them espied a poor little mouse trying to crawl up the wall. She flew to the woodbox and grabbing the biggest stick she could find, returned to wilfully murder the innocent little creature. She aimed a most deadly blow at the little thing but missed her mark. The blow shook the whole house and the mouse lost its footing, falling to the floor. "There" said the woman, "I thought I would fix you at last." And returned to the box with her weapon, pale as a ghost, though proud of the deed she had done. About this time the poor little mouse picked herself up and made for a safe corner.

Last Thursday there was another meeting held at G. Gunstelnson's place for the purpose of coming to some understanding as to the church affair business, in regard to the site and erection of a church. It was finally decided that the old site should be kept and that lumber should be procured as soon as possible. How long this resolution may stand is merely a question of a little time. It should be understood that this is important business and should not be settled in haste. Would it not be wise to take into consideration the length and width of the district tributary to the church from east to west, from north to south? Not alone what the present indications are, but also what they are likely to be in the future. Then let the center be the site, and by so doing we will avoid all further disputes. Churches cannot be built without considerable cost to the community, therefore it behooves that common sense be used. And last but not least let the old rule, "Equality for all" be the foundation upon which it is built.

INCIDENTS.

A certain crowd of girls are looking for compliments. If you have any to spare we would like to see them on the bulletin board.

Several of the boys went fishing for shinny sticks in the attic but were disappointed.

The Sophomores have challenged the Juniors for a debate, but the Juniors declined.

The school has been very noisy of late.

One of the boys while passing out pulled another boy's ear and was ordered back to his seat.

LITERARY WORK.

The joint debate between Red Lake Falls and Fergus Falls will be held at Moorhead, Feb. 7. If three hundred and twenty dollars can be guaranteed there will be a special train.

At the last program the Athenians received 35 points.

Don't forget next Friday's debate between the Spartans and Athenians. "Resolved that Industrial combinations favor the best interests of the United States."

MOORHEAD SPECIAL.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY RED LAKE FALLS ENTHUSIASTS WILL GO.

SPECIAL LEAVES G. N. DEPOT HERE FRIDAY ABOUT 1:30 P. M.

Everything is now arranged for the Great Northern special which will run from this city to Moorhead on account of the debate between the Red Lake Falls and Fergus Falls High Schools.

One hundred and fifty tickets have been sold to date. The train will leave the Great Northern depot about 1:30 p.m. tomorrow, and will reach Moorhead about five, making a stop at Crookston to take on a few passengers who are sufficiently interested in the debate to make the trip. The train will leave Moorhead for the return run at 11:30 o'clock and Agent Thomas says he expects the run to be made in about three and a half hours. A committee has been appointed to look after the decoration of the train, and if seemingly endless lengths of purple and yellow tastefully arranged can do it, Red Lake Falls will show one of the finest looking specials ever pulled over Jim Hill's system. There will be three coaches.

The Red Lake Falls band will head the procession, and Prof Frick is confident of being able to show the Moorhead something in the way of music.

The Red Lake Falls debaters are Leland Healy, Rachel Taylor and Pauline Neiland; Eleanor Findeisen, alternate. The Fergus Falls debaters: H. W. Braatlein, Colvin G. Butler and Hans A. Hanson; alternate, Leonard Nelson.

The committee on decorations requests all excursionists to wear the school colors—yellow and purple.

TROUBLE AT ROLLIS.

Citizens up in Arms Against U. S. Commissioner Allen W. Clark.

There is a great deal of bad feeling existing in the Rollis country as to whether or not Allen W. Clark shall retain his appointment as United States commissioner. The charge against Clark is that he has made himself very obnoxious in starting contests against numerous settlers up there, and particular mention is made of the case in which Clark's aged mother contested another settler. A petition signed by a large number of residents up there was sent to Judge Lochren at St. Paul, asking that Clark be removed, and the judge has sent word to Clark to show cause why he should not be removed. Clark has accordingly circulated a petition in his own behalf.

Further reports say that a petition signed by 150 men has been sent to Washington saying that if Clark is not removed by the authorities he will be removed by a dose of cold lead.

ENDS A LIFE OF MISERY.

Unknown Man Commits Suicide at Bemidji, Minn.

"Expecting to end my existence tonight, I write these lines in explanation of the deed.

"On account of a peculiar physical defect, my life has been one of misery, both to myself and to those with whom I have lived.

"In fact, I think it is my duty to my fellow man, as a firm believer in the Christian religion. Wish no effort to be made to find relatives."

He was about 25 years old, six feet tall and dark.

A MERGER.

SCHMITZ BROTHERS BUY OUT THE OPPOSITION BRICK YARD.

Friday afternoon last Schmitz Bros. purchased from Dyrhaug & Sortedahl the North Side Brick Yard, and at once began the removal of the machinery to their yards near the saw mill. The price paid for the yards was $1,600, $800 less than sold for when the first transfer was made about a year ago.

John Schmitz informs The Gazette that the capacity of their yards will be doubled, and the output the coming season will be not far from two million brick. The fine quality and superior finish of the Red Lake Falls brick has won for them a ready sale both at home and abroad, and the disposition of the full output will be an easy matter. In fact the home demand the coming season will be large. The St. Joseph's church academy, the Bank of Red Lake Falls' new structure and the new 50x45 addition which will be erected by Frank E. Hunt, facing on 2d street, and other buildings which are being planned for the coming season will furnish a good home demand for the product.

Miss Woodall Resigns

The Crookston Times says: Miss Emma Woodall, of this city, has tendered her resignation to the board of education and it has been accepted. Miss Woodall resigns on account of ill health. The people of the city will greatly regret to learn of Miss Woodall's resignation. She has been in the schools for several years and is one of the most skillful primary teachers of the many that Crookston has been fortunate in securing, and the board of education accept her resignation with great regret.

The Gazette concurs in all as stated above, except in the belief that "ill health" is the cause of Miss Woodall's resignation. We think the little fellow with an arrow knows better, and that there is a much more agreeable finale in store.

Krueger-Gerlach.

On Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 30, Mr. Wm. H. Krueger and Miss Louise J. Gerlach were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, at the German Lutheran church of Wylie, according to the rites of the Lutheran church, the Rev. Val Kern officiating. At 2:30 the bridal party marched down the aisle to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, and the bride was given away by her father, Daniel Gerlach.

The bride wore a gown of white silk organdie and carried bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Minnie Gerlach. Charles Gerlach, a cousin of the bride, was groomsman.

At 4 p. m. a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gerlach, which was attended by 200 guests. A feature of the bridal procession to and from the church were the handsomely decorated conveyances headed by two young men mounted on prancing and gaily decorated steeds, after a custom in vogue in Germany and dear to the German heart.

The groom is one of the popular young business men of Red Lake Falls, in company with Jos. Hayton conducting the Grand View hotel, and the bride is one of the popular belles of Wylie.

The young people were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents.

REALESTATE MOVES

THE RED LAKE COUNTY MARKET CONTINUES IN A HEALTHY CONDITION.

346 INSTRUMENTS RECORDED IN THE REGISTER OF DEEDS OFFICE FOR JANUARY.

January is not considered a good month in the realestate line. The ground is usually covered with snow and prospective investors in farm properties are generally cautious about buying without an opportunity for thorough investigation of the quality of the soil. However, Red Lake county has no poor soil and the people of the world at large are beginning to realize this fact, so that the realestate activity continues at an unprecedented rate During January there were recorded in the register of deeds' office 346 instruments, divided as follows:

Warranty deeds	75
Quit claim	13
Mortgage	85
Assignments	20
Satisfactions	60
Patents	13
Miscellaneous	77

The realestate men of the city say that indications points to an influx of settlers in the spring greater than any movement ever before recorded for this section. Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois seem to furnish the greater number of immigrants.

Church Notes.

Feb. 3 is the day of St. Blaise, the patron saint of wool-workers and against diseases of the throat, and his festival was formerly observed in English manufacturing centers as a holiday. The day was observed at St. Mary's church by nine o'clock mass, and at 4:30 p. m. the ceremony of blessing of throats was performed.

Feb. 5 is the anniversary of the birth in 1725 of James Otis, the American orator and patriot, of Ole Bull, the Norwegian violinist, in 1810; of Dwight Lyman Moody, the evangelist, in 1837, also St. Agatha's Day, who was cruelly tortured to death and her sufferings have afforded much scope for painters. There is an old Saxon tradition that birds began to sing on that day. She is the patron saint of Malta.

Last Sabbath was Sexagisma Sunday, the second Sunday before Ash Wednesday, the latter being the beginning of Lent. The term is from Latin and means "Sixtieth" being in round numbers sixty days before Easter and was duly observed in the Catholic churches here, by the blessing of candles and distribution of them to the congregation. Feb. 2 is also Candlemas, or the Purification of the Blessed Virgin, and is celebrated in Anglican, Catholic and Greek churches. This, being the fortieth day after the birth of Christ, is the day on which, under the Levitical rules, the purification of the mother and the presentation of the child should occur. In Europe the day is regarded with earnestness because of its being a weather guide, as outlined in verse:

"If Candlemas day be fair and bright.
Winter will take another flight;
But if Candlemas day be clouds and rain,
Winter has gone and will not come again."

The day is known in America as ground hog day. The tradition is that if that animal comes our of his hole and sees the snow on the ground he walks about, but if the sun shines and he sees his shadow he returns to his hole and remains six weeks.

BARBED WIRE TELEPHONE.

Farmers Near Little Falls Have a Novel System of Communication.

Sheriff Tanner made a trip into the country a few days ago in the vicinity of Ft. Ripley, says the Little Falls Transcript. About five miles northeast of that village he found that telephone communication was carried on among twelve different farmers' families in that region. The wire used for the purpose was common barbed wire. This was stretched from one farm to another, and attached to trees or whatever was convenient for the purpose. Mr. Tanner tried the service and found that conversation could be carried on as easily from one farm to another as over city telephones. The progressive, up-to-date farmers of this community will keep up to the times.

THREE HUNDRED GIRLS STRIKE.

Object to Reduction of Pay Contrary to Agreement.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Over 300 girls employed in the garment manufacturing department of Gulterman Bros. quit work shortly after noon Friday and marched in a body to Federation hall to talk over their grievances and perfect their organization.

The difficulty arose over two girls between placed on the button-hole machine at 3 cents a hundred. The regular rate paid for such work is 5 cents and the cut was contrary to the agreements made with the company.

St. Paul Church Destroyed by Fire.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The People's church, corner of Pleasant avenue and Chestnut street, was completely gutted by fire. The interior, from the roof to the basement, was entirely destroyed, and, although the walls were left standing, the directors believe they will have to be pulled down. The loss will probably amount to $80,000. The building and contents were insured for $50,000. The exact cause of the fire is a mystery, and the only plausible solution that is offered is that it was caused by some defect in the electrical wiring of the building.

BAKING POWDER AGAIN.

Alum Goods That Masquerade as "High-Class" Powders.

Retailers' Journal, Chicago.

In previous analysis we have shown that the 25 cent alum baking powders are an imposition, both on the consumer and the retailer, as the difference in cost of manufacture of a 10 cent and a 25-cent one is not more than one cent a pound.

There is the Calumet baking powder, an alum powder with about one cent's worth of phosphate added to it, and which retails for 25 cents. It is not worth more than 10 or 11 cents, which we showed by analysis. In order to sell this powder at all they are now preparing a premium scheme and are going to give away hairpins and other cheap trash that may be attractive to the eye and cover up their transactions. They can well afford to give 15 cents' worth of goods with every pound of baking powder they sell.

If alum baking powder is used at all, 10 cents is a reasonable price, as alum costs only two cents a pound, which leaves the manufacturer a fair profit. While we know that cream of tartar baking powders sell at higher prices than others, we also know that chemically pure cream of tartar used in the highest grade powders costs at least twelve times more than alum.

BECAUSE OF MERGER FIGHT.

Burlington Orders Railroad Construction in Montana Stopped.

Helena, Mon., Feb. 1.—A special from Great Falls says that information was received there from the headquarters of the Burlington system that orders have been issued to stop all work now in progress on the branch between this point and Billings.

There is said to be no secret concerning the reason for this cessation of work, it being freely admitted that the fight which is at present being waged against the railroad merger by Governor Van Sant and others is responsible for the orders.

This is conceded to be responsible information from the fact that if the merger proposition were successfully opposed, the Great Northern and Burlington, the two roads concerned in the construction of the new line, might not desire any such arrangements, and even if they did conditions might arise which would prevent the road being built or paid for under such terms.

EXPECTED PRICE TO ADVANCE.

Minnesota Farmers Store Potatoes and Are Disappointed.

Anoka, Minn., Feb. 3.—It is estimated that between one third and one-half of the entire crop of potatoes raised last year in this county are still in roothouses and cellars. Farmers have been looking for very high prices this spring, and the gradual decline the last six weeks has been a disappointment. However, Southern seed stock is still bringing 75 cents a bushel and white stock 50 cents. The loss from shrinkage is about 10 per cent. Unless prices soar later those who stored their potatoes will be losers by about 30 per cent.

SUIT FOR UNPAID TAXES.

Minnesota Seeks to Collect $47,000 From the Western Union.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—Suit has been brought in the Ramsey county district court by the State of Minnesota against the Western Union Telegraph company to enforce payment of the personal property taxes of the company for 1889 and 1900, amounting in all to $47,447.95, which the company has refused to pay on the ground that the assessed valuation of its property as fixed by the state board of equalization is excessive and out of proportion with other taxes of those years.

Prominent Minnesota Workman Dead.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—Olaf Olson, grand recorder of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, died at St. Joseph's hospital after an illness lasting several weeks. He was removed to the hospital from his residence, 275 Nelson avenue, some days ago critically ill with typhoid fever and in spite of the best medical attendance gradually sank until the end came at 7 o'clock. He formerly resided at Willmar.

FOR A COLONY OF NEGROES.

Options Being Secured on Lands in Mills County, Ia.

Hastings, Ia., Feb. 3.—A negro from Southern Alabama has been in this county for the past three days getting options on large tracts of the finest land in Mills county, five miles east of Tabor. The object of buying so large a tract of land is to colonize negroes for farming and gardening purposes and to place their products on the Omaha markets.

He has been given the option on several of the finest farms in the county and for some of the land he agrees to pay as high as $200 an acre.

Almost Reached the Century Mark.

Milwaukee, Feb. 3.—Michael O'Brien, who would have been 100 years old had he lived until Aug. 4 next, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Singleton, on Potter avenue. Mr. O'Brien was a former well known lead miner, having been interested for many years in a section known as the "New Diggins," near Wyoming, Wis. Mr. O'Brien's longevity of Ivll angawrH8to O'Brien's longevity was said to be due to regular habits of living.

A telephone girl who knows suggests these rules for people who use the telephone. If you have a telephone in your office or store, ring up "Central" and then go wait on a customer. Always speak in an under tone, in order to make "Central" ask you over what you want. If she does not hear you, tell her to "wake up" or take the "cotton out of her ears." Take your time answering your bell, or, what is better, do not answer it at all, but in half an hour ring up and ask who called you, and get mad if "Central" has forgotten who it was. She has nothing to do but remember. Allow everybody who wants to, to use the telephone. Hang the receiver big end up as in this way it gets full of dust, which makes another cause for complaint. Bang on the transmitter with a lead pencil as though you intended to knock it through the wall. This will invariably make it talk better.—Nit. Refuse to pay toll messages and if you are on a line with someone always listen to their conversation and be sure to want to use the line while they are using it. Whenever you see the manager tell him that if they cannot give you a better telephone or get that one fixed you will throw it out of the window. When the inspector comes deny that you have ever complained of the telephone, and say that it works like a charm.

FINALLY ADJUSTED

CONTROVERSY BETWEEN IRON RANGE ROAD AND STATE OF MINNESOTA.

State Delegation at Washington Agrees on a Plan for Opening Reservations. Governor Van Sant Refuses to "Let Up" on the Railroad Combine—Serious Blazes Occur at Different Points—State News in General.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—The long drawn controversy between the state of Minnesota and the Duluth and Iron Range Railroad company over the swamp land grant of that company, involving 45,079 acres of land that includes three valuable iron mines, has finally been adjusted satisfactory to all parties. The case was a somewhat complicated one. Subsequent to the granting by the state to the Iron Range road of 10 sections of swamp land for each mile of the railroad the road's title became clouded by its alleged failure to comply with certain conditions of the grant and a suit resulted.

On Jan. 8, 1900, Judge Lochren of the United States court decided that the company's title was valid and attached to its decree was a list of lands to which the company's title was declared absolute. Over a year later it was discovered that this list included by mistake 45,079 acres of land held in trust by the state for the benefit of state institutions. An investigation developed that the error was a clerical one or a misapprehension on the part of the attorneys. The problem, however, was a difficult one for the state, because the time for the appeal from the decree had expired. Proposals were then submitted by the state officials to the railroad company for an adjustment and after long negotiations these have been accepted. In effect the company releases all state institution lands and will select swamp lands in lieu of them within six months. Judge Lochren will modify his decree in accordance with the stipulations.

OPEN LAND TO SETTLEMENT.

Minnesota Congressmen Agree on Disposition of Indian Reservation.

Washington, Jan. 30.—All of the members of the Minnesota delegation in congress, with the exception of Representative Eddy, met in Representative Tawney's committee room during the afternoon for the purpose of talking over the Morris bill providing for the sale of timber on Indian reservations.

The conference lasted from 3 until 6 o'clock, after which the different members stated that they had arrived at an agreement which will be announced in the house in a few days in a bill to be introduced by Representative Morris.

This bill will, if enacted into a law, make it mandatory for the secretary of the interior to open for settlement and entry agricultural lands within 60 days after the passage of the bill, under the provision of the Nelson law.

It further provides for the examination of lands not heretofore examined, for the purpose of determining whether they are timber or agricultural lands, and the opening for entry of all lands declared to be agricultural lands.

Another section of the bill will provide for the reservation of the islands in Cass and Leech lakes, also for a reserve of 15,000 acres of land in tracts of not more than 320 acres in a tract, which is to include Sugar Point, composed of 8,000 acres.

MINNESOTA BLAZES.

St. Paul, Rat Portage and Belle Plaine Scorched.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—The Davidson block, Fourth and Jackson, was damaged by fire to the extent of $130,000. Sternberg, Weil & Co., manufacturers and wholesale dealers in men's furnishing goods, were the heaviest losers. The building was a 4-story brick structure and largely occupied by express companies, but as the fire did not get below the third floor their loss was small.

Rat Portage, Minn., Jan. 28.—The most destructive fire in the history of Rat Portage occurred at 3 a. m. The Hilliard house, a hundred-room hotel, is in ruins, also the Queen' hotel, an old landmark; Wilson's marine stores and Frank Gardner's butcher shop. The loss is $100,000.

Belle Plaine, Minn., Jan. 28.—Fire at 4 a. m. destroyed property worth $30,000. The double brick building owned by Dr. G. R. Maloney and occupied by Samuel Meil as a general store, was burned to the ground, together with its contents.

PETITION IS REFUSED.

Governor Van Sant Will Continue the Fight on Merger.

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—Three dozen Minneapolis jobbers and business men petitioned Governor Van Sant on Monday to discontinue his attacks on the proposed merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads under James J. Hill.

Governor Van Sant has refused the request. He received the communication and after reading it indited a letter which the firm of Janney, Semple, Hill & Co., the first to sign the paper, has received.

In this letter the governor says he will not violate the laws of the state, although influential men request him to do so.

The laws for the last quarter of a century have prohibited the consolidation of parallel and competing railroads and the governor says his duty is plain.

Ten Days to Restore Rates.

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—The Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads have been notified that 10 days would be allowed them in which to amend the new merchandise tariffs and restore the distributing rates formerly allowed to St. Cloud, Crookston and Fergus Falls but summarily canceled last week.

CUBAN TARIFF.

The American Export Association, on the plea of advocating "good faith towards Cuba," continues its bombardment in the interests of tariff concessions to the Cubans in the way of free raw sugar and one-half of the present duties on tobacco and cigars. In the crusade the association seems to have the support of President Roosevelt. Those opposing tariff concessions argue that inasmuch as Cuba is not part and parcel of the United States, she must be expected to pay the penalty for the privilege of being a free and sovereign republic, and must expect to be treated without further favor, and The Gazette believes this position is sound. The protective tariff principle being in vogue now, the producers and manufacturers of commodities which would be adversely effected by free trade with Cuba are entitled to the benefits of the protective tariff law without discrimination.

When Cuba is annexed to the United States there will be ample time for free trade between that island and the States. Before that time let her stand on her own bottom. "We have done enough for Cuba" is about the proper sentiment.

Protection to trusts is another matter. There can be no sentimental grounds strong enough to discriminate against even one American trust for the benefit of an alien race; but when it comes to a consideration of the tariff as affecting trusts in general, a general hammering down should be in order, and in that event, all trusts should be alike to Uncle Sam. Incidentally the resultant tariff arrangement might come to about what the Cuban worshipers are asking on sentimental grounds but there would be no favoritism, or singling out, only to the extent of, and always with a view to, conserving the best interests of the American people.

IT IS UP TO THE WOMEN.

Lincoln and Roosevelt are the two presidents who have openly espoused woman suffrage. The cause is making slow progress on account of the opposition from women who do not believe in the principle. Remove woman opposition to woman suffrage, and the measure would carry in quick order. New York and Massachusetts have organizations which oppose woman suffrage, and a national body has been formed, with Mrs. Henry M. Whitney, of Boston, and Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, of New York, heading interstate committees.

A WOMAN'S ADVICE.

Charlotte Bronte's words of advice to women, matrimonial wise, is every bit as applicable today as it was when it was first written:

"I know that if women wish to escape the stigma of husband hunting they must act and look like marble or clay, cold, expressionless, bloodless; for every appearance of feeling of joy, sorrow, friendliness, antipathy, admiration, disgust, is alike construed by the world into an attempt to hook a husband. Never mind!

"Well meaning women have their own consciences to comfort them, after all. Do not, therefore, be too much afraid of showing yourself as you are, affectionate and good hearted; do not too harshly repress sentiments and feelings excellent in themselves because you fear that some puppy may fancy that you are letting them out to fascinate him; do not condemn yourself to live by halves, because if you show too much animation some pragmatical thing in breeches might take it into his pate to imagine that you designed to devote your life to his vanity."

A Chicago department store has just closed a contract for a page advertisement a day for an entire year. The amount of money involved is about $120,000. The contract is one of the largest ever placed in this country. John Wanamaker of New York and Philadelphia was the first merchant to take a page of space for a year. At the present time he has half a dozen such pages running in different New York and Philadelphia papers.

A story told to illustrate the character of Sir Redvers Buller is worth repeating. During the last Nile campaign, while on board a river steamer descending some dangerous water in one of the high cataracts, Sir Redvers entered into a discussion with Lord Charles Beresford as to the proper channel that should be taken. Each obstinately defended his own course, but in the end that which Sir Redvers recommended was adopted, with the result that the steamer got through without accident. "You see I was right," exclaimed Sir Redvers, triumphantly; "mine was the proper channel." "That was mine too," cooly replied Lord Charles; "I only recommended the other because I knew you would go against whatever I said."

The Minnesota legislature met in extra session Tuesday morning, Feb. 4. It is supposed to be understood that the session will be very brief, having been called on a previous understanding with the governor that little besides the new tax code will be taken up. The legislature in its last regular session made a record for good sensible behavior, with the people's interests apparently the sole guide, and as the same men are still in the saddle there is no reason to anticipate any marked general change. The talk of a long drawn out session and the other foreboding that were indulged in with a view to dissuading Gov. Van Sant from calling the special session have died away now that the move has been made, and it is expected that the members will get down to good hard work that, when all is told, will prove very satisfactory to the voters of the state as a whole.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My dear children,—

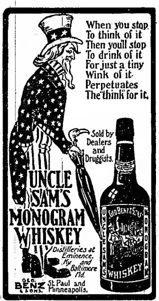
No doubt all of you who read this have gone to school for one or more years. Now I want to talk to you about a great man who was very wise yet who went to school but a year. How did he get his wisdom? I will tell you—he studied all the time. He worked three days to earn the first book he ever owned—worked very hard, too. That was not a story book, such as we see so many of, but it was the history of our great George Washington of whom I shall tell you something in a few weeks. The name of the great man of whom I will this week write is Abraham Lincoln. I will venture to say that every one of you has a better time than he did as a child. Abe Lincoln, as he was so well known, was born on Feb. 12, 1809. So I want you to think about him next Wednesday, and on each succeeding anniversary and you should make up your minds to be as good as he was. His nick-name was "Honest Abe." One day when he was delivering a speech he said: "I would rather be right than president." He was walking along the road near the schoolhouse one day when he saw two little boys fighting. There was a rail fence in his way but that did not matter. Clearing it with a bound he took a little chap in each hand, holding each out at arms length until they promised to be friends again. He was not ashamed to rock a baby, either, because he was six feet tall. He went to any house where there was a book to be had and rocked the baby to pay for the use of the book. I'm sure you all love the memory of so noble a man. He deserved, you will think, to live a long and happy life. But he went to his reward during his second term as president of our country, having been shot by a bad man.

HOW THE GIRLIES SPENT ONE VALENTINES DAY.

The Girlies have always had things pretty much their own way on such days as Valentines. The sewing machine was turned into a postoffice and mamma acted as postmistress protem. Each member of the family could then have a postoffice box—which was lots of fun for everybody concerned. On one particular Valentines day several years ago mamma told the Girlies there was much distress among the poor and it would seem kinder to send comforts to the needy than to spend money on valentines. Now, the Girlies were quite small and at first did not relish the idea, but mamma told them she would help them make very pretty valentines for many, including the kind friends of whom I shall tell you a great deal by and bye. I've no doubt some of you would enjoy making valentines. If you buy a sheet of wadding and a bottle of mucilege you can make many pretty things. Cut pasteboards in square or heart shapes and cover with the wadding. Then paste pretty scrap pictures on, or, better still, if you can draw put a pretty little drawing on. When all arranged, cover the back neatly with clean tissue or writing paper. You can make large or small valentines and you will be surprised to find how pretty they look. A little narrow ribbon helps to finish the work. Everybody enjoyed the valentines very much and the valentine money was spent to buy something useful for a poor baby which had lost its mother. The Girlies were very glad to have tried that plan for they pleased many friends besides doing good.

HOUSEHOLD.

Vinegar is excellent to pour on a fresh cut. It is an antidote against poisoning. The writer has experienced the good effects of the use of vinegar. A cat inflicted several scratches on the hand of a fondling mistress. Vinegar was poured over the wound, but two tiny scratches were missed. These festered and caused much pain while those saturated with vinegar were well in 24 hours. For burns nothing is better than a liniment made of equal parts of linseed oil and lime water. A bottle full can be prepared so cheaply that there is no excuse for not having a remedy for burns at hand. Prepare this and the first time you need it you will bless the day that that you took my advice. Apply freely on burn as soon as possible. It draws the heat out, paining a short time, then you will have no more trouble with the burn.



When you stop To think of it Then you'll stop To drink of it For just a tiny Wink of it Perpetuates The think for it.

The many friends here of Sidney Bottinean, of West Superior, will be grieved to learn that he is seriously ill. I told him I had no faith in any medicines as they all failed. He said: "Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it." I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

Adam Schmitz returned Friday from the Big Fork country where he has a claim. Mr. Schmitz says the influx of settlers to that section has been rapid the past few months, and that whereas a year ago the inhabitants were few and far between, now a hundred men could be gotten together at Grand Falls in half an hour's notice. His claim is on the bank of the Big Fork River, a stream more than twice as large as the Red Lake river at this point.

Ed. Bray drove to Dugdale Sunday morning where he took the train for Bemidji, going from there to Blackduck on the mixed train which leaves Bemidji daily at 6:20 p. m., arriving at Blackduck at 7:30 p. m., departing at 6 o'clock in the morning. Remi Fortier drove over from Gentilly yesterday and made this office a pleasant call. He says the directors of the Gentilly cheese factory held a meeting several days ago to discuss the advisability of changing to a creamery. As it is only 7,000 pounds of milk per day can be accommodated while the receipts would run up to 12,000 pounds and over if all those desiring to patronize the institution were let in. The decision of the meeting, however, was to continue as a cheesefactory at least a year longer. There is at present a move on foot to put up a creamery at Chas. Rojumbal's place near the Gentilly bridge, and the decision to continue as a cheese factory will have a tendency to encourage this proposition.

HIS SUIT BALKED.

A Motherly Old Sherlock Holmes the Cause of It.

"I am afraid that it is all off," sighed the young man. "Just as the prospects looked the brightest too. When all the world to me left to visit an aunt who lives in the central part of the state, it happened that I had business that took me the same way, and I chanced to take the same train that she did, and naturally I took a seat at her side. She was very much surprised to see me and acted very distant at first, evidently not believing my story about important business taking me the same way she was going. I was just succeeding in breaking the ice when the train stopped at a station, and a motherly old fool, wearing corkscrew curls and smelling of peppermint, who sat just back of us, took advantage of the lull to lean over the back of our seat and, with a beaming face that was meant for friendly interest, said:

"'Jes' married, ain't ye?'

"The suddenness of the question left me incapable of answering.

"'Of course you be!' she cackled again, like a pullet with her first egg. 'I suppose ye think it is fashionable to set apart like old married folks when ye are jes' dyin' to lovey dovey each other! The land sakes, when me an' Josiah got married we held each other's hands an' said 'lovey' an' 'ducky' all we wanted to! Now, young man, you jes' set up close an' put your arm around her! We won't mind, will we?' she said, turning to the passengers, who were roaring.

"Then the train started and gave us a respite, during which the girl turned to me with burning face and whispered fiercely that if I didn't get off at the next stop she would never speak to me again.

"I am too good a soldier not to obey orders, so I dropped off at the next stop. It turned out to be nothing but a flag station, and I spent the rest of the day watching the through trains go past. I managed at last to bribe a freight conductor to take me away.

"Up to date no sort of explanation goes with the girl. She says that if I hadn't been there it wouldn't have happened."—Detroit Free Press.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

Lady Anastasia gasped, and Fylingdale continued:

"You yourself will adorn these jewels. It will be my greatest pleasure to atone for my ill judged deception by giving you all those jewels—the diamonds, the rubies, the chains of pearls and all the rest of the pretty, glittering things." He took her hands, the parson looking on all the time as a physician looks on at a bloodletting or an operation. "What can that girl do with the jewels? They shall all be yours. Forgive me, Anastasia, and let us again work together, as we have already done, you and I, with no more jealousy and no more suspicions."

He kissed her hand. His manner was changed almost suddenly; he became soft, caressing and persuasive. It was the old charm, which the poor lady could never resist. She suffered him to hold her hand; she allowed him to kiss her; her eyes grew humid.

"Oh," she murmured, "I must do everything you ask, Ludovic, if you are only kind!"

"How can I be anything but kind?" he replied, with a smile. "You must forget and forgive. The thought that all I had schemed and planned for was torn from me, and by you—Anastasia, by you—was too much. My mind was upset; I knew not what I said. Forgive me."

"Oh, Ludovic, I forgive!"

"And the jewels shall atone, the lovely jewels. You shall have them all."

"You will truly give me the jewels?"

"Truly, my Anastasia. After all, we are man and wife. Henceforth we shall only live for each other. Your happiness shall be mine. The jewels shall be yours."

She yielded. She fell into his arms. There was a complete, a touching, reconciliation.

Lord Fylingdale was going to declare that it was Molly and none other who was married that morning at 6 o'clock and to assume the rights and powers of a husband. So that the news of his evil reputation came, after all, too late to be of any use. And as for explanations, who would have the right to ask any explanations of a married man on behalf of his wife?

The counsel learned in the law gave his written opinion that, considering that the marriage ceremony was fixed for 6 a. m., the bridegroom had no knowledge of the bride's intention not to present herself; that he left his lodgings a few minutes before 6; that a few minutes after 6 one Pentecrosse, well known to the lady, witnessed the marriage ceremony and believed the bride to be the lady in question, dressed as she was accustomed to dress, although he did not see her face; that the parish clerk also recognized the lady; that the clergyman was ready to swear that the bride was the lady, and that the registers showed her signature, there could be no chance whatever of success in disputing or denying the marriage.

CHAPTER XVI.

A DAY OF FATE.

THIS was the day when all the villainy came to a head and did its worst and met with the first installment of exposure. I have told you what was done at the church and what was our own bewilderment, not knowing what to believe or how to explain things. For my own part, though I might have guessed because I had discovered the jealousy of Lady Anastasia, yet the truth, even the possibility of the truth, never came into my head. I had no manner of doubt in my own mind but it was Molly herself and none other whom I saw standing as a bride at the altar rail with Lord Fylingdale for a bridegroom. The fact, I say, admitted of no dispute. Yet why should Molly change her mind? And why should she deny the fact?

I sought her at the house. I begged her to come into the garden and to talk with me privately. Then I asked those two questions. Her answer to both of them was most amazing.

"Jack," she said, "I know not what you mean. I have not changed my mind. It is impossible for me to marry a man of whom such things can be said unless he can prove that they are false. How can you think that I have changed my mind? As regards this talk about an early wedding, what do I know about it? At 6 o'clock I was in the kitchen with my mother and Nigra. I have not been out of the house at all."

Then I persisted. I asked her if she could have gone out and had perhaps forgotten.

"Forgotten!" she repeated scornfully. "Do you suppose that a woman could by any possibility forget her own wedding? But what is it, Jack? What is in your mind?"

Then I told her. "Molly," I said, "last night I forgot your letter. There was so much to think and talk about with these disclosures that I forgot. This morning I remembered. Then I hurried ashore. I ran to the Crown. It was just upon 6. I was too late. His lordship had gone out in a chair. I ran to the church. It was just after 6. The doors were open. I heard voices. I went in, Molly. Do not say that I am dreaming. I saw you—you, I say—you yourself, with your pink silk cloak, the hood pulled over your head, a domino to hide your face, just as had been arranged."

"You saw me, Jack? You saw me? How could you see me?"

"And your hand was in Lord Fylingdale's, and Mr. Purden was pronouncing the words which made you, his wife, 'Whom God hath joined together let not man put asunder.'"

She stared at me with blank amazement.

"In my pink silk cloak? Jack, are you in your right mind, or is it I myself who am gone distraught?"

"Indeed I knew not which."

"Did you speak to me? Did you congratulate the bride, Jack?"

"No; I was sick and sorry, Molly. I went out of the church. I had seen enough. The clerk, however, has been telling the story of this private marriage all over the town. Everybody knows it. The marriage is duly entered in the registers. It was a marriage by the archbishop's license. The man Purden may be all that the vicar's letter exposed, but the marriage was in order."

Molly said nothing for awhile; then she said gently: "The letter from the bookseller, your cousin, spoke of Lord Fylingdale as ruined. If he were to marry a woman with money, it would be his"—

"I believe that there are sometimes letters—bills of lading or whatever they are called—which give the wife the control of her own property; otherwise everything becomes her husband's."

"Why did he wish to marry me? There was never a gleam of love in his eye nor a note of love in his voice. Why, except that he might get my money?"

"That is, I am convinced, the reason."

"Villainy, villainy, villainy! Jack, this is a conspiracy. Some woman has been made to play my part. Then he will claim me as his wife and lay hands upon all that I have."

"No, Molly; he shall not while you have friends."

"Friends cannot help where the law orders otherwise. So much I know, Jack. Yet you can do one thing for me. You can protect me from the man. He must not take me away."

"All Lynn will fight for you."

"Jack, I want more. I want all Lynn to believe me. You have known me all my life. Am I capable of such a change of mind? Am I capable of so monstrous a falsehood as to steal out to marry the man and then to declare that I have never left the house? Oh, the villain, the villain!" Her cheek was aflame; her eyes flashed.

I seized her hand. "Molly," I cried, "they shall all believe you. I will tell the truth everywhere."

Just then the garden door was thrown open, and Sam Semple appeared. With a smiling face and a bending knee he advanced, bowing low.

"Permit me to offer congratulations to the Countess of Fylingdale."

"I am not a countess. I am plain Molly Miller."

Sam looked disconcerted and puzzled. I perceived that, plot or no plot, he had no hand in it.

"I am come," he said, "from his lordship"—

"I have nothing to do with his lordship."

"Surely, madam; surely, my lady, there is some misunderstanding. I am sent by his lordship with his compliments to ask when it will be convenient for the countess to receive him."

"You have been informed, I suppose, that I was married to him this morning."

"Certainly, my lady."

"Then go back to Lord Fylingdale and tell him that he is a villain and a liar, that I have learned his true character, that I am not married to him and that if he ventures to molest me my friends will protect me. Give him that message, sir, word for word."

"I believe, Sam," I said, for his discomfiture and bewilderment made him reel and stagger, "that you have no hand in this new villainy. It was you, however, who brought that man to Lynn, knowing his true character and his antecedents. Let us never see your face here again. Go. If I thought you were in the plot, I would serve you again as the captain served you three years ago."

He went away without another word.

Then the captain came home, his face troubled.

"I know not," he said, "what has happened in this place. I have seen Lord Fylingdale. I told him of the charges and accusations."

"Well, did he deny them?"

"He denied nothing, and he admitted nothing. He says that you married him this morning, Molly."

"I know. He has sent Sam Semple here with the same story. Captain, you believe me, do you not?"

"Believe you, Molly? Why, if I did not believe you, I should believe nothing. Believe you? My dear, I would as soon doubt the prayer book." He laid his hand upon her arm, and the tears came into his eyes. "My dear, I have been an old fool. But I did it for the best. He says that you are his wife. Let him come and take you—if he can!"

"It is not Molly that he would take; it is Molly's fortune."

"Why, sir," she said, "if he takes the whole and wastes and dissipates it, so long as he does not take me, what does it matter?"

Then the vicar came again, and the whole of the business had to be discussed again. At first he adhered to his theory of unconscious action, because a scholar always likes to explain every theory by examples chosen from Latin and Greek authors. He had looked up several more stories of the kind from I know not what folio volumes in his library and came prepared to defend his opinion. But the absolute certainty of Molly's assertion, the evidence of her mother, who declared that Molly had been working with her since half past 5, the firm belief of the captain and my own change of opinion and the possibility of deception shook him.

Finally he abandoned his learned view and adopted our more modern explanations of the case—viz. that the marriage was a sham and that the woman was some creature suborned to personate Molly.

"But what woman can she be?" asked the vicar. "She can write. I have seen the registers. She has signed in a full, round hand without bad spelling. The woman, therefore, is educated. My dear, we may perhaps find the woman. My worthy and pious brother in orders is most certainly in the conspiracy. When there are three, one is generally a traitor. To begin with, the scheme is both bold and dangerous. It is the first step toward obtaining a large sum of money under false pretenses. Their necks are in danger, even the neck of a noble earl.

HE STEPPED ACROSS THE ROOM AND BOWED LOW TO MOLLY."

"It is inconceivable," he went on after a little reflection, "how a woman could be found to play such a part. She must be the mistress of the earl. No other could be trusted."

"What should be done meantime?"

"We must meet the enemy on his own ground. He spreads abroad the report that he married Molly this morning. We must publicly and openly deny the fact. Captain, there will be a large company at the assembly this evening. You will take Molly there. I will go with you. Jack shall put on his Sunday best and shall also go with us. We must be prepared for an impudent claim, and we must be ready with a prompt denial. Let us court publicity."

This was clearly the best advice possible. We were left unmolested all the afternoon, though the captain made me stay as a kind of garrison in case of any attempt at abduction being made.

In the evening Molly in her chair and dressed in her finery was carried to the gardens, while the captain, the vicar and myself formed a bodyguard.

We arrived after the dancing had begun. Lady Anastasia was looking on, but her court of ladies and young men for some reason seemed to have melted away. She stood almost alone, save for the support of the old beau Sir Harry. The colonel was also with her, and the Rev. Benjamin Purden stood behind her.

The music was in the gallery at the end of the long room. The dancing was carried on in the middle. Lady Anastasia was standing on the right of the gallery, most of the company on the left. Molly, with the captain and followed by the vicar and myself, turned to the left.

On her entrance all eyes were fixed upon the newly made countess. She had come without her lord! Was this part of the secret—a secret known to all the world—or was his lordship, before the whole company, about to lead his bride to the first place, as became her newly acquired rank? Some of the ladies regarded her with looks of hatred, the successors of the looks of scorn with which they had first welcomed her. Most of them, however, were kindly. A tale of love always meets with a friendly reception. Not a woman in the place but would have taken her place with joy unmeasured. As no other woman could, they were ready to accept their fate and to make friends with the successful and the fortunate winner of so great a prize.

It was a great prize, indeed, if they only knew.

The minuets were over and the country dance was about to begin when Lord Fylingdale arrived, followed, as usual, by his secretary. He stood at the door; he looked around. Then, with the cold pride which never failed him, he stepped across the room and bowed low to Molly. "Madam," he said, "with your permission, we will dance this country dance together before I take you away with me."

"My lord," replied Molly aloud, so that the whole company heard and trembled, "I shall not dance with you

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

On Sunday night January 26th at half past ten o'clock Mrs. O. N. Skomdahl closed her eyes in the sleep that knows no waking, after many months of suffering and pain. She remained apparently in her full senses till the last moment, facing death with a smile on her face. She was well prepared to meet death, as she constantly held uppermost in her heart the hopes and longing desire for the future reunion in the Home Beyond where she hoped to meet her loved ones who had gone before, The last words she said were: "Now I am going." Her wish must have been realized as she saw the welcome that greeted her there. She leaves a kind and loving husband and three small children to mourn her loss, together with the entire community who fell the bereavment. She was loved and respected by all who knew her. She was 33 years of age, and up to two years ago when she contracted consumption, she was one of the healthiest and most robust woman ever cast eyes on, and in her girlhood was one of the many "charming maids" that Old Norway has sent across the Atlantic. She came from Norway in 1890, and landed in Fisher. She was married to O. N. Skomdahl in Crookston in 1892, and in 1894 came here where they have since resided. Six children have been born unto them, of which but three are living, the three others are buried in Riverside cemetery, and her remains were laid besides those of her loved ones. Many friend and relatives gathered to pay their last tribute to the dead, as she lay in a profusion of flowers. Tears streamed down every cheek and every heart was sad.

How to Save Money.

Feeds of all kinds are high, but we will cut down your feed bill one-half. How? Read on and you will know. We have concluded to exchange bran and shorts for oats for ten days, and we will give you 2300 lbs. of bran and shorts, mixed, for 2000 lbs. of oats. 2000 lbs. of bran and shorts will feed a horse, cow, colt or any other animal as long as 2000 lbs. of oats will this year, as the oats are very light: one-third to one-half being chaff and no better than straw. Some say that bran and shorts will make a horse fat, but that he will not be strong or fat, but that he will not be strong or have endurance. Did you ever see a workingman that was getting fat, but that he was also strong? Have you not noticed that your horses are not doing well this winter? And why? "Because the oats are poor and light" you say. Give your horse a change; don't feed him oats three times a day for twenty years. You may ask if oats are poor and only worth half as much for feed as bran and shorts, why do you exchange. First, because there are thousands of men that own horses the same as you do, but do not understand the value of bran and shorts for feed.

Second, there are others who do not care to bother to give their horses a change of feed, and

Third, we want to demonstrate to the farmers of this vicinity the feeding value of bran and shorts.

The only people who understand the value of bran and shorts as feed for stock, are the dairy farmers of Illinois and the eastern states. They pay $25 to $30.00 per ton for bran and shorts to feed to their cows, and take all the Northwestern mills can make. There is no question but that you can keep your horses, colts, cows and calves through the balance of the winter at just one half the cost by feeding bran and shorts. We are always spending money for advertising, and for ten days we are going to spend a little money in this exchange, and give the farmers and feeders of stock the benefit. We do this exchanging at our Crompe elevator or at the mill. Come in and see us.

High School Notes

By the Athenian Society.

LITERARY WORK.

Last Friday's debate was won by the Spartans, neither side doing well. The Spartans received two more points than the Athenians.

The subject for the next debate is: Resolved, That Washington did more for his country than Lincoln. The Spartans chose the affirmative side. Their debaters are Fred Richard, Dera Marchand and Beata Hage. The Athenian debaters are Drew Marshshall, Maude Findeisen, and Will Hunt. We hope that this debate will be better than the last. The Spartan program has been postponed on account of the coming debate at Moorhead.

SCHOOL IN GENERAL

The High School and the pupils and the young people who intend to go to Moorhead have been practicing yells in the city hall.

Some of the boys have fixed up a looking glass and comb in the laboratory and make use of it before they come into the room. We think it would be wise if the girls would do likewise.

When Prof. Whiteley calls a special meeting of the H. S. O. during study period, we notice no one is very anxious to move that the meeting adjourn. We wonder why.

One of the boys, while coming down the stairs from the laboratory slipped and fell to the bottom. Luckily he escaped injury.

On Monday morning a number of pupils were assigned to new seats. We notice the change was chiefly among the girls.

A few still turn out to play shinny in spite of the cold weather.

One of the teachers says the Sophomores and Juniors are the ones that meddled so much with the things in the laboratory.

The cold weather has prevented some of the classes from reciting in the laboratory.

The girls stay after school sewing yellow letters on purple cloth to decorate our train when we go to Moorhead.

Did you notice that new cough the girls have? It's a dandy.

INCIDENTS.

One of the boys evidently thought he was a young gentlsman and lifted his coat tails before he sat down.

One of the boys hid behind the stove in order to escape some work on the blackboard.

The Spartans made a few remarks about the shortage of the Athenians' notes last week. The reason was that one of our reporters had been called home. They seem to forget the time when their notes showed a greater shortage than ours at their lowest stage.

We think that the Spartans had better hurry and dig up or the interest will double their debt.

The Spartans refused our good advice about the $5 they received. Perhaps they had too much pride to accept it without paying so we will sell it "cheap" for 3 cents a yard.

The national executive committee of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, at a meeting held at Columbus, O., on Sunday, decided to establish permanent headquarters at Cincinnati, in charge of the secretary, Anthony Matre. It was also decided to levy a per capita tax of three cents upon all the members of the organization, the tax to be collected by the individual societies and turned into fund. The fund is to be used to defray the expenses of fitting up and maintaining the national headquarters and conducting the work of the Federation. It is estimated that there are about 300,000 members of the Federation. Copies of the constitution of the Federation were ordered printed for distribution.

A TOUCHING SCENE

ENACTED IN COURT WHEN W. E. WEST WAS ACQUITTED.

WEST OVERWHELMED WITH CONGRATULATIONS OVER THE VERDICT.

Grand Forks Herald: "Not Guilty." These were the words read by Clerk of Court George Ryerson shortly after midnight from the slip of paper which had been handed to Judge Fisk by J. T. Smith, the foreman of the jury, after the 12 men had filed in the court room shortly after midnight.

The jury had agreed upon a verdict at 11:30, and Judge Fisk and the attorneys for the state and the defense were at once sent for. Judge Fisk and State's attorney Wineman arrived first and as soon as Mr. Corliss for the defense arrived the jury was sent for, asked if they had agreed upon a verdict, to which the foreman replied "yes," and handed the sealed verdict to Judge Fisk, who read, and handed it to the clerk of court. As soon as the verdict was read there was a touching scene enacted, as the sister of the defendant, Miss Mattie West, threw herself into the arms of her brother and gave way to a flood of tears for the first time since the trial started. J. W. Ramsey, his brother-in-law was the second to grasp his hand, and all three grasped the hands of each of the jurymen in turn. Although the word had been passed but a few minutes before the jury came in, there were several hundred people in the court house to hear the verdict, and Mr. West was kept busy for some time receiving hand shakes and congratulations on the result of the trial. When he entered the room W. E. West, the defendant, was slightly pale and seemed nervous, but bore up well while awaiting amid the deathly silence that prevaded the court room the decision that meant so much to him.

The jury was out just six hours. It is understood that they stood 11 to one for acquittal on the first ballot, the 12th man desiring further instructions. Before it was received, however, another ballot was taken, when a verdict of not guilty was agreed to by the 12 jurors. They looked weary from their long confinement and seemed extremely glad that their service was over.

Vic's Letter.

Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Feb. 5, 1902.
Editor Gazette:

1st Sgt. Wm. Long of I troop 4th Cav. who was so badly cut up in St. Louis a couple of weeks ago has been brought to the post hospital, and doing nicely.

It has been so cold here of late that the guard has been ornamented with furs—a thing which happened only once or twice this winter.

Recruits for the army are fast coming in and going out of this post.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition or World's Fair site is being trimmed up. New appointments in the line of officers are being made every day.

I am in the hospital with a severe cold but expect to be ready for duty in a day or two.

"Vic."

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore by this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

DISTRIT COURT

THE FEBRUARY TERM CONVENED MONDAY---BUSY TIME SINCE.

FORTY CIVIL CASES ON CALENDAR---GRAND JURY BRINGS SEVERAL INDICTMENTS.

Judge Watts and Court Stenographer Lohn came in on the Great Northern Monday noon and court was opened shortly after 1 p. m.

The officers of the court are the same as at last year's session. No October term having been held last fall, this is one term in a year, and business has piled up perceptibly. The largest calendar in the history of the county confronted the court, and Judge Watts with his customary dispatch, lost no time in setting the mill of justice grinding. The grand jury was put at work in the city hall (which is furnished free to the county); the calendar was quickly gone over and those cases which were not to be tried at this term for one reason or other were soon out of the way. Deputy Clerk of Court reports disposition of the cases as follows:

The case of Alvin Wright vs. P. & J. Meehan was dismissed on motion of plaintiff.

J. L. Casey vs. E. M. Evenson dismissed for want of prosecution.

Nos. 3, 4 and 5, cases against the Red Lake Falls Lumber Co. and Majau & Johnson hinge on decision in similar case tried at a former term. The actions were brought for balances allegedto due on labor, and a decision on all three is expected at this term.

Ardilio Adams vs. city of Thief River Falls and G. N. Ry. Co. set for trial this afternoon.

P. S. Ware vs. S. Kenison, passed for the present, and may be brought up on ten days' notice from either side.

Samuel A. Hoyt vs. A. M. Hanson, will be tried before jury Friday.

Johanna M. Nelson vs. P.O. Nelson, divorce case. Both sides ask for divorce but upon different grounds. Time of hearing not yet fixed.

Treffle Daust vs. Albert Kienart, will come up tomorrow before a jury.

State of Minnesota vs. P. & J. Meehan, personal property tax case. Passed. This hinge on decision in other tax case.

Marlu Buse vs. Jos. Cry, settled out of court. The action was to recover for hay cut by defendant from plaintiff's land.

Northern Realestate Co. vs. Carl Kietzschmar, set for trial at chambers at time to be agreed upon by parties to suit.

O. G. Ness et al vs. Board of Co. Commissioners. This is the appeal from the order of the county board establishing Wyandotte and River Falls ditch. It will come up Monday. About fifty witnesses have been summoned and there will be a big fight.

Al Gray vs. Theo. Garceau, Frank E. Hunt, H. H. Zaiser and Ed. Garceau. A demurrer was entered by defendants, but has not yet been argued. This is an action brought against F. B. Newton's bondsmen by Gray to force payment of judgment of $3,200, obtained by plaintiff in supreme court for injury to foot while in the employ of the Red Lake Falls Lumber Co.

Sleff vs. Johnson. Jury case. Not set.

P. O. Nelson vs. John Freeman. Plaintiff sues defendant for alleged alienation of his wife's affections. The divorce case mentioned before is connected with this.

Poirier vs. Lajambe. Judgment admitted.

The Moose Dungstrip case will not be tried here, the defendants having succeeded in securing an order of no jurisdiction in District Court, and the trial will be before U. S. Circuit Court.

Putnode vs. Rose. Dispute over settlement for team. Passed for the present.

E. F. Marshall vs. Dan Linnihan, has not been reached. This is a suit to recover purchase price on a cow sold to plaintiff by defendant and which was shortly after killed for lumpy jaw.

Gray vs. Mikkelson. Judgment for defendant for $12 value of calf in dispute, with costs.

Union Land & Investment Co. vs. Paul Schaenauer. Alleged that Schaenauer broke contract by refusing to sell his land. Jury now out.

Methode Bedard vs. M. E. Olmsted, to be tried at chambers.

Guerin vs. Sleff. Wage deal. Will probably come off last of term.

M. Skala vs. Spillane & Steinert, action to recover for grain alleged to have been stored with defendants at the time they were conducting the City Mills. This has not yet been reached.

Judge Watts is of the opinion that court will not adjourn until the end of next week.

NINE MONTHS

GEORGE GERVAIS SENTENCED THIS AFTERNOON BY JUDGE WATTS.

The grand jury returned four indictments. That against Geo. Gervais, Ida Gervais, his wife and Ethel Gervais was a joint indictment for keeping a house of illfame and lewdness. The trial of the first two occurred yesterday, Steenerson appearing for the defense, and Co. Atty Grady for the State. The jury went out at 4 o'clock yesterday evening. The ballot stood 11 to 1 in favor of acquittal for Ida Gervais and of conviction for Gervais. At five a. m. the lone member who had voted both guilty on every ballot, was won over, and the verdict for Gervais was guilty, and for his wife not guilty, the jury showing clemency in the case of the youthful wife on her testimony that she proposed and wanted to lead a pure life after her marriage, but that her husband forced her to continue a life of shame against her will.

Ethel Gervais was a witness for the state in this trial, and she will probably go free for turning state's evidence.

At 1:15 this afternoon Judge Watts sentenced Gervais for nine months, with a choice of the state reformatory or state prison.

The other indictment brought by the grand jury was against James Bede for grand larceny in the second degree. Bede stole clothing and jewelry from Chas Sundstrom's room at the Grand View hotel last fall. He gave $100 cash bail and skipped.

The grand jury made a recommendation for the installation of electric lights in place of the kerosene lamps now in use in the county jail.

The members reported "no further business" yesterday afternoon at four o'clock and were discharged by the court.

A GLORIOUS DEFEAT

RED LAKE FALLS HIGH SCHOOL WINS FRESH LAURELS AT MOORHEAD.

FERGUS FALLS GETS THE DECISION AFTER A DESPERATE CONFLICT.

It was an animated scene that greeted the visitors to the Great Northern depot last Friday afternoon just before the Moorhead special pulled out at 1:30 with 150 enthusiastic, confident Red Lake Falls people aboard. The train itself was splendidly decorated. On either side "Red Lake Falls High School" in lettering sufficiently large to be read half a mile off, stretching over two coaches, was worked out in the High School colors, purple and gold.

The confidence of our people in the ability of the Red Lake Falls team to win was supreme—and the way our girls and boy held the Fergus Falls giants level throughout the debate showed the judgment to have been not far off. Red Lake Falls was defeated by a scratch of only two points, and this is a defeat that is a glorious one, and we go down with colors flying and fame scarce tarnished.

The following account of the debate from the Crookston Times could not be improved upon and we reproduce it entire:

The strong Fergus Falls high school debating team is the champion of the Ninth congressional district. After the decision was announced last evening Sup't Whiteley of Red LakeFalls mounted the platform and said: "On behalf of the Red Lake Falls high school I want to congratulate the Fergus Falls high school upon their victory this evening, and to assure them that the hope and confidence of Red Lake Falls is centered in them in the coming contests for state honors."

One hundred sixty tickets to Moorhead were sold from Red Lake Falls yesterday. A town that can take that many people and a brass band 100 miles to hear a debate is not going to be easily beaten, and only the most heroic efforts on the part of Fergus Falls' experienced debaters saved them from a crushing defeat. The Fergus team is more mature. Its members have all had considerable experience in public speaking. Two of them seemed men, not boys, and their maturity and physical weight gave them a distinct advantage. Such a team of high school boys is very exceptional and it seems highly probable that they will be able to defeat any team in the state.

The debate was a revelation to all who heard it, and Fraternity hall was so packed that no person in the audience was able to move from his seat in any direction. From the magnificent opening argument by Leland Healy of Red Lake Falls for the affirmative to the closing rebuttal, impassioned, eloquent, resistless, by Miss Pauline Neiland of the same city, the debate was a desperate fight. The ease of the young people upon their feet was wonderful, their readiness to reply, the perfect storm of facts held up in rebuttal, the clever stinging sentence by which an elaborate argument was shattered in one moment, the swiftness and apparent ease with which facts, statistics, and arguments were marshalled in perfect order and hurled against the opposition, these things were never supposed possible of school boys and school girls. And yet these things characterized both teams to a remarkable degree. After two hours of it, the comment was not of confidence or apprehension, but a long drawn breath, and "What a pretty fight."

Leland Healy of Red Lake Falls opened the debate favoring the proposition that capital punishment should be abolished in the United States. His arguments were concise and cogently put, and he has many of them. H. W. Brattlein was the leading speaker for the negative. He spoke rapidly and his native tongue made slight inroads upon the English. But his speech was a powerful one. It abounded in logic and exacting reasoning, and his arguments followed swiftly on each other's heels, all pointing to the same inevitable conclusion. Miss Rachal Taylor for the affirmative began a brilliant argument but, apparently through physical weakness, grew confused. She soon gathered up the threads of her argument however and concluded with good effect. Colvin Butler, of Fergus Falls followed Miss Taylor in one of the most convincing speeches of the evening. Mr. Butler is a finished speaker and his arguments carried great weight, being itself formidable, and being delivered naturally and forcefully and with commanding assurance. Miss Pauline Neiland, of Red Lake Falls, the next speaker on the affirmative, fairly swept the audience off their feet and for a moment the prohibition upon applause was forgotten. Miss Neiland's shafts of sarcasm were gracefully delivered from a bow string strong and true. She presented some formidable statistics and illustrated them most effectively from well prepared charts. Hans Hanson, the final speaker for Fergus Falls, made an impassioned plea for the retention of capital punishment on the ground of necessity. All the debaters spoke in rebuttal and distinguished themselves for a quick perception of their opponent's weak points and for the rapidity and effectiveness with which they disposed of every argument that had been advanced.

The question for debate was the same which is discussed in all the state contests this year, "Resolved that capital punishment should be abolished in the United States." Hon. S. G. Comstock of Moorhead, made an ideal presiding officer. Applause was barred except at the beginning or the conclusion of each speech, when it was given with ample volume. The judges were Hon. Seth Newman, and Judge Amidon of Fargo, and President McFarland of the Valley City Normal. The decision of the judges favored Fergus Falls by a vote of two to one.

The debate speaks in the highest terms of praise of the two schools. To win it was to get great glory, and to lose it so narrowly is a high honor.

The Crookston Journal of Saturday contained the following account of the debate: The special train bearing the homeward bound excursionists from Moorhead to Red Lake Falls passed through the city at 2:30 this morning. It carried a disappointed crowd of people—for the judges awarded the honors in the debate to Fergus Falls. The debate was held in Fraternity Hall at Moorhead and a large crowd attended. Hon. S. G. Comstock presided, and Hon. Seth Newman and Judge Amidon of Fargo, and President McFarland of the Valley City Normal acted as judges.

The question debated was "Resolved that capital punishment should be abolished."

H. W. Brattlein, Colvin G. Butler and Hans A. Hanson exercised their eloquence for the Fergus Falls school, which had been assigned the negative, and Leland Healy, Rachel Taylor and Pauline Neiland represented RedLake Falls and the affirmative.

The personal appearance of the Fergus debaters were greatly in their favor. They looked like adults while the Red Lake Falls speakers had a more juvenile appearance, and two of them were girls.

One who attended the debate from this city is authority for the statement that the Red Lake Falls debaters clearly out-pointed their opponents, and that they met every argument advanced squarely and with some counter balancing argument, while they who lost advanced many arguments that were not controverted by the Fergus debaters. He thinks the decision was not justified by the line of arguments used. The up-river people cheered the victors, however, and accepted the decision without cavil.

At Ives station between Crookston and Red Lake Falls, the returning special from Moorhead met with an accident that might have resulted very seriously, but in which no one, fortunately, was hurt. A broken rail sent the rear trucks of the rear coach off the tracks, and the car was dragged fully a thousand feet with the truck part way down the embankment. The rear coach was the crowded coach of the train and contained nearly all the ladies of the party. Everyone in the car was badly shaken up and thoroughly frightened, but no one was hurt. After a tedious delay the train men succeeded in getting the trucks back on the track again, and the special proceeded on its way reaching Red Lake Falls about five o'clock Saturday morning.

NICE PROFIT.

Over $1200 Raise in Valuation of Sortedahl & Dyrhaug Brick Yard.

The Gazette reported last week the purchase by Schmitz Bros. from Sortedahl & Dyrhaug of the North Side Brick Yards. The purchase price does not include the realestate nor the houses or windmill occupying the company's premises, but is a handsome one, going to show that the Red Lake Falls brick yards are keeping pace with other local industries, and Mr. Sortedahl says that $1200 is about the profit realized by his firm on its investment. The Gazette's figures last week were "off their feet". Even newspapers can make mistakes.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

There are many alum baking powders about, although consumers are hardly aware of the fact, so deceptive are the labels arranged to hide the true nature of the ingredients which they cover. It is the intention of the law that the label shall reveal plainly to every purchaser just whether the goods are made of alum or cream of tartar. Then the purchaser may take all the chances with his eyes open

Among the alum powders most found in our shops are the following:

I. C.	Contains Alum Manf. by Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.
Calumet	Contains Alum. Manf. by Calumet Baking Powder Co.
Bengal	Contains Alum. Manf by Griggs, Cooper & Co., St. Paul.
Snowball	Contains Alum. Manf. by F. McVeagh & Co., Chicago.
Eddy's Reliable	Contains Alum. Manf. by Eddy & Eddy, St. Louis

The housekeeper should bear in mind that alum makes a cheap baking powder. Though it costs but two cents a pound, it is the principal cost of the powder. The quality of the powder, is therefore, usually indicated by the price. Not always, however; sometimes a special brand sold for the price of a high class cream of tartar powder is found upon analysis to be made from alum. The safer way is to buy only the old, standard brands, certified by the Government chemists to be made of cream of tartar.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

Eastern Minnesota-Great Northern Interests Enlarge Ore Docks.

Duluth, Feb. 4.—It is learned that the Eastern Minnesota-Great Northern interests is to increase the length of its new ore dock on Allouez bay to 600 feet, adding 100 pockets, representing 30,000 gross tons, and giving the entire dock a storage capacity of 100,000 gross tons. This will make the dock the largest ore shipping structure in the world. It is also the highest, being 72 feet from the water to the top of the rails. The Eastern Minnesota road expects to ship 3,000,000 tons the coming season. Duluth at present has the largest ore docks in the world, two exactly alike, owned by the United States Steel corporation.

JUROR GOES CRAZY.

Murder Trial Comes to an Abrupt Termination.

St. Peter, Minn., Feb. 4.—The Tanke trial has been delayed owing to one of the jury, William Kackel, being taken violently insane.

At the opening of court Judge Webber was notified of the existing condition and adjourned court until afternoon.

The prosecution was in favor of proceeding with the trial with 11 jurymen, but the defense objected.

Re-Elected Mayor of Duluth.

Duluth, Feb. 5.—Mayor T. W. Hugo was re-elected over Former Mayor Henry Truelsen by a majority of 8 votes. Five Democratic aldermen were re-elected and three Republicans. Two years ago Hugo was elected mayor over Truelsen by 6 votes. It is expected that Truelsen will contest the election, although he has not yet announced his intention.

REMOVAL OF JUDGE NOYES.

Attorney General Knox Hears Both Sides of the Case.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Attorney General Knox gave an all-day hearing in the case of Judge Noyes of Alaska, who was recently convicted of contempt by the United States circuit court of appeals at San Francisco. Judge Noyes was represented by Mr. McLaughlin of St. Paul and Mr. Henly of San Francisco. The complainants were represented by Charles D. Lane and the Wild Goose Mining company by Mr. Ralston and Mr. Brewster. This mining company was the defendant in the Anvil Creek claims, out of which most of the litigation in the Noyes case arose. The object of the hearing is to determine the propriety of removing Judge Noyes from the Nome district judgeship and is in no sense a review of the action of the San Francisco court.

TO AVOID LYNCHING.

Wisconsin Murderer Gives Himself Up to the Officers.

Waterloo, Wis., Feb. 10.—After uttering the threat, "I'll kill the first man who tries to take me," Fred W. Stephenson, who Saturday shot and instantly killed Deputy Sheriff William Cooper after attempting to shoot Mrs. Stephenson, was induced to surrender on the strength of the statement that if he did not put himself in the hands of the officers he would be lynched. Stephenson was taken to Jefferson. He says he must have been crazy when he did the shooting.

CONTROLLED BY AMERICANS.

Republican Newspaper to Be Started in Manila.

New York, Feb. 10.—A Republican newspaper, controlled by Americans, will be established at Manila, according to The Herald. At present there is not a single American newspaper in the islands, The Daily American having been sold recently to an English syndicate.

It is probable that one or two pages of the newspaper will be printed in Tagalog. Present plans are to have this department edited by some well known educator and it is to consist largely of lessons in American history.

The proposition of the army board to establish a Military post at Crookston pleases that town. Crookston is considered an advantageous point for the location of a sub military post, owing to its facilities for rapid railroad transit in all directions. The movement by the army board to locate a post here was doubtless in consideration of Crookston as a strategic point.

STATE BOARD DECIDES YOUNGERS MUST REMAIN IN MINNESOTA.

Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Offices to Be Removed to Duluth. Company Organized at Faribault to Operate in Bolivia—Destructive Fire in the Red Wing Sewer Company's Plant—General State News.

St. Paul, Feb. 7.—The application of the Younger brothers for a full pardon in order that they might be at liberty to leave the state and return to their former home in Missouri was denied by the pardon board Wednesday. The chief reason for the board's unfavorable action was the view that the application was premature. In the order of denial the board says:

"The petitioners are on parole by virtue of an act of the legislature extending the parole system to life convicts, and no decision should be made in this case that cannot be properly followed in other cases.

"The petitioners have been on parole less than seven months, and we are unwilling to establish a precedent for the releasing of life convicts who have served on parole that length of time, except in cases where the facts be special and extraordinary."

Duluth, Feb. 8.—The Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway will remove its general offices to Duluth from Marquette May 1 or as soon as possible thereafter, if Mr. Shaughnessy of the Canadian Pacific railroad approves of the plans of Vice President Fitch. Arrangements have been made for an entire floor in the Lyceum building, and these quarters will no doubt be occupied as soon as there is some assurance that the employes of the railway can be accommodated with houses here.

The departments of the South Shore to be removed here are the general manager's office, the general passenger department, engineering department, auditor, treasurer, legal department and land department. The general superintendent will continue to make his headquarters in the new depot building at Marquette.

this evening nor on any other evening."

"She will never again dance with you, my lord. Nor will she hold any discourse with you. Nor will she willingly admit you to her presence." It was the vicar who spoke, because the man and the occasion proved too much for the good old captain, who could only roll thunderously between his teeth things more fitted for the quelling of a mutiny than for dealing with such a man as his lordship.

"Pray, sir," said Lord Fylingdale, stepping back, "what is the meaning of this? Pray, madam"—he turned to Molly—"what is the meaning of this sudden change? Captain Crowle, have I or have I not the right to claim my wife?"

The vicar stepped forward and confronted him. His tall, thin figure, his long cassock, his thin and ascetic face, contrasted with the overhaughtiness of his adversary.

"My lord," he asked, "how long has this lady been your wife?"

"We were married," he said, "at 6 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Mr. Benjamin Purden, who is here to bear witness to the fact. The wedding was private at my request, because, as you may perhaps believe, I was not anxious to join in the wedding feast with a company of boors, bumpkins and sailors."

"Ladies and gentlemen"—the vicar raised his voice and by a gesture silenced the orchestra—"I have to lay before you a conspiracy which I believe is unparalleled in any history. You are aware that Lord Fylingdale, who stands before you, came to the spa a few weeks ago for purposes best known to himself. You will also doubtless remember that certain persons who arrived before him were loud in his praises. He was said by them to be a model of all the virtues. I will not repeat the things that were said."

"All this," said Lord Fylingdale, "is beside the mark. I come to claim my wife."

"Among those who accepted these statements for gospel was Captain Crowle, the guardian of the young lady beside me. It was to him a great honor to be admitted to converse with so distinguished a nobleman and to be permitted to consult with him as to the affairs of his ward. He even informed his lordship of the extent of the lady's fortune, which is far greater than was generally understood. Thereupon his lordship began to pay attention of a marked character. You have all, I believe, remarked these attentions. Then came the attempted abduction and the lady's rescue by Lord Fylingdale. After this he formally offered his hand and his rank to the lady. The honor seemed very great. He was accepted. He then engaged the lady to undertake a private marriage without festivities, to which she consented. She promised, in fact, to be married at St. Nicholas' church this very morning at 6 o'clock."

"All this," said Lord Fylingdale coldly, "is quite true, yet why you detain the company to the narrative I do not understand. The lady kept her promise. I met her at the place and time appointed. We were married. Once more, Captain Crowle, I claim my wife."

"Ladies and gentlemen," the vicar continued, "there is but one reply to the last statement, for the lady did not keep her engagement."

"Sir"—his lordship advanced a step—"are you aware of the meaning of words? Do you assert that I was not married at that time and in that place?"

The Rev. Benjamin Purden advanced. "Sir," he addressed the vicar, "like his lordship, I am amazed at these words. Why, sir, I myself—I myself at 6 o'clock this morning performed the marriage service as prescribed by the church for the right honorable the Earl of Fylingdale and Miss Mary Miller."

CHAPTER XVII.

"AT YOUR PERIL."

By this time the company were crowding round, eagerly listening. No one could understand what had happened. The bridegroom claimed his bride. The bride's friends denied that she was married.

"Yesterday," the vicar went on, "there arrived simultaneously three letters. One of them, an anonymous letter, was addressed to Captain Crowle; one, from a respectable bookseller in London, was addressed to Mr. Pentecrosse, master of the grammar school, and one, from a certain fellow of his college at Cambridge, was addressed to me. All these letters together contained charges which show how deeply we have been deceived."

"Have a care! Have a care!" said Lord Fylingdale.

"By these letters and other sources," the vicar continued, "I learn first as to the noble lord's friends the following particulars:

"I find that the Lady Anastasia Langston hath been lately presented by the grand jury of Middlesex for keeping a house riotous, of great extravagance, luxury, idleness and ill fame.

"I am informed that Lady Anastasia hath held a bank every night in this place, to the hurt and loss of many.

"I turn next to the case of the Rev. Benjamin Purden, who stands before you. He was the tutor of Lord Fylingdale. He is described as the companion of his vices. He was the cause last year of a grievous scandal at Bath. He is the author of a ribald piece of verse, by which he has corrupted many. No bishop would sanction his acceptance of the smallest preferment."

"This is very surprising," said Mr. Purden, shaking his big head, "but we shall see, we shall see—immediately."

"There are next the two gentlemen known as Sir Harry Malyns and Colonel Lanyon. Their occupation is to act as decoy ducks, to lure young men to the gaming table and to plunder them when they are caught."

Both these gentlemen started, but neither replied.

"I now come to the noble lord before me. He is a most notorious profligate. He shares in Lady Anastasia's gaming house. He has long since been refused admittance into the houses of persons of honor. He is an inveterate gambler. He has ruined his own estate, sold the family plate and pictures, library, everything. He is at this moment unable to borrow or to raise the smallest sum of money. The Fleet and the King's Bench prisons are full of the unfortunate tradesmen who trusted him and the young rakes whom he has ruined.

"Ladies and gentlemen, this was the story which reached us yesterday, fortunately in time. Miss Molly broke off her promise and wrote to his lordship for explanations. Captain Crowle called upon his lordship this morning for explanations. He was met with derision. He was told that he was too late—the young lady was already married; there was no necessity for any explanations."

The company murmured. Voices were raised demanding explanations.

"My friends," said his lordship coldly, "these inventions need no reply. I claim my wife."

"She is not your wife," said the vicar. "We are ready to prove that at 6 o'clock the young lady was already engaged with her mother in the stillroom or some other occupation. Of that there is no doubt possible. But"—and here he lifted a warning finger, but his lordship paid no attention—"there was a wedding early this morning. His reverence, Mr. Purden, performed the service. The wedding was in the name of Mary Miller as bride. The registers are signed 'Mary Miller.' This is therefore a conspiracy."

"You talk nonsense," said his lordship, who certainly carried it off with an amazing assurance. "I claim my wife. Once more, madam, will you come with me?"

"I am not your wife."

"We must endeavor," said the vicar, "to find the woman who personated Miss Molly. The clerk of the parish testifies to the wedding, but he does not appear to have seen the face of the bride. Whoever she was she wore a domino and had thrown her hood over her face."

The Lady Anastasia stepped forward, agitating her fan. "Reverend sir," she said to the vicar, "in matters of society you are a very ignorant and a very simple person. It is quite true that I have been presented by a Middlesex jury for gambling. It is also true that half London might also be presented. As for the rest of your statements—that, for instance, Lord Fylingdale shares in the profits of my bank—let me assure you that your innocence has been abused. These things are not true. However, it is not for me to answer public insults in a public place. Sir Harry, my old friend, they call you a decoy, even you, with your name and your reputation. A decoy! Sir, your cloth should shame you. Sir Harry, take me to my chair. If tomorrow morning the company thinks proper to dissociate itself from this public insult, I will remain in this place, where, I own, I have never found many friends. If not, I shall return to London and to the house presented by the grand jury of Middlesex."

So saying, she retired smiling and, as they say of soldiers, in good order; with her, also in good order, the ancient beau, with no other signs of agitation than a trembling of the knees, and this might very well be laid to the account of his threescore years and fifteen or perhaps fourscore.

Lord Fylingdale once more turned to Molly.

"Madam, for the last time"—

"Send him away—send him away," said Molly. "He makes me sick."

"We deny the marriage, my lord," said the vicar. "That is all we have to say."

"At your peril," replied his lordship. So saying he walked away unmoved apparently. Mr. Purden and Colonel Lanyon went with him. Both men were flushed in the cheeks and restrained themselves by an evident effort. I was sorry for Sam Semple, for he followed, his face full of trouble and disappointment.

When they were gone, the vicar spoke once more.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "we have thought it best to court the greatest publicity possible in this matter. The people whom we have exposed will not again trouble this company by their presence. I know not what the law may decide in this case, supposing his lordship so ill advised as to go to law. But the truth, which is above the law, remains that an imposture of the most daring kind has been attempted, and that some woman has been found to personate Miss Molly. I have to express her sorrow for keeping you so long from your pleasures."

"MADAM, FOR THE LAST TIME"

And with these words he offered his hand to Molly, and we withdrew and the music struck up a lively country dance.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CONFESSION.

When, six months later, I returned from a cruise, I found that Lord Fylingdale, having agreed to leave Molly free, had been put into possession without resistance of the bulk of her fortune and was making "ducks and drakes" with it in London.

There came into my head the thought that I might somehow, by going to London, find out what manner of life was led by my lord and in what ways he wasted and scattered Molly's substance. I could do nothing to stop or to hinder the waste, yet when one knows the truth it is generally more tolerable than the uncertainty.

I thought over the plan for some days. It assumed clearer shape. It became a purpose. Molly, for her part, neither approved nor disapproved. She was for letting the man who pretended to be her husband work his wicked will and do what he pleased provided that he left her in peace.

The end of it was that I went to London, riding with a small company and meeting with no adventures on the way; that I put up at one of the inns outside Bishopsgate and that I found out my cousin and put the whole case before him. He was a grave and responsible citizen, a churchwarden and of good standing in the Stationers' company.

"You want to know how Lord Fylingdale spends his money. I can help you in this business."

It was by the kind offices of this gentleman, whom I found to be a person of quick wit and ready understanding, besides being of a most obliging disposition, that I was enabled to see with my own eyes an evening such as my lord loved. As for the details, you must, if you please, hold me excused. Let it suffice that our observations began at a gaming house and ended at a tavern. At both places I kept in the background because I would not be recognized by Lord Fylingdale.

He came in to the gaming table with the same lofty, cold carriage which he had shown at our humble assembly. He advanced to the table; he began to play. No one could tell from his lordship's face whether he lost or won. In half an hour or so my friend returned to my corner. "He has lost a cool £500. They are whispering round the table that he loses hundreds every evening. All the world is asking what gold mine he possesses that he can stand these losses."

"I know his gold mine," I replied, with a sigh. "But it is nearly exhausted."

We staid a little longer. It was about 10 or 11 in the evening that his lordship left the table.

"Come," said my friend. "I know the tavern where he will spend the next three or four hours. I can take you there. The bowls of punch and the company and everything is provided at his lordship's expense. Mr. Pentecrosse, it must be not a gold mine, but a mine of Golconda, to hear this profusion."

"I tell you, sir, whatever it is, the mine is nearly run out."

"It will not be bad for the morals of the town when it has quite run out."

As regards the tavern and its company, it is indeed astonishing to me that any man should find pleasure in such a company and in such discourse. At the head of the table sat my lord. He appeared to be neither pleased nor displeased. The drink flowed like a stream of running water. It seized on all and made their faces red, their voices thick. The noble leader sat unmoved, or, if moved at all, then by a kind of contempt. At 2 o'clock he arose and walked out into the street, where his chair awaited him.

"This is his humor," said my guide. "Play is his passion. It is the one thing that he lives for."

So I had learned all that I wanted to know. It was now quite certain that we were within a very short distance

The SUNNY SOUTH is the Great Literary Weekly of the South. It is devoted to Literature, Romance, Fact and Fiction, and gives the best of all that is current in its field. Among its contributors the most noted southern writers appear—Joel Chandler Harris, Harry Stillwell Edwards and others of growing fame. Serial stories from Anthony Hope, Maurice Thompson, Sidney R. Crockett, Mrs. George Corbett and Arthur W. Marchmont have appeared, and others are in waiting from the pen of authors of national note. A short story contest brought out nearly five hundred splendid short stories, all worthy a place in The SUNNY SOUTH'S readable columns. Other contests are contemplated that will successfully exploit the ripening field of talent that only needs such fostering to illustrate the wealth that is shy to assert itself.

The SUNNY SOUTH teems with the life of the great south. The genial sunshine warms everything into activity and the season is never cold enough to check the hand of industry. The paper comes fragrant with the breath of the magnolia and pine, and gives out the very air of the orange, palm and bay. The beauty and pathos, the romance and mystery of the land where the corn stores up the golden sunshine and the cotton whitens in the moonlight, will be given in the well-filled columns of this fascinating weekly.

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

THE MESSAGE ON THE MERGER.

That the legislature in special session in 1902 will uphold the governor of the state in his fight for the laws of the state, and will uphold the legislature of 1874 in its prophetic enactment against the modern merger is a foregone conclusion. The sanctity of the state law has been violated by one of the state's citizens, and the sovereignty of the State of Minnesota has been threatened by a corporation which deliberately organized itself in foreign territory in hope of escaping the vigilance of the North Star state. The law of '74 is not a crime of '74. Those important sections of the General Statutes, 2716 and 2717, have been pronounced constitutional by the United States supreme court, before which they now appear for further interpretation, and the provisions they embody have been pronounced to be a wise public policy. It is not expected that the supreme court will now reverse itself. Certainly it is expected that the legislature of Minnesota will not reverse itself after a period of more than a quarter of a century, during which the law against parallel and competing lines has forced the development of the state from border to border.

The legislature will uphold the governor. That is evidently the unanimous determination, which does not require a vote to become established. If appropriation be required the legislature will grant whatever be necessary to meet the array of talent in the employ of the opposition. There are lawyers in the state and the United States who can balance the opposing counsel, and the case is of sufficient moment to command their services.

The State of Minnesota has an important duty to perform, not only for itself, but for the entire North west, stretching to the western sea. With one exception all the states on the northern border, from Superior to the Pacific, have repeated the Minnesota law of '74. To Minnesota is assigned the task of battling for this supreme law of a section. With a harmonious body of lawmakers to support the law of their fathers enacted, and with the overwhelming sentiments of a united people behind it, Minnesota will carry to a conclusion this battle so vigorously begun by a governor who recognizes the meaning of his oath of office.—St. Paul Dispatch.

The Polk county division proposition may well cause Crookston uneasiness now, inasmuch as Fosston and McIntosh are apparently combining, with a determination to get division first and settle the county seat matter later among themselves. In event of this alliance holding out through the campaign, it will be a safe wager that eastern Polk will be cut off and the county reduced to proportions which do not on the map resemble a porcupine on the defensive. In this connection, the McIntosh Times says:

Editor Hunt of the Gully Sunbeam, is making a vain attempt to start the county division ball rolling by the sic'um McIntosh, sic'um Fosston process. Possibly he will succeed, but we doubt if any true friend of division will be caught in such a trap. The better plan would be for all to pull together for division, let the stronger win, and then fight out our local differences afterwards.

THE CUBAN TARIFF.

The storm still rages in congress over the subject of tariff concessions to Cuba. Representative Tawney, member of the ways and means committee, says:

"The hearings before our committee do not bear out statements that there is a terrible condition of affairs in Cuba. On the contrary, labor is well employed. All of the labor that can be utilized in growing sugar is now at work, and if the sugar industry is extended, outside labor must come in. Compared with conditions in Cuba, under former conditions, that island is like a paradise."

Those Minnesota farmers w h have profited by the beat sugar industry don't like the idea of discrimination against them in favor of "Poor Cuba." Senator Nelson presented a resolution in the senate Friday from a farmers' meeting in Douglas county, this state, in which they declare that beet sugar raising is a profitable industry in Minnesota and that any reduction or removal of the duty on raw sugar coming in from Cuba would be strongly detrimental to the farming interests of Minnesota.

PRINCE HENRY AND THE ANARCHISTS.

The Anarchist papers, especially Free Society, of Chicago, and Freiheit, of New York, have recently published threats against Prince Henry, who is to visit this country. Freiheit, in one of its late issues, publishes a page of denunciation of the Prince, the language of which, according to the Baltimore American, is of vulgar character and is of a kind that night lead a weak-minded fellow to consider it his duty to do harm to the royal visitor. The Brooklyn Eagle says:

"What these madmen and idiots in Chicago expect to accomplish in an attack on the German Prince is not worth going into, for they know less than any one else; but the fact that they are inciting violence justifies a close watch of them, and to seclude them in jails during the royal visit would be only a sensible measure of protection. It is. to be sure, a satisfaction to know that there is not an American in the whole band, yet if the Prince were hurt while in this country, too many of his people would charge the outrage upon his hosts, and instead of being lessened the friction that has from time to time been manifest between this country and Germany would be increased. But no such attack must be made. Chicago will be held accountable for every untoward attack act and utterance of the wrongheads whom it shelters, and if it becomes necessary to put every one of them behind the bars while the Prince is inspecting the stock-yards, sausage, the post-office, the sewer, and the other beauties of the Middle West, let them be placed there."

The east has had another blizzard. If it would only let up now long enough for the benighted denizens to move out into the sunlit northwest where the warm, balmy breezes consume the sensitive snow flake, until we needs must use wheels instead of runners!

The High School debates have drawn Red Lake Falls and Crookston into closer sympathy than ever in the history of the two places—which history is not a milk and water story, by the way.

The Crookston Times is like a flower without a scent when the Around the Valley feature is missing. But during this tax list setting time we can make all kinds of allowances.

Representative Rapp says the legislature is in a muddle over the tax bill. Nobody knows just what to do, and he is wishing for a Daniel.

Bradstreet reports show that 80 per cent. of the business firms that failed did not advertise. This is no day dream, but a solemn reality.

The merry quarrel between the Grand Forks Herald and Fargo Forum continues as a serial story.

SPEAK TRULY

Of all tantalizing people, those whom one cannot believe are the most aggravating. I can feel it when the truth is being twisted, as it were, and more than once I have spoken out thus: "Please do not go to the trouble of doctoring your statement to suit the occasion. Tell the truth about the matter or remain silent." It is a pity that one cannot always silence untruth in that way.

Many mothers tell their children "fibs" which are unearthed later by the youngsters. I believe in always speaking the truth to the little ones and also in always keeping a promise. If a child can place absolute confidence in its mother there is a great victory gained. I've heard children say, "Mother said so, and she always tells the truth." I think where there is a tendency to telling untruths the habit was nearly always acquired in early youth. Parents think a young child cannot judge, and overlook the little fibs of their youngsters. These see that they escaped punishment, or censure at any rate, and just here is the beginning of so terrible a habit. Do speak truly dear reader. Cultivate honesty. Insist on absolutely truthful statements from the young. No one can expect to bring up a good child, who will make statements just to suit the circumstances. You can show a child how it grieves you to hear a wrong statement. Have your little ones upright above all. Teach them to come to you in trouble. It is more pleasing to any mother to have a child say: "Mother, I broke your pretty vase, I am very sorry," than it would be to find the shattered remains on your parlor floor and know it would be useless to try discovering the identity of the culprit. If you are a just mother you will not punish the child after it comes to you to explain about a broken dish or a torn garment. Mothers, I've seen both ways used. The mothers of well trained children are the gainers, to be sure. Life is miserable in a home were all are at cross purposes.

A poet says:

"Thou must be true thyself
If thou the truth would teach.
Thy soul must overflow if thou
Another soul wouldst reach.
It needs the overflowing heart
To give the lips full speech.
THINK TRULY, and thy thought
Shall be the world's fame read;
SPEAK TRULY, and thy word
Shall be a faithful deed;
LIVE TRULY, and thy life shall be
A great and noble creed."

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children:

Here is a true story about our dearly loved George Washington. You know, I've no doubt, all about what a good and great man he was. He lived on a large farm called plantation in the South. His mother owned a beautiful sorrel colt of which she was very proud, even though people said it could never be trained. One day George and his companions were looking at the colt when George decided it was time to break it. And break that colt he did but at a terrible cost. For just when it looked as if the colt would come and go as George wished there was one mad plunge and the colt burst a blood vessel and dropped dead.

George did the only thing to be done in such a case. He informed mother of just what had happened. She, wise and good, was proud to feel that her son would tell the truth under all circumstances.

George had always been a good boy. Even though he could jump the farthest, run the fastest, and swim the longest he was always kind and gentle. His great wish was to be a sailor, but when he saw that it grieved his mother he said: "All right, mother, I'll stay here and help on the farm." And he did as he said he would.

You will learn many things about this great man from your kind teachers but I think that it is one of the greatest things to speak truly always, even if it is hard to do, and I hope none of my dear nieces and nephews will ever say a word that is not true.

HOUSEHOLD.

A small stone in the tea kettle will do away with the hardened crust (so trying to all housekeepers) which will otherwise form on the inside of all tea kettles.

A table spoon of borax in the boiler helps to whiten linens and is not harmful.

There is nothing to appear in this Corner which has not been tried by the writer and found to be a help. Therefore, busy house keepers need have no fear in trying any of the hints given.

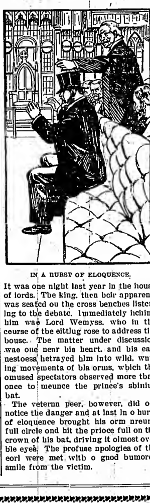
When He Struck the King.

It is not often that a subject can claim to have struck a king and yet survive and be accounted the most estimable of men. But this record belongs to the veteran Lord Wemyss, who has lately celebrated his eighty-third birthday, says London M. A. P.



IN A BURST OF ELOQUENCE.

It was one night last year in the house of lords. The king, then heir apparent, was seated on the cross benches listening to the debate. Immediately behind him was Lord Wemyss, who in the course of the sitting rose to address the house. The matter under discussion was one near his heart, and his earnestness betrayed him into wild, waving movements of his arms, which the amused spectators observed more than once to menace the prince's shining hat.

The veteran peer, however, did not notice the danger and at last in a burst of eloquence brought his arm around full circle and hit the prince full on the crown of his hat, driving it almost over his eyes. The profuse apologies of the earl were met with a good humored smile from the victim.

CHASED BY WOLVES.

Minnesota Man Pursued Four Miles by a Hungry Pack.

Duluth, Feb. 5.—Wolf stories are getting pretty close to town. A small pack chased George Rohr of this city a distance of four miles, and only abandoned the pursuit when their prospective victim arrived at the Lakewood pumping station nine miles east of the city.

Mr. Rohr is a boilermaker and had gone to one of the camps on the north shore to repair a boiler on the Alger, Smith & Co.'s logging road. He completed his work about dark and started immediately for home. Soon after leaving French river a number of wolves came up behind the cutter and soon demonstrated that they were out for prey. Mr. Rohr had a good horse and started him on the run. There were only five of the wild beasts and it is supposed they were trying to summon others as they howled almost incessantly.

The animals drew very close at times, but hesitated about leaping into the cutter or attacking the horse, until, at the end of a four-mile run, the good horse and his frightened driver reached the pumping station, near Lakewood depot.

RED RIVER RESERVOIRS.

Nearby Residents Want the Water Captured and Kept.

Washington, Feb. 10.—An effort is being made to induce congress to make appropriations for the construction of storage reservoirs in the Red River valley. Dr. Kelcey of White Rock, Minn., and Major Edwards of Fargo, N. D., are here for the purpose of impressing upon the war department officials and members of congress the value of conserving the surplus waters in the Red River valley, which are not only lost every spring, but result in considerable damage to the farming country in the region affected. Major Edwards and Dr. Kelcey will have a conference with Colonel MacKenzie of the war department with a view to having a recommendation submitted to congress for a survey of the proposed reservoir project.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glase, an employe of Bartlett & Dennie Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore by this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines.' For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." How to Save Money.

Feeds of all kinds are high, but we will cut down your feed bill one-half. How? Read on and you will know. We have concluded to exchange bran and shorts for oats for ten days, and we will give you 2300 lbs. of bran and shorts, mixed, for 2000 lbs. of oats. 3200 lbs. of bran and shorts will feed a horse, cow, colt or any other animal as long as 4000 lbs. of oats will this year, as the oats are very light; one-third to one-half being chaff and no better than straw. Some say that bran and shorts will make a horse fat, but that he will not be strong or fat, but that he will not be strong or have endurance. Did you ever see a workingman that was betting fat, but that he was also strong? Have you not noticed that your horses are not doing well this winter? And why? "Because the oats are poor and light" you say. Give your horse a change; don't feed him oats three times a day for twenty years. You may ask if oats are poor and only worth half as much for feed as bran and shorts, why do you exchange. First, because there are thousands of men that own horses the same as you do, but do not understand the value of bran and shorts for feed.

Second, there are others who do not care to bother to give their horses a change of feed, and

Third, we want to demonstrate to the farmers of this vicinity the feeding value of bran and shorts.

The only people who understand the value of bran and shorts as feed for stock, are the dairy farmers of Illinois and the eastern states. They pay $28 00 to $30 00 per ton for bran and shorts to feed to their cows, and take all the Northwestern mills can make. There is no question but that you can carry your horses, colts, cows and calves throught the balance of the winter at just one half the cost by feeding bran and shorts. We are always spending money for advertising, and for ten days we are going to spend a little money in this exchange, and give the farmers and feeders of stock the benefit. We do this exchanging at our Crompe elevator or at the mill. Come in and see us.

Church Notes.

Feb. 9 is Quinquogesima (fiftieth) Sunday, being the first Sunday before Ash Wednesday and fifty days before Lent.

Feb. 9 is also the day of St. Appolionia, patroness against toothache and all diseases of the teeth. She was martyred by first having her teeth pulled out, one by one, and then she was burned to death.

Feb. 11 is the anniversary of the birth in 1735 of Daniel Boone, the pioneer and writer; of A. H. Stephen, Confedarate vice president, in 1812; of Thomas Alva Edison, American inventor, in 1847. Feb. 11 is a legal holiday in Alabama and the parish of New Orleans, La., being Mardi-Gras.

Feb. 12 this year is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, a season of forty days of fasting and solemnity in the Episcopal and Catholic churches. It commemorates the abstinence of Jesus before his temptaion. In the Catholic church a ceremony is in vogue wherein the faithful are reminded that they are dust and ashes, in which the priest sprinkles dust and ashes, with holy water, blesses them, and makes the sign of the cross on the worshiper's forehead with them, saying in Latin, "Remember, man, that thou art dust, and unto dust shalt return."

No fewer than 4,000 Paris landlords have refused to provide a proper drainage system in their houses in accordance with the new sanitary regulations.

The world's national indebtedness is estimated at $31,201,749,274, ten times as great as the world's national debts amounted to during the Napoleonic wars.

Ten thousand English sovereigns, after lying for nearly 125 years at the bottom of East bay, Lake Champlain, have been recovered and are now deposited in the Allen National bank in Fairhaven.

The gas accounts of the city of Glasgow show a total revenue for the past year of £869,492 and expenditure of £842,423. The quantity of gas made was 6,121,367,500 cubic feet and the quantity sold 5,475,124,000 feet.

The city of Philadelphia has in its treasury more than $75,000 belonging to persons who never called for it when their bonds, registered and nonregistered, matured and became payable or who left uncollected coupons on their bonds.

The newest floral wonder is the Shasta daisy, originated by a flower grower of California. It measures a foot in circumference and when one was exhibited recently in a florist's window in San Francisco people literally flocked to see it.

Deer forests are much more expensive in Scotland than grouse moors. They range from £1,000 to £4,000 or even £5,000 for the season, according to the sport obtained and whether the place gives salmon fishing and grouse shooting as well as deerstalking.

Last year 386 tons of cigarettes, valued at $1,737,000, or fully five times as many as ten years ago, were consumed in Germany. These cigarettes came from France, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Turkey, Egypt, Algeria and the United States, 60 per cent, coming from Egypt.

A good portion of the money invested in Hawaii is owned by residents of the islands, but some comes from the United States. Not long ago a loan of a quarter of a million dollars on the estates inherited by Prince David and Prince Cupid was taken up by San Francisco capital.

The great iron ore companies of Spain have combined under English capital, and fifteen immense and modern blast furnaces will be built as quickly as the material can be furnished. England must have cheap steel to meet American competition, and this is the only way to get it.

Two large German iron concerns, the Hasper and the Boroper, which paid respectively 30 per cent and 15 per cent dividends last year, have passed their 1901 dividends. The Hasper carries forward its entire net earnings as a special reserve against possible losses on the company's accumulated stock of iron.

An arrangement has just been made whereby the Berlin gas lamps in the streets will be lighted automatically and simultaneously by means of an electric attachment. The current will be switched on from the central station, and a spark will ignite the gas, which will be turned on by a special apparatus.

Paris is only just beginning to realize the priceless treasures which it has secured by the late Baron Adolph Rothschild's bequest of mediæval gold and silver smiths' work to the Louvre. It will all go into one room, which is now being prepared for it, but it will represent a value of $4,000,000. Most of the objects are connected with religion.

In St. Louis the nutcracking industry gives employment to a considerable number of persons, there being three plants in the city. The nutcrackers are driven by electricity, each nut being fed individually into the crusher. After the shells are cracked the nuts are winnowed by an air blast, and the meat is picked from the crushed shells by hand, women and girls being employed for this part of the work.

There has lately been formed in France an international committee on the price of wheat. It has already received the support of France, Austria-Hungary, Portugal and Switzerland. The object of the association, or committee, is not simply to register after a mechanical fashion the prices quoted in the bourses of different countries, but to obtain influence, little by little, in the ultimate fixing of the market price.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

B. C. CHRISTESEN, A PIONEER, HANGS HIMSELF TO A RAFTER.

CUT DOWN BY HIS DAUGHTER BEFORE PULSE HAD CEASED TO BEAT.

The shocking news that B. C. Christesen had committed suicide by hanging himself, spread like wildfire through the city Monday morning, and inquiry proved the report all too true.

Mr. Christesen, who was between 62 and 63 years old, was a pioneer of Red Lake Falls, having moved here nineteen years ago. The past few years he has been living with his wife in a little cottage directly in the rear of the dwelling of his daughter, Mrs. H. C. Hanson. His health has been very poor and he has for some years shown signs of a lack of mental equilibrium, at times becoming quite violent, so much so that his relatives grew to fear and dread the frequent recurring "spells." Mr. Christesen himself after each one, seemed to be troubled by reflecting on his condition, which he fully realized, and the thought that he might while so afflicted, do injury to one or the other of his dear ones, especially to the grandchildren of whom he was exceedingly fond, often weighed heavily upon him, and it was no doubt to prevent any possibility of such an occurrence in a fit of insanity that he hung himself.

The terrible deed occurred Monday morning about eleven o'clock. He had done his chores as usual, and was working about the premises, when his stay in the barn grew suspiciously long. One of his daughters, Mrs. John Gjerberg, and his wife, becoming uneasy, went to the barn but could not find him. Thinking he might be in the hay loft, they called, but no response came. Then the old lady, who is about 67 years old, laboriously climbed a ladder up to the second floor. The sight that met her gaze must have frozen the blood in her veins—her husband's limp body was hung suspended from a rafter! She sprang to the almost lifeless body and frantically tried to tear the several cords of thin manilla twine which held him, but this was impossible. A knife was then hurriedly procured, and again the faithful wife endeavored to sever the ropes, succeeding only partially when she fainted. The task was completed by the daughter. The body was still warm. Help soon came in response to her cries. Her husband and Fred Taylor were soon on the scene. Mr. Taylor says the suicide's pulse was beating very faintly, but before anything could be done life was extinct. The position of the body was such that Christesen must have held his feet off the floor to accomplish his purpose, as he could not have stood up straight under the rafter to which he attached the rope, and his feet were dragging on the floor, with his knees in a bent position.

The funeral occurred yesterday morning, the remains being interred in Oakwood cemetery.

Mr. Christeson was a good man and a highly respected citizen, and the rash act is of course the result of his frequent spells of sickness, which weakened his mind and made him irresponsible.

His relatives have the sincere sympathy of all in this double bereavement.

MINNESOTA WHEAT

YIELDS ONE AND A HALF BU. MORE PER ACRE THAN OTHER KINDS.

Willett M. Hayes, agriculturist of the Minnesota Experimental station, is sending out some information regarding experiments with a new variety of wheat which will be of great interest to Minnesota people generally. It is as follows:

"The Minnesota Experiment Station, in co-operation with the state experiment stations, in surrounding states, and with the United States department of agriculture, is originating new varieties of various field crops. Ten years ago from a single selected plant of fife wheat, a new variety was selected and named Minn. No. 163. Numerous other varieties were originated in a similar manner. But this variety proved superior to the others and the experiment station, aided by its co-operators and farmers to whom these co-operators sold seed, has increased this variety so that about 100,000 bushels were raised in 1901.

"We have evidence as good as a daily bank balance, that this new variety is adding one and one-half bushels per acre, on the average, to the wheat yields wherever it supplants the common fife and blue stem wheats, heretofore well nigh universally grown. One and one-have bushels average increase per acre, or ten per cent, without any added costs is of great importance to a farm or county. If 50,000 bushels of this wheat is sown next spring and increased four fold yearly for four years, it would sow the entire acreage of wheat in the state, with a large surplus for neighboring states. Minnesota produces annually 65,000,000 bushels of wheat. An increased yield of 10 per cent. would add 6,500,000 bushels, or, at present prices, $4,500,000 to the state income.

"Many who have this wheat report that they are finding a demand for their entire stock of seed. We are advising them by special letters, so far as we have their addresses, to advertise this seed in the local press.

"The milling quality of this wheat is the same as for all good blue stem or fife wheat. This variety of wheat was not widely distributed until it had shown its general ability to add largely to the wealth of the state. The claims made for it are not exaggerated, and it promises to become a standard wheat of the state, as was its parent, common red fife. The former record has been more than sustained in 1901. The experiment station has no financial interest in the seed of this wheat, it having been sold to several hundred farmers and seed growers under pedigree certificates. But the state is interested in having this wheat widely used, that the average yield of Minnesota's wheat crop may be larger. To avoid endless confusion, the experiment station desires that its registered variety numbers, preceded by Minn. 163 wheat be adhered to and that the growers and dealers do not give them new names. The seeds are more valuable because their names show the connection of certain seeds with actual field and milling tests."

TREATY WITH INDIANS.

Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls Assured That Red Lake Reservation Will be Opened.

Mayor Frank H. Kratka of Thief River Falls is on his way home from Washington and writes Mayor Campbell to learn if a stenographer and type writer can be secured at Crookston to accompany Mayor Kratka and Inspector McLaughin to the Red Lake Agency where they will make a treaty with the Indians. Mayor Campbell has replied stating such a person could be secured here. The negotiations will begin in about two weeks and it now appears that the long wished for day when the rich agricultural lands adjoining Thief River Falls on the east will soon be opened for settlement and homestead entry.

The opening of those lands means a big boom for Thief River Falls and a good thing in general to the people of the Red River Valley.—Crookston Times.

HELEN KELLER'S FIRST EARNINGS.

She wanted Money to Buy an Island for a Summer Home and She Earned It.

There is a pretty story in connection with the series of articles which Helen Keller, the wonderful blind girl, has written for The Ladies' Home Journal, telling about her own life from infancy to the present day. She has always shrunk from the publicity which follows successful literary work, and it was with great difficulty that she was persuaded to take up the task of preparing her autobiography. She has, however, set her heart on owning an island in Halifax harbor for a summer home, and in a spirit of fun the editor of The Journal offered to buy it for her, or to provide the means to buy it. When the work of writing appeared especially irksome Miss Keller was reminded of her desire to become a land-owner, and it spurred her on. Just before Christmas she completed the first chapter of her marvelous story: and on Christmas morning she received from her publishers a check for a good round sum. Her delight may be imagined, for this was the first money of any account which she had ever earned. "It is a fairy tale come true," she said. Whether she really carry out her plan to buy the island remains to be seen.

SCHAENAUER WON.

Had a Right to Withdraw Land Listed With Agency.

A case decided in district court here will be of interest to real estate dealers in the upper country. It was an action brought by the Union Land & Investment company against Paul Schaenauer, against whom an alleged violation of contract was urged. Schaenauer listed his land with the company to be sold at a fixed price, and afterward withdrew the offer. The company sold the land in spite of this, after being notified of the withdrawal, and attempted to force defendant to ratify the sale. This he refused to do and the company brought suit to recover the amount of the commission they would have made on the sale. The decision was against the company with costs.

The suit is important as having a bearing on the numerous land sales now being made in this vicinity. The company held to the contention that defendant could not withdraw his land after once listing it for sale.

PORTENTOUS MOVE

ORDER FROM WASHINGTON TO CLEAR SEC. 15 AND 16 AT CASS LAKE.

THIS IS PART OF THE CITY AND A BIG FIGHT SEEMS IN STORE.

Special Agent M. D. McEniry, who is stationed at Crookston, has been ordered by the department of the interior to proceed to Cass Lake "to make an investigation into the sanitary conditions existing among the squatters on section 16 and that part of section 15 not embraced in the townsite and to cause the removal of all squatters from the land."

Plats of the tracts are being prepared in Washington and Mr. McEniry will move on Cass Lake in a few days, it is expected. The squatters are on the reservation and pay no tax or expenses of a lease. It is believed they will resist eviction and that many collisions and a vast amount of trouble will ensue. Those who are well posted as to the situation say it will no doubt be necessary to call out the troops before the orders of the interior department can be executed.

G. G. Hartley, of Duluth, bought the townsite for $16,000 and has spent more thousands for improvement.

The "sanitary" feature of the order is not understood here, but it is thought to be a blind of some sort which will be revealed in a few days.

Mr. McEniry, who is one of the two special agents of the interior department stationed at Crookston is at Bismark, N. D., at present, but is expected home within a few days, and he will probably comply with the department's order as soon as he returns. There is considerable speculation as to the cause of the order, some believing that it was instigated by the owners of the townsite of Cass Lake with the intention of compelling the squatters on section 16 to come over into the city proper and buy lots, while others insist that it is simply evidence of the department's intention to open the reservation for settlement, and that the department intends to clear the land so as to afford all an equal chance.

RED LAKE FALLS TEACHERS HAVE ARRANGED THREE ENTERTAINMENTS.

HIGH CLASS CULTURAL SPECIALTIES---FOR BENEFIT OF SCHOOL LIBRARY.

The Red Lake Falls Teachers' Association has arranged for three high-grade entertainments, the dates for which are Mar. 8 and 24 and April 10. With commendable enterprise the Association has secured the co-operation of the Slayton Entertainment Bureau, under whose management such famous people as President Roosevelt, and Henry Watterson and Wm. J. Bryan have lectured. It is sufficient then to say in advance that the entertainments to be afforded will be of the highest and most refined order of merit.

The first will be the Slayton Jubilee Singers, an aggregation of colored artists, Mar. 8.

On March 24, Mrs. Olof Krarer, an Esquimaux, born in Greenland, will give a lecture on the character and customs of her people. The little woman stands just 40 inches high and weighs 120 lbs. She is a curiosity in herself.

Last in the series is the Patricalo Concert Co. Four artists—violinist, pianist, elocutionist and soprano, form the personelle of this aggregation.

The price of admission will be for the course, reserved seats $1.00 for the three nights. For children in the public schools, 50c for the course.

Single tickets, reserved seats, 50c.

The proceeds over and above expenses go to the Public School Library.

The teachers are arranging for a famous lecturer later in the season, and admission to this will be free.

The Gazette will give complete details later.

TWO CASES

THE ELOPING COUPLE FROM ROSEAU COUNTY ARE HARD ONES.

THEY GET AWAY AGAIN AND THEIR SECOND ATTEMPT IS A WINNER.

That eloping couple from Roseau county, that created so much excitement and newspaper comment a few week ago, particulars of which were given in The Gazette has enacted the second chapter in the case and it reads much the same as did the first one.

It will be remembered that the wife of the man whose name reads all the way from Bernard Sires to John Lars, according to who is writing the story, deserted her deaf mute husband in Roseau county and left the country accompanied by a boyish young fellow whose name was given as Mike Fitch. The couple accompanied by the woman's four children were caught at Butte and returned to the authorities up north. There seems to have arisen a question of jurisdiction between the Roseau and Kittson county authorities concerning where the parties should be tried, and meantime they were liberated and allowed to do about as they pleased, the husband not pushing the matter of punishment.

The young man Fitch had received the sum of $2,000 from his father residing in a distant state, with which to secure legal counsel, and as there was no disposition to push the prosecution he seemed to think the money should be spent, and in default of a better way to do so, the couple decided to again elope.

They made their way to Donaldson where they boarded the train and came down to Crookston, taking passage at once for Grand Forks and the west. In coming through Stephen where there was a probability that the couple might run against some officers, the parties took opposite ends on the cars and secreted themselves in the closets, but no one showed up to molest them.

So far as learned no action has been taken to re-arrest the parties. Reports from the North line say that the citizens are indignant over the manner in which the case has been handled, and Governor Van Sant has been asked by an indignation meeting to take action against the lax method employed in administering justice.

STRIKE THE ROOT OF THE EVIL.

The Food and Dairy Commissioner has apparently come to the conclusion, as prominent health officers elsewhere have, that the alum baking powder evil has been temporized with long enough, and that drastic measures should be enforced to stop further harm from the use of alum in food. In his recent official report he says:

Several grocers have been arrested for selling powders containing alum, under that clause of the law which prohibits the sale of a powder containing any ingredient which is deleterious or injurious to the public health. But the most effective law against such evils would be one specifically and postively prohibiting the use of alum, formaldehyde, salicylic acid, boric acid, borax and other injurious substance, in any articles used as food, or in the preparation of food or drink, under penalty of fine or imprisonment. Such a law would prevent the sale of injurious substances for and in connection with food preparations, and be clearly beneficial to the public. It could be more easily enforced because the question as to what substances are considered as injurious would be largely eliminated.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

Senate Will Begin Discussion of the Tax Code Friday.

St. Paul, Feb. 17.—The Haugland resolution requesting the house tax committee to report the tax bill Monday morning was laid on the table after a hour's spirited discussion in the house.

Representative Nyquist's bill repealing the dog tax passed last winter was taken from the calendar, and placed on general orders, after a good deal of discussion.

Representative J. H. Dorsey of McLeod county, introduced a bill to secure uniformity in municipal elections, and to enable incorporated cities to hold municipal elections at the same time as the general elections of state and county officers.

In the senate, Senator H. J. Miller of Rock county, demanded the reconsideration of the bill relieving Former State Treasurer Bobleter from liability for state deposits in banks that suspended while he was in office. Senator J. D. Jones of Todd, presented a resolution for the recall of the bill, which had passed both houses.

The tax code will come before the senate on Friday, according to the present schedule. Then the long grind of considering the instrument section by section and the endless procession of amendments will begin.

COMPANIES ARE SEPARATE.

Great Northern So Insists in Anti-Merger Suit.

St. Paul, Feb. 13.—The Great Northern has filed its answer in the anti-merger suit begun by Milton L. Bearden and Sophia Barth Chapman. The assertion in the complaint that the object of the Northern Securities company was the absolute withdrawal of the stock representing the controlling interests and vesting it in the Northern Securities company with a view of perpetuating a combination of systems and placing the entire management and control in a central body is denied in every detail and particular.

The defendants say the corporations and managing boards are wholly independent of each other, and that each of the companies, its affairs and system of railroads have always been and are now managed, controlled and operated independently.

WILL MEET PRINCE HENRY.

Governor Van Sant to Represent Twin City German Societies.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Governor Van Sant of Minnesota will have a time accorded him during the visit of Prince Henry to Chicago to present an address to the royal visitor on behalf of the German societies of Minneapolis and St. Paul. This was determined at a meeting of the executive committee for the entertainment of the prince. This will be rather an unusual proceeding inasmuch as it will be the only one of the kind which will be allowed. Hundreds of requests have been received by the committee asking for permission to deliver written addresses to the prince, but it has been found necessary to refuse them. Governor Van Sant will come in person to deliver the address.

FED RABBITS TO WOLVES.

Lumberman Has an Exciting Experiences With the Pests.

Duluth, Feb. 17.—Gus Carlson, a tiemaker in the camp of Jacob Friendman, near Rice lake, had an exciting escape from a pack of wolves this week.

Carlson had been out snaring rabbits when the wolves closed in on him. Tiring from his efforts to escape by running, Carlson thought to throw a rabbit to his pursuers.

The pack stopped to fight over the rabbit, and Carlson made considerable progress.

By judiciously distributing the rabbits and industriously using his legs, he managed to get to camp—alive but a badly scared man.

Prisoners Barely Escape Cremation.

White Earth, Minn., Feb. 14.—Two drunken men who were creating a disturbance were arrested by the agency police and lodged in the agency jail. Shortly after the prisoners were locked up the jail was discovered to be on fire, and timely assistance only saved the two prisoners from cremation. The jail, a wooden structure, is a total loss.

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

SQUATTERS MUST GO

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT SO ORDERS IN THE CASE OF CERTAIN CASS LAKERS.

Immense Sale of White Pine Tributary to Duluth—St. Paul Railroad Employes Compelled to Be Vaccinated. Work Stopped on the Minnesota and International Railroad—News of the State in General.

Minneapolis, Feb. 17.—A Journal special says: The department of the interior has directed Special Agent W. B. McEniry, stationed at Crookston, to go to Cass Lake "to make an investigation into the sanitary conditions existing among the squatters on section 16 and that part of section 15 not embraced in the townsite and to take steps to cause the removal of all squatters from the land."

Plats of the tracts are being prepared here and Mr. McEniry will move on Cass Lake in a few days, it is expected. The squatters are on the reservation and pay no tax or expenses of a lease. It is believed they will resist eviction and that many collisions and a vast amount of trouble will ensue.

G. G. Hartley of Duluth, bought the townsite for $16,000, and has spent many thousands for improvements.

THREE HUNDRED MILLION FEET.

Immense Tract of White Pine Sold for $2,000,000.

Duluth, Feb. 17.—The last great individual body of white pine for sale in Wisconsin, and the last in this section, with the exception of one on the North shore, that is tributary to the mills of the Duluth-Superior harbor or Ashland, has just passed in to the hands of the Edward Hines Lumber company of Chicago, now said to be the biggest lumber operators in the United States.

The tract of pine referred to is situated eight or ten miles south of South Superior and lies east of Dedham, on the Eastern Minnesota road. It was owned by Messrs. Weyerhauser and Sauntry. The tract has sold for $2,000,000. There are about 300,000,000 feet of pine in the tract, and fully 95 per cent is white pine. It is said to be the greatest and finest body of white pine in the Northwest, and it will all be manufactured at the Head of the Lakes.

NO ONE EXEMPT.

All Railroad Employes at St. Paul Have to Be Vaccinated.

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—Health Commissioner Ohage's threats to sidetrack all trains entering St. Paul with a case of smallpox aboard if the employes were not vaccinated is having its effect. Orders instructing compliance have been issued from the headquarters of all St. Paul roads and has even extended to other cities, from which similar orders are being issued.

At the local health office the past three days two clerks have been busy scratching arms and the patients in nearly every instance are conductors, brakemen and sleeping car conductors who are complying with the latest order posted at the several terminals.

For convenience sake clerks armed with vaccine points have been stationed at the depot and other haunts of the railroad man and employe. No one is exempt.

JUDGE DICKINSON DEAD.

Former Member of the Minnesota Supreme Bench.

Duluth, Feb. 13.—Judge Daniel A. Dickinson died shortly after 5 a. m. at his home in this city after an illness that has confined him to his bed for a period of about four months, and has held him within its grasp for two years or more.

Judge Dickinson has been a resident of Duluth since 1894, at which time he left the supreme bench of the state of Minnesota and entered into a law partnership with W. W. Billson and Chester A. Congdon of this city.

STOP ALL ROAD WORK.

Engineers for Minnesota and International Called Off.

Duluth, Feb. 15.—It is reported in Duluth from what is believed to be a reliable source that the Minnesota and International road, which runs north from Bemidji, will not be extended to the Canadian boundary for perhaps a couple of years.

Color is given to the report by the taking off of the engineers in the field and the stopping of the work of cutting the right of way north of Black Duck, the present northern terminus, 30 miles from Bemidji.

WAS TERRIBLY MUTILATED.

Body of a Man Found on the Railroad Near Eckles, Minn.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 15.—The body of a man was found on the railroad track near Eckles, mutilated beyond recognition. It was headless and the flesh had been torn away in strips. The coroner is confident that the victim is a man named Spicer, about 45 years old, who was working in a lumber camp west of here. He came to Bemidji to get a tooth pulled and was evidently killed while en route home.

Hugo Gains One Vote.

Duluth, Feb. 14.—The official recount of the ballots cast at the recent election for mayor began during the day and three precincts were counted, resulting in a gain of one for Mayor Hugo over Truelsen, making his lead up to date 10 votes. This was due to the finding of one ballot that was marked for both Hugo and Dworschak, the Socialist candidate, but had been counted for Truelsen by the election judges.

Pioneer Conductor Killed.

Preston, Minn., Feb. 15.—W. W. Foote, for 30 years conductor on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, was run over and killed here. It is supposed his foot slipped in alighting from a car.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

she discoursed pleasantly in her soft and charming manner, as if she was made happy just by meeting me and as if she had always been thinking about me.

She placed me in a chair before the fire. She sat opposite. She rang the bell and called for tea. Then she began to talk about Lynn and its people.

"Tell me, Jack, about your friend Molly. Is she reconciled to her rank and title yet? I believe that she does not live with her husband."

"She denies that she was married."

"Ah! I have heard, in fact, that there is some sort of a story—a cock and a bull story—about the wedding."

"Another woman was substituted. Molly was at home."

"Another woman? Strange! Why was she substituted? Who was she?"

"I know not. The matter is a mystery. Certain it is, however, that Lord Fylingdale was married. I myself saw the wedding. I was in the church."

"You were in the church?" She raised her fan for a moment. "You were in the church? And you saw the wedding? Who was the bride?"

"I do not know. At the time I thought it was Molly."

"Jack," she leaned over, looking me full in the face, "have you no suspicion?"

"None. I cannot understand how all in a moment and when he found that Molly was not there the bridegroom found means to substitute another woman dressed as Molly should have been. I cannot understand it."

"It is, as you say, strange. Do you think you will ever find out?"

"Why not? There are three persons in the plot—Lord Fylingdale, Mr. Purden and the woman. One of the two last will perhaps reveal the truth."

She was silent for a moment.

"Well, and what are you doing in town?"

"I came to learn, if I can, something of Lord Fylingdale's private life."

"Have you succeeded?"

"He is a gambler and a rake. He is rapidly wasting the whole of poor Molly's fortune. In a few months or weeks it will all be gone."

"Yes," she replied. "All will be gone."

"First he took the money and the jewels."

"What?" She sat up suddenly. "He took the jewels?"

"He took them first. Then he sold the lands."

"Oh, tell me no more! He is wasting and destroying. It is his nature. First he took the jewels. How long ago?"

"Six months ago."

"He has had the jewels," she said, "has had them for six months?" Her face became hard and drawn as with pain. Her smiling mouth became hard. The light died out of her eyes. She became suddenly 20 years older. I wondered what this change might mean. You will think that I was a very simple person not to guess more from all these indications. She pushed back her chair and sprang to her feet. She walked over to the window and looked out upon the cold street, in which there were flying flakes of snow. Then she came back and stood before the fire. "You can go," she said harshly, not looking me in the face. "You can go," she repeated, forgetting her proffered hospitality of tea. "About that woman, Jack, you may find her yet. Many a wicked woman has been goaded by wrongs intolerable to confess her wickedness. I think you may find her. It will be too late to save Molly's fortune. But when it is all spent there will be a chance for you, Jack." She turned upon me a wan and sad smile. "Happy Molly!" she added, laying her hand upon my arm with the sweet graciousness that she could command. "Jack," she added, "I think we may pity that poor wretch who personated Molly. It was perhaps out of love for a worthless man. Women are so. It is not worth or virtue or ability or character that awakens love and keeps it alive. A woman, Jack, loves a man. There is nothing more to be said. If he is a good man, so much the better; if not, still she loves him." She sighed heavily. "What do you sailors know about women? Virtue, fame and fortune do not make love, nor, Jack, which is a hard thing for you to believe, does all the wickedness in the world destroy love. A woman may be goaded into revenge, but it makes her all the more unhappy because love remains."

"ARE YOU SAM SEMPLE?"

I went away, musing on this woman who sometimes seemed so true and earnest with all her fashion and affectations, for as she spoke about love the tears stood in her eyes as if she was speaking of her own case. But I never suspected her. I never had the least suspicion of her as the mysterious woman.

I took oars into the city and went to my cousin's shop, where there were half a dozen gentlemen talking volubly about new books, among them my friend who had taken me to the gaming house and to the tavern. When he saw me, he slipped aside. "Mr. Pentecrosse," he said, "your cousin reminds me that I once told him what I could learn concerning an unfortunate poet named Semple. If you would like to see him, I think I can take you to him."

I thanked him and said that I would willingly have speech of Mr. Semple.

So he led me down Little Britain and, by a maze of streets, to a place called Turnagain lane. He stopped at an open door. The street in the waning light looked squalid and the houses mean.

"The darling of Parnassus," he sa[illegible] "lies in the top chamber. You will fin[illegible] him there unless I mistake not, because he cannot conveniently go abroad."

So saying he left me, and I climbed up the dark and dirty staircase, some of the steps of which had been taken away for firewood, and presently found myself at the top of the last flight before a closed door. I knocked. A faint voice bade me come in.

There was no fire in the fireplace; there was no candle. By the faint light which struggled through the window I perceived that I was in a garret; that all the furniture visible was a bed and a man in the bed, a table and a chair. On the mantelshelf stood a candlestick without a candle and a tinder box.

"Who is it?" asked the man in the bed.

"I am in search of Sam Semple. Are you Sam Semple?"

"I know that voice." The man sat up. "Is it the voice of Jack Pentecrosse?"

"The same. What cheer, man?"

For all answer he burst out crying like a child.

"Oh, Jack," he said, "I am starving. I made up my mind to starve. I have no longer any clothes. I have not even a candle. I have no money. I have not even a sheet of paper to write a letter, and I deserve it all—yes, I deserve it all."

"Why, this is bad. But let me first get you some food. Then we will talk."

I went down stairs and found a woman who told me of a shop where I could get some necessaries, and I presently returned bearing food and a bottle of wine, some coals and candles and a warm coat, which I thought would be useful.

By the light of the candle and the fire I could perceive that the condition of the unhappy poet was miserable indeed. Never was there a more wretched den of a garret. The plaster had fallen from the walls, the window was mostly stuffed with rags in place of glass—in a word, everything betokened the greatest extremity of poverty. As for the man himself, he had neither coat, waistcoat nor shoes. He sat on the bed half dressed, but the rest of his wardrobe had been pawned or sold. There were no books, there were no papers, there was nothing to show his calling, and there was no sign of food.

At the sight of my basket and its contents the man fell to. With just such a rage have I seen a sailor picked up at sea from an open boat fall upon food and devour it. Nor did Sam finish till he had devoured the whole of the cold beef and bread, a goodly ration, and swallowed the whole of the bottle of wine, a generous allowance. Then he breathed a sigh of satisfaction and put on the thick coat which I had bought for him.

"Well," I said, "can we now talk?"

"Jack, you have saved my life. But I shall be hungry again tomorrow. Lend me a little money."

"I will lend you a guinea or two. But tell me first how you came here. I thought you were in the confidence of a certain noble lord."

"He is a villain, Jack. He is the greatest villain unhung. Oh, hanging is too good for him! After all I did for him! The lying villain!"

"Tell me more. What were you to get for it?"

"It was I who invented an excuse for taking my lord and his friends to Lynn."

"Yes, I understand. You invented the spa. The water in the well"—

"The water is very good water. It could do no harm. I wrote to the doctor. I invented the analysis, applying it from another. I told him about the discovery and the things said by the newspapers. There was no discovery. Nobody had heard of the water. No physician sent any of his patients there. The only visitors from London were my lord and his friends."

"They were all his friends, then?"

"All. His reverence is in the pay of Beelzebub, I believe. The colonel is a bully and a gamester. Sir Harry is a well known decoy. Lady Anastasia shares her bank with Lord Fylingdale. They were a nest of sharpers and villains, and their business and mine was to spread abroad reports of the shining virtues of his lordship."

"All this, or part of it, we found out or guessed. The vicar publicly denounced you all at his assembly. But what were you to get by it for yourself?"

"I was to have an appointment under government of £200 a year at least."

"Well?"

"I was to have it directly after the marriage. That was the promise. I have it in writing."

"And you have not got it?"

"No, and I shall not get it. When I claimed it, his lordship asked me to read the promise. I showed it to him. I had kept it carefully in my pocketbook. 'On the marriage of Lord Fylingdale with Miss Molly.' What do you think he said? Oh, villain, villain!"

"What did he say?"

"He said: 'Hold there, my friend! "On the marriage." Very well, I say that I am not married to that lady. Very oddly, the lady swears that she is not married to me. Now, when that lady acknowledges the marriage I will fulfill my promise. That is fair, is it not?' Then I lost my head and forgot his rank and my position, and the next moment I was knocked into the street by his lackeys without salary, without anything. Oh, villain, villain!"

It seemed as if there was here some opening, of what nature I knew not. However, I spoke seriously to Sam. I pointed out that in introducing a broken gamester, a profligate, a man of no honor or principle, the companion of profligates and gamesters, to the simple folk of Lynn, who were ready to believe anything, he had himself been guilty of an act more villainous even than the breaking of this contract. I gave him, however, a guinea for present necessities, and I promised him 5 guineas more if he would write a history of the whole business so far as he was concerned. And I undertook to leave this money with my cousin, the bookseller, to be paid over to him on receiving the manuscript.

And, this business arranged, I had nothing more to do with London. I had been, however, as you shall presently learn, more successful than I myself understood, for I had learned by actual presence the daily life and conversation of this noble lord, and I had laid the foundation for a proof of the conspiracy to disguise his true character, and, what was much more important, I had unwittingly fired the mind of the mysterious woman herself with resentment and jealousy.

We were now, indeed, although we knew it not, very near to the end of these troubles.

I returned with the satisfaction of bringing with me the confession of the conspiracy which we had long known. Still it is one thing to know of a conspiracy and quite another thing to have a plain confession by one of the chief conspirators. You may imagine that the poet was not long in writing out a full and complete confession and in claiming the 5 guineas of my cousin, who took the liberty of reading the document and of witnessing his signature before he gave up the money.

One after the other the victims of Lord Fylingdale's perfidy and of their own wickedness came over, so to speak, to the other side, impelled by rage and the desire for revenge, and made confession. The first was our old friend Sam; the second was Colonel Lanyon. Like the poet, he also fell upon evil days. But, less lucky than Sam, he had lost his liberty and was now a prisoner for debt in the King's Bench prison.

The voice of the third confederate followed. It was a voice from the tomb. Sir Henry Mulyns, the poor old beau who had lived for 80 years in the world of fashion, who had spent his patrimony and had in the end been reduced to the miserable work of a decoy, as you have heard, was at last summoned to render an account of his life. He repented of his degradation as the secret servant of Lord Fylingdale; he repented of his share in the deception which led to the promise, if not the performance, of marriage between his patron and Miss Molly. And he dictated to some one who attended him in his last moments a brief note which was accepted in the spirit of [illegible]

Next came the Rev. Benjamin Purden, A. M., in a truly impudent letter to Captain Crowle, which the captain read to us all. The reverend gentleman exposed the whole scheme.

CHAPTER XIX.

FREE.

BY this time a whole year had passed since the pretended marriage and our submission. Never was a magnificent property so destroyed and diminished in so short a time. Farms, lands, houses, were sold for what they would fetch—at half their value, a quarter of their value. All the money out at mortgage had been called in; all the money received at the quay and the counting house had been sent to his lordship's attorneys. In one short twelvemonth the destruction had been such that in June there was actually nothing left—nothing out of that princely fortune except the fleet of ships and the general business.

It was on the 15th of June—I remember the date well and shall always remember it. The Lady of Lynn had arrived two days before and we were moored off the quay. At 2 o'clock or thereabout one of the stable boys from the house came aboard bringing a message for me. A lady lodging at the Crown desired to see me immediately. The lady had arrived in the evening in a post chaise, having with her a maid. She had given no name, but in the morning had asked if my ship was in port, and, on learning that it was, she desired that a boy from the stables might carry this message to me.

I landed at our own quay. I say our own, but it was no longer ours—that is, Molly's quay. At the door of the counting house stood the manager in conversation with the captain of one of our ships. He beckoned me to speak with him. When he had finished his discourse with the captain, he turned to me.

"Mr. Pentecrosse," he said, "the worst has now begun. Tell Captain Crowle I should choke if I had to tell him. Alas, poor man! It seems as if the work of his life was ruined and destroyed." So saying, he handed me a letter to read. It was from my lord

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND ON ANARCHISM.

In his stirring advocacy of measures for the suppression of anarchism before the Chicago Merchant's club, Archbisop Ireland voiced the sentiments of all liberty-loving, law-abiding Americans. Indeed, his scathing indictment of the doctrines of anarchism may be said to reflect the judgment of all mankind—the verdict of civilizatiun in every land where there is organized government and orderly society.

That there must be some recognition of the divine origin of society in order to comprehend the hideousness of anarchism was forcefully elaborated by the distinguished prelale before he took up the question of legislative enactments for wiping out "the doctrine of the bomb and the bullet." Discussing the social aspects of anarchism and its menace to the social structure and to the republic he said:

> Put upon the face of society the impress of the divine and all is well. The obligations of society are the conditions of true liberty. To complain of such obligations is to complain of human nature. . . . If anywhere it be a hideous crime to seek to wreck civil society, it is so, in a manner unspeakable, when civil society is wrapped in the folds of the starry banner, when civil society is named the American republic.

The archbishop tarried with this phase of the question long enough to tear the "philosophic" mask from anarchism, declaring that men who dress up such doctrines of disorder with florid language or polished literature do more harm than the man with the bomb and "should at all times receive the contempt of right-thinking men."

Coming to the question of legislative remedies, the archbishop registered a vigorous protest against the dangerous fallacy that the suppression of anarchism cannot be accomplished by law without threatening the rights of free speech or endangering the liberties of the people. "The freedom of speech," he declared, "is not the freedom to incite to crime."

He advocated three legislative remedies for anarchism—the enactment by Congress of laws forbidding the arrival upon our shores of all foreigners tainted with the virus of aaarchism, the enactment of special laws to protect the life of the President and the life of any officer who is entitled to succeed him in the event of his death; also federal laws forbidding all plots or conspiracies in this country against the ruler or rulers of any nation.

In advocating these legislative measures Archbishop Ireland takes the very sound and tenable position that the national government is concreted in the chief magistrate and that the nation has a right to protect itself.

The possibility of suppressing anarchism by special legislation is a controversial question, upon which there is wide diversity of opinion among legislators and thinking men. While many thoughtful students like Professor George E. Vincent, who also addressed the club, dissent from the theory that discussion or argument or beliefs can be controlled by law, there is no room for difference of opinion among order loving men that a propaganda of bomb and bullet for destroying government should be stamped out.

RED LAKE FALLS' POET.

The recognition accorded Dr. Jules Gendron, of Red Lake Falls, in being named by a convention of distinguished French Canadians at Mianeapolis as the French Canadian poet laureate of the Northwest must be very gratifying to that gentleman, and Red Lake Falls feels a pardonable pride in this citizen who is winning such laurels for himself in the literary world. The occasion was the presence of the famous French Canadian lecturer, historian and poet, B. Sulte, of Ottawa, Ca., at Minneapolis, under the auspices of the allied St. John the Baptiste societies of that city. Dr. Gendron was called upon to read an original poem as the opening address of welcome to Mons. Sulte, and this, like all his poetical productions, was of such a high order of merit as to elicit the most unmistakable enthusiasm of the vast audience for its author. Dr. Gendron in fact shared the favors with the guest of honor, B. Sulte, and was feted and toasted, and finally as the cap sheaf in the series of testimonials accorded was designated as the poet laureate of the Northwest. His prominence is now widespread—and his abilities are recognized in Canada by such men as Sir Wiflrid Laurier, and the leaders there in literature and art. Dr. Gendron's literary career has only just begun, and its auspicious launching gives promise of great things for the future.

The house has taken the reins and on Tuesday a majority of the members showed the right mettle. The legislators who a year ago made such an enviable record as worthy servants, are patient and long suffering, but the dilatory tactics of the opponents of tax law reform have been given about all the leeway they will receive. The spirit of the members is shown in the way business is now being handled.

They will succeed in passing a tax code, despite all opposition. Tuesday morning the house majority took a determined step forward.

They recalled the tax bill from the unfriendly committee.

Made the bill a special order for Wednesday morning.

Gave the judiciary committee a hint to begin work on the constitutional amendments, which was promptly heeded.

Refused to mix the questions of tax legislation for tne present and constitutional amendments for the future.

Now something will be accomplished.

This is an interview attributed to Senator Myran: "I am out of Minnesota politics for good. My health is such that I simply must get away from these winters. The people of the sixty-first district have been very good to me, and I appreciate the requests which have come to me from all parts of the district asking me to seek a renomination. If acceptance were anything but impossible I should be sorely tempted to yield. I shall close up all my business affairs and go west as soon as possible."

Gov. Van Sant is fortunate. He is a man who bas done his duty as governor of a great state, and whose stand in the interests of the people is appreciated by the people. Such a combination is not always met with. Duty is generally accepted as a task which has only its own reward, but more often disagreeable rather than pleasant personal consequences.

The Socialists of Crookston have placed in nomination for alderman at large O. Mortenson, besides having a candidate for mayor in the person of John Kiewel. They bave a strong organization and their fight will be looked on with considerable interest.

Representative Rapp of Red Lake Counfy is one of the most trustworthy members of the house. His vote has been recorded on the right side of every question.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children:

One evening I happened to be in a home where my friend was putting her babies to sleep. The elder, a boy of three years, hung up his clothes so nicely that I was admiring him; but there was a baby of eighteen months there too and saying "Me too" while hanging every little garment on a chair. Her mamma told me that the dear little mite had hung up her clothes, taking each garment by the sleeve, from the time she could walk. Of course she has an orderly mamma. Now I wonder how many of you hang up your wraps when you come from school? You have orderly mammas too, for I know many of them. Now when you get ready for bed and feel like throwing your clothes on the floor, just think of that dear baby girl, working and stretching in order to reach the certain place which she had for her clothes every night.

AUNTIE KATHERINE.

HOUSEHOLD.

In keeping order among the pieces that will accummulate in every home it is a great help to have at least four patch bags; one for the cotton pieces, one for the woulens, one for the silk and velvet pieces, and one for canvas, crinoline, etc. It is a harrowing experience to wish for a piece of silk, for instance, and tu have tu spend perhaps five or ten minutes of precious time handling all kinds of materials.

The bags can be made easily and hung up out of the way or they may be made of pretty crinuline and hung in the sewing room. A box will be better for laces as they du not muss when folded in a box. Every piece of lace taken care of will be found to be useful in time. Pieces of a kind should be rolled up together and securely tied that order may be permanent. Those who say they have no time for all this make a great mistake, for every time a piece is wanted more time is wasted than it would require to arrange at least one set of pieces. Then the comfort of going to an orderly box or bag is worth something.

ORDER IS HEAVEN'S FIRST LAW.

What a comfort it must be to a man, returning from his daily calling in the world, to find home in good order and the family neatly attired. It needs not a palace, nor does it require an endless amount of strength to have order in the home. The mother must arrange as to where articles belong, and insist on their being kept in proper places. One can do those things in an agreeable way. I've heard a little child say: "Dear me, this room is so unordered (meaning disorderly) let us fix it." Now, that is the spirit one likes to see in a home, where all hands object to an "unordered" conditiun. It is a great help where children are given certain places to play in. I've known mothers to let the children feel that they were free to play in the kitchen every evening. Such good times there were. Private theatricals, all sorts of mercantile pursuits and trains galore. Soils the white floor, do you say? Better that than have the pure soul of one of your precious fold go wrong. The little ones I refer to tried to put everything in place again. That was the understanding.

I know busy housekeepers who declare that it is impossible to keep everything in ship shape. They do fairly well in the parlor and living room—but the closets, bed chambers and the kitchen—well, I always feel sorry for the people who must drag out an existence in a home where order does not reign supreme.

Many weakly women have been known to rear families and keep the home tidy. How did they do it?

One woman says she never lets an article escape her grasp until she puts it in its own place. That is the secret. It is not the size of the house, the size of the family, nor yet the size of the pocket book, remember, but it is the ever watchful, wise and gentle guide in the home who will keep a haven of rest and comfort for the dear ones who must needs go abroad to earn the daily bread. More of this anon.

THE SUNNY SOUTH
DEVOTED TO LITERATURE ROMANCE FACT AND FICTION

Fifty Cents a Year—Less Than a Penny a Number.

THE SOUTH'S LITERARY WEEKLY

The SUNNY SOUTH is the Great Literary Weekly of the South. It is devoted to Literature, Romance, Fact and Fiction, and gives the best of all that is current in its field. Among its contributors the most noted southern writers appear—Joel Chandler Harris, Harry Stillwell Edwards and others of growing fame. Serial stories from Anthony Hope, Maurice Thompson, Sidney R. Crockett, Mrs. George Corbett and Arthur W. Marchmont have appeared, and others are in waiting from the pen of authors of national note. A short story contest brought out nearly five hundred splendid short stories, all worthy a place in The SUNNY SOUTH'S readable columns. Other contests are contemplated that will successfully exploit the ripening field of talent that only needs such fostering to illustrate the wealth that is shy to assert itself.

The SUNNY SOUTH teems with the life of the great south. The genial sunshine warms everything into activity, and the season is never cold enough to check the hand of industry. The paper comes fragrant with the breath of the magnolia and pine, and gives out the very air of the orange, palm and bay. The beauty and pathos, the romance and mystery of the land where the corn stores up the golden sunshine and the cotton whitens in the moonlight, will be given in the well-filled columns of this fascinating weekly.

The subscription price is Only Fifty Cents a year, alike to all persons, agents, newspapers, postmasters and every one else. Clubs of five, accompanied by the full $2.50, entitle the club raiser to the paper one year gratis.

Send on a Postal Card the names of six of your neighbors who would appreciate the opportunity to read a copy of The Sunny South, and one sample will be mailed free. You can get your club of five out of these very people.

The SUNNY SOUTH enters over 50,000 American homes now; and during 1902 is sure to be welcomed in fully as many more homes, as the great weekly feast of good things, the Southern Literary Weekly, whose columns for 1902 will be the most readable of all the papers that come to you.

C. W. Speers, general colonization agent of the Canadian department of the interior, gave an interesting talk to the people of Red Lake Falls in the Court house Saturday evening. Mr. Speers' description of the Canadian Northwest was very grand and convincing, but then we must remember that Mr. Speers is making a business of booming that country and is being paid a good, fat salary to say nice things about it. We do not doubt for a minute there is good farming land in the Canadian Northwest, but at the same time we do not see why farmers should emigrate from this side and take up land 300 or 600 miles further north, when the land is not a bit better, if as good, as it is right here in Minnesota, and where they will have to accept at least 5 cents less on every bushel of grain marketed. It seems strange that the majority of the Ontario farmers are immigrating to this side of the line, to Minnesota and North Dakota when they are offered such great advantages in the Canadian Northwest. There must be something in it.

Working Overtime.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless, little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work, night and day, curing indigestion, biliousness, Constipation, sick headache and all stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore by this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines.' For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

Askout Wassen is about to erect a fine dwelling house on his farm and it has been rumored that he intends to make a flying trip to Norway for a housekeeper. Askout, what is the matter with our local girls?

Jorgen Gulseth returned home last Sunday from the hospital after six weeks' treatment there. He is minus several fingers and part of one foot. The stubs have nearly all healed and cause little or no pain. But it will be some time before he can do any work.

There is one thing that this part of the country lacks, for general looks and improvement—a few more handsome girls. For it is a well known fact here that we have too many bachelors and too many shanties. We really can't blame the poor fellows. But we have noticed for some time past that whenever the bachelors get anything in sight, up goes a nice large dwelling house. What a change! We really feel proud of the improvements that have been brought about in this way of late and we are certain that if we only had a few more "dish washers" down here we would have fewer bachelors and small shanties to put up with.

How to Save Money.

Feeds of all kinds are high, but we will cut down your feed bill one-half How? Read on and you will know. We have concluded to exchange bran and shorts for oats for ten days, and we will give you 2300 lbs. of bran and shorts, mixed, for 2000 lbs. of oats. 3200 lbs. of bran and shorts will feed a horse, cow, colt or any other animal as long as 4000 lbs. of oats will this year, as the oats are very light: one-third to one-half being chaff and no better than straw. Some say that bran and shorts will make a horse fat, but that he will not be strong or fat, but that he will not be strong or have endurance. Did you ever see a workingman that was betting fat, but that he was also strong? Have you not noticed that your horses are not doing well this winter? And why? "Because the oats are poor and light" you say. Give your horse a change; don't feed him oats three times a day for twenty years. You may ask if oats are poor and only worth half as much for feed as bran and shorts, why do you exchange. First, because there are thousands of men that own horses the same as you do, but do not understand the value of bran and shorts for feed.

Second, there are others who do not care to bother to give their horses a change of feed, and

Third, we want to demonstrate to the farmers of this vicinity the feeding value of bran and shorts.

The only people who understand the value of bran and shorts as feed for stock, are the dairy farmers of Illinois and the eastern states. They pay $23.00 to $30.00 per ton for bran and shorts to feed to their cows, and take all the Northwestern mills can make. There is no question but that you can carry your horses, colts, cows and calves throught the balance of the winter at just one half the cost by feeding bran and shorts We are always spending money for advertising, and for ten days we are going to spend a little money in this exchange. and give the farmers and feeders of stock the benefit. We do this exchanging at our Crompe elevator or at the mill. Come in and see us.

SCHOOL IN GENERAL

The library has been increased by a number of new books, including debating material.

A resolution passed by the H. S. O. is to the effect that the money in the treasury, which amounts to fifty-four dollar, should be turned over to the board of education as a payment on the piano.

The Spartans must be transacting a great deal of business this week, judging by the number of meetings.

Tuesday, a meeting of the two program committees was called by Supt. Whiteley.

The secretaries of the Spartans and Athenians were requested by Supt. Whiteley to make lists of the members of their respective societies with the number of times each has taken part in the programs.

The report cards were given out Tuesday evening.

The Spartans gave a very good program last Friday. They were awarded 39.33 points.

The by-law committee met Monday night and drew a set of by-laws for the H. S. O.

We expect to see the Spartan banner before long.

Most of the Juniors have dropped out of the general history class.

We presume the Spartans are wondering where our last week's notes were. We were just taking a vacation.

The High School has been very quiet this week.

The Physics class are studying pulleys.

GONE TO HIS REWARD

CARL KRETZSCHMAR PASSED AWAY SATURDAY MORNING.

PROMINENTLY IDENTIFIED WITH RED LAKE AND POLK CO. DEVELOPMENT.

News came Saturday that Carl Kretzschmar, of Thief River Falls, had passed away at 5 o'clock, after an illness of several months, with a complication of diseases. Mr. Kretzschmar would have been 60 years old on Tuesday. He had been a resident of this section for over 25 years, settling first in Crookston. After a brief but meteoric business career he came to Red Lake Falls in 1882 and inaugurated a boom for this place which resulted in the platting of several additions to the original townsite, and the purchase of town lots by residents all over the Northwest much in the same manner as Texas oil stock is now bought as a speculative investment. In the fall of 1882 he transformed the north side from a forest to a thriving business mart, having improved the water power and built the flour mill now owned by the Red Lake Falls Milling Company, and had completed the magnificent brick block which at that time was the largest brick building in the northern part of the state.

In 1888 he moved to Thief River Falls, where his enterprise soon awoke the dormant resources, and he has since been identified in every movement looking to the advancement of that city's interests. Almost during the whole term of his residence there he has been a member of the board of education. He was for several terms president of the city council and was Thief River Falls' first mayor, when the city was incorporated, last fall declining a re-election.

Mr. Kretzschmer leaves a widow and three children, two daughters and a son, to mourn his loss, and the entire community shares their sorrow. He will always be remembered for his kindly, gentle ways, and his charity which seemed to draw all to him as if by a magic charm. The respect in which he was held at Thief River Falls is attested by the manner in which the final tribute to his memory was participated in. The funeral occurred Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Masonic society of which he was a member. All business houses, from the banks down to the small confectionery stores were closed from 1 to 3 as a mark of respect. Personal friends and members of the Masonic society from distant points attended in large numbers.

How to Bring up a Husband.

Floris, the clever society editor of the Crookston Times says:

The parcel shower given this afternoon at the Brown residence in honor of Miss Woodall was an enjoyable success and Miss Woodall, aside from the substantial remembrances of her many friends, has received sufficient advice to bring up a husband properly. The advice came, according to request, in the form of poetic acceptance to the party this afternoon. Here are two that attract special attention:

A parcel shower is in our town
Given by three ladies who will do it Brown.
The shower is for a maiden fair
Who has spent with us some happy years,
And now goes forth to a fairer home
For advice if she will follow mine to the letter
Nothing will be for the worse, but all for the better.
Never from your husband the last word hear
Unless he says "You're right, my dear."

You've given us indeed, a very hard task
When advice as to bringing up a man you ask.
For gently please handle these Lords of creation,
And for goodness sake don't do it like Mrs. Nation
For you can't drive them an inch, tho' much you may smile,
But you can lead them with taffy for many a mile.

She was sitting with a sick man.
No professional nurse was she,
Simply sitting with her love-sick lover,
Giving him Rocky Mountain Tea.

SHEVLIN BUYS

ST. HILAIRE RETAIL LUMBER COMPANY IN RED LAKE FALLS TO STAY.

Ed. L Townsend, manager for the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Co., yesterday purchased two lots from J. R. Poullot opposite The Gazette office, and leased four lots adjoining, from L. A. and H. B. Kaufer, for a term of five years. Large lumber sheds and office buildings will be erected at once and the yard moved from its present location at the saw mill.

It is said that the Shevlin interests have secured control of the Red Lake Falls saw mill. The plant is now being placed in readiness for the coming season's operations and the indications all point strongly to the correctness of the report, although its confirmation is lacking.

Red Lake Falls has now competing in the local field the three giants in Northwestern retail lumber business—the Robertson Lumber Company, the Thief River Falls Lumber Company and the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Company. Their yards will all be located on Main street, less than a block apart. This makes our city one of the strongest, if not the strongest, retail lumber centre in the northern part of the state. It is a well known fact that at least two of these concerns are bitter rivals. Each wants to be the lion, and neither consents to be the lamb.

Therefore Red Lake Falls may expect a lot of new business from farmers at a distance who have never traded here but who will be drawn here now by the low prices on lumber.

MISS QUESNEL THE WINNER

Has a Large Plurality In The Most Popular Farmer's Daughter Contest.

Miss Alma Quesnel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchel Quesnel, the prominent Lake Pleasant farmers, is the winner in The Gazette Most Popular Farmer's Daughter Contest. Miss Quesnel did not enter the list until the second week of the contest. She secured a total of 15,606 votes.

The next was Miss Alvina Lizotte, of Louisville, with 9,932 votes and pressing her closely was Miss Clara Cyr, of Red Lake Falls, with 9,047 votes. Miss Quesnel as the winner, secures a high grade drop head Davis sewing machine, which was formally presented to her by the judges after the close of the contest Tuesday night, and which was delivered to her home yesterday afternoon.

Miss Quesnel is book keeper and saleslady in Shagnon & Benoit's general store, and her popularity is amply evidenced.

When Messrs. L. P. Berthon, A. J. Lachapelle and P. F. Poullot the judges, who had been chosen by the three leaders in the contest, met at The Gazette office Tuesday night, they were surrounded by an excited and anxious crowd of spectators. Misses Quesnel and Cyr were present, together with large numbers of their friends. Miss Lizotte, who is teaching in Bray, could not attend.

The count consumed just an hour, and at its conclusion the judges announced the winner and signed the schedule of the final vote, which is as follows:

Alma Quesnel, Lake Pleasant	15606
Alvina Lizotte, Louisville	9932
Clara Cyr, Red Lake Falls	9047
Ida Lillo, Equality	1200
Mattie Adler, Red Lake Falls	1000
Gusta Hanson, Emardville	900
Angeline Jolly, Terrebonne	800
Mary Sutter, Red Lake Falls	700

INDIANS WANT CASH

WILL CEDE RED LAKE LANDS FOR A MILLION AND A HALF.

THIS WOULD GIVE EVERY MEMBER OF THE BAND $1,000.00.

Dr. Des Jardins, the well known Chippewa Indian doctor, is in the city. While the doctor is not one of the mightiest of the reservation dwellers, he is yet intelligent and alert, and speaks entertainingly upon the prospects of the Red Lake reservation opening.

He said that the last treaty was made with the government for a period of fifty years, fifteen years ago, and that the Indians can hold the lands for thirty five years longer. The Indians are agreed that they will demand $1000 a head for every member of the Red Lake band, which he claims numbers 1500 souls, and that they will insist upon receiving the payment in advance and in a lump sum, aggregating $1,500,009, they being not overburdened with confidence in the promises of the government.

One Good Colored Show.

McCabe and Young's "Black Trilby" at the Mirror Opera House last night gave one of the most creditable performances that has been seen in Des Moines for years. Mr. McCabe is well known in Des Moines. For 20 years McCabe has been bringing shows much larger than this one, but this show seems to just suit the mass of people, and for fun I never saw an audience laugh so heartily. The company is composed of about 14 people with lots of good dancing and good singers. Miss Zaora LaTaacotte, the famous Cuban singer, made High A, two notes higher than any singer ever heard in Des Moines. As a whole the show is a good one, clean and funny. They are re-engaged for Monday.—Des Moines Leader.

Mrs. Ben Kviste and Mrs. W. A Swanson were out driving last Monday with Ben's white jack rabbit hoggy "hoss". What will we have next, rain or snow?

Mrs. Josie Short, of Lillo, entertained several of the Garnes and Equality "light steppers" last Friday night with dancing in her new mansion. All present report having a splendid time.

Soon the spring election will be at hand. It is now time that we should look into the matter so that when the day comes we will know what to do. Let us try to select the best timber we have in town. We want good men, men that we know will do their best for the promotion of the town, and above all we want a set of road overseers, that will hustle and put their work where it will benefit the town most. We must have roads. "Hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may."

Weekly Market Letter.

Feb. 25. The wheat market was very dull all of last week, its usual performance being to decline ¼ cent by afternoon and recover the loss in the last hour of the session. Friday it declined ⅜ and closed at the low point. Monday there was a decline of 1 ⅜ and today a further decline of ⅜, followed by a recovery of 1 cent per bu. Friday's and Monday's declines resulted from the excellent condition of the winter wheat crop and the competition of Canadian wheat in European markets. World's shipment for the last week were more than half American and most of that half was Canadian. Manitoba has large amounts of wheat for which it has no storage or mill capacity and is therefore forced to sell.

The Modern Miller and the Cincinnati Price Current agreed that last week Winter wheat was well covered with snow and supplied with abundant moisture. Today's advices are that snow has almost entirely disappeared. This may have had something to do with the good recovery which all grains had today over yesterday's severe break. The visible supply decreased 1,020,000 bu. and Bradstreet's Worlds visible decreased 2 million bu. Bradstreet's World visible corn supply decreased 650,000 bu., Oats increased 180,000 bu. Farmer's deliveries of Corn and Oats last week were larger than any other since Christmas. The freer movement is caused by moderate weather, smaller feeding requirements and a desire to avoid taxation. We think the course of the market will be governed largely by weather conditions; a freeze in the Winter Wheat Belt would undoubtedly cause a sharp advance.

FISH OR CUT BAIT

THE WARREN COUNCIL GIVES THE N. W. TEL. CO THE OPTION.

H. FANT OF THIEF RIVER FALLS IS AFTER THE FRANCHISE.

The Northwestern Telephone Company which owns the right of way up the St. Vincent line must give evidence of its intention to build this summer or forfeit its rights as far as Warren is concerned.

The Warren city council held a meeting recently to consider telephone matters. H. Fant, of Thief River Falls, was present and requested the council to rescind the resolution passed by that body nearly two years ago granting certain rights and privileges to the N. W. Telephone Co., which at that time contemplated the early construction of a long distance telephone line from Crookston through Warren to St. Vincent. The line has not yet been built and Mr. Fant contended that there was no prospect of its being put into operation this year. The council after due deliberation, decided to notify the N. W. Telephone company that unless it within 30 days gave them an assurance to build the line in question during the coming summer they would revoke their former action. Mr. Fant also sought to obtain an exclusive franchise for his proposed telephone line from Thief River Falls to Warren and northward. The council, however, declined to act upon that proposition at this time, preferring to let it lie on the table until a response to the council's notice shall have been received from the N. W. Telephone Co. There is some sentiment among the members of the council against giving an exclusive franchise to any person or corporation for any period of time, however short, under any circumstances.

THREE NEWSPAPERS AGREE.

The Tribune, Times and Journal Indorse "Kleansal" as the Proper Thing.

It is seldom that three daily newspaper in a city the size of Minneapolis agree upon any point upon which there is any chance for difference of opinion. We are in receipt of a bit of information emanating from each of the Minneapolis dailies, Tribune, Journal and Times, which shows that these three great newspapers agree entirely upon the matter of the best kind of soap to keep the newspaper office clean.

The matter is of more than common interest, because we all use soap and the best is good enough for most Americans. This soap is called "Kleansall." It is a jelly-like preparation put up in tubes and other convenient receptacles, according to the purpose for which it is used. Its first use was as a passenger car cleaner. This, as any one knows who will consider a moment, was the severest test to which any soap could be put. It must remove the greasy grime and smoke of the railway and at the same time leave the finely painted and varnished surface uninjured. It was not more than a dozen years ago when it was first produced. Since then the use has extended to include about everything to which soap can be put. It is an ideal shaving soap, perfect for the body's bath, just right for dish washing and window cleaning. It is as fine a preparation for cleaning furniture or hardwood floors as one could wish. The list of uses seems almost endless.

This soap is sold largely through agents who have a regular trade, but it is also sold by the grocers. Anyone interested in "Kleansall," either as an agent or for its own use, is invited to call at this office, see and try it. We can place the agency for this community if desired.

DEATH IS A MYSTERY.

Body Found Charred After Strange Fire at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Feb. 24.—Joshua Parkhouse, 60 years of age, who conducts a grocery store at 300 Rice street, came to his death in a mysterious manner, which leaves room for all sorts of theories. The cause of his death was fire, but how the fire originated, or how he was unable to make his escape is a problem that is puzzling the police and fire departments.

When the firemen arrived on the scene they found Parkhouse lying dead six feet from the door, with his face burned to a crisp and the flames still burning on his vest and coat.

The fire appeared to be upstairs and upon going there the firemen discovered three distinct blazes. These having been extinguished, they returned to the ground floor, and discovered smoke coming up through the cracks. They found another blaze in the basement, and a strong odor of coal oil was evident on all sides.

A second examination of the body of Parkhouse disclosed the fact that he was soaked with coal oil from head to foot on the right side of his body. There were no marks of violence to his person, except his burned face, which was beyond recognition.

That the fire was the result of either an explosion or an incendiary the firemen are certain, from the fact that it had started in four different places, but they are at a loss to understand how it could start in the basement and then get up to the second floor, killing Parkhouse in the meantime on the ground floor and saturating one-half of him with coal oil.

CONFESSION OF MURDER.

Negro Admits Taking Part in Killing a Superior Chinaman.

Duluth, Feb. 24.—The mystery of the death of Charley Yim, the Superior laundryman who was killed Christmas night, was cleared up when Charles Woods, the negro arrested in St. Paul Friday, confessed. Woods says Yim was murdered with a piece of gas pipe by Peter Jackson, a negro, with Woods as an accomplice, for $7.50. Jackson entered the Chinaman's place at midnight while he was cooking a meal. At a favorable moment he struck him on the head, but several blows were needed to quiet him. Woods and Jackson then hurriedly searched the place and found only $7.50, overlooking $125 in Yim's pocket.

Jackson was arrested in Superior, where he has been since the crime. He denies knowledge of it.

HUGO LOSES GROUND.

Recount of Ballots Gives Truelson Majority for Mayor of Duluth.

Duluth, Feb. 20.—The recount of the mayoralty vote in Duluth was finished at noon, and the result is more sensational than was that of the election. Truelson, the Democratic contestant, has gained in the recount, and the margin of eight votes shown for Mayor Hugo in the official canvass has been cut so that both sides are claiming the election.

There are 129 questionable ballots. Outside of these Truelson has 3,602 and Hugo 3,601. Fourteen of the disputed ballots have not the initials of the judges on the back, as required by law, and the Truelson men say the court will throw them out. Everyone of the 14 is for Hugo, and if the court should hold that way, Truelson is elected beyond a doubt.

ANDREW TAPPER HANGED.

Murderer of Rosa Mixa Executed at Chaska, Minn.

Chaska, Minn., Feb. 19.—Andrew Tapper, murderer of Rosa Mixa at Carver last June, paid the penalty of his crime upon the gallows in the courtyard at this place shortly after midnight.

The execution of Tapper by Sheriff Johnson was witnessed by 150 sheriffs and deputy sheriffs from counties within the state.

Tapper stood silent, his face blanched, but he was resigned to his fate. He had fortified himself and bore the ordeal bravely. His lips moved in silent prayer as he followed the church hymn in the German tongue and his eyes turned heavenward. He died as he said he would, praying God to forgive him for his crime.

CONVICTED OF FORGERY.

Chicago Man Who Wanted Money With Which to Marry.

Mankato, Minn., Feb. 20.—John I. Moore, the Chicago real estate dealer, who was charged with disposing of a forged note and mortgage for $100 to the National Citizens bank of this city, was today found guilty of forgery in the first degree. His trial on the charge of forgery in the second degree was at once commenced, at the demand of his attorney. Officers of the bank testified that Moore had submitted to them since his arrest that he had done what he did in order to raise money to get married, expecting to be able to take the paper up when it became due. The defense put in no evidence.

INDIANS WANT THEIR PAY.

Chief Flatmouth of the Leech Lake Tribe Complains.

Duluth, Feb. 21.—Chief Flatmouth of the Leech Lake Indians has written to Bishop J. L. Morrison requesting him to use his influence to have a delegation of Indians go to Washington to state certain grievances which they have. Flatmouth says that the Indians are hungry and would like to get the money due them for the cutting of dead and down timber last winter. The Indian commissioner has informed Bishop Morrison that legislation will be necessary before the money can be paid, as it belongs to the tribal fund.

Minnesota Law Knocked Out.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—The supreme court has declared unconstitutional the law placing a 2 per cent tax on the property of freight lines. The court holds that the law makes unequal taxation. The decision was in the case of the State against the Canada Cattle Car company, an action to collect $430 alleged to be due as taxes.

St. Paul, Feb. 24.—The insurance companies last year transacted more business in Minnesota than in any year during the history of the state, and at the same time paid out almost $1,000,000 less on losses than during the previous year. According to figures compiled from the record of the state insurance commissioner the people of the state last year paid out $4,512,807 as insurance premiums, while the fire losses settled by the companies amounted to $2,215,372, leaving a profit to the companies of $2,297,435, from which expenses must be deducted.

There were 145 companies doing business in the state last year of which 100 were American joint stock organizations. There were 30 foreign corporations and 15 mutual companies in the field for Minnesota business. During the year several foreign companies withdrew from the country and reinsured their Minnesota risks with American companies.

Doubts if Attorney General Knox is in Earnest.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—James J. Hill, president of the Northern Securities company, was seen at his residence with reference to the action of Attorney General Knox in the matter of the railroad merger.

Mr. Hill's reception was courteous, but he firmly declined to discuss the recent developments or to state what his future moves might be.

"I have nothing whatever to say," said he. "I am just quietly waiting and watching for developments. I want to satisfy myself whether this recent action is just grand stand play, or whether the attorney general is in earnest.

"If it is grand stand play, of course we shall hear little more about it; but if they do fight they will have their hands full, and will wish they had never been born before they get through."

GREAT FIND OF IRON ORE.

Valuable New Discovery on the Vermillion Range.

Duluth, Feb. 20.—The most valuable find of iron ore on the Vermillion range has just been located by the Minnesota Iron company, in the swamp south of Tower Junction, where diamond drills have been at work for the past four months. The ore body lies almost under the main line of the Duluth and Iron Range road and near enough to the Minnesota mines so that it may be worked without additional expense for machinery, etc. The drills have penetrated a body of blue hard ore such as is found at the Minnesota mines nearby, and below this at some depth was found a grade of ore strikingly like that of the Chandler at Ely. It is said that this is the first ore of that kind that has ever been found in the vicinity of Tower. It is a hard ore, crushed by natural processes.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

attorneys, Messrs. Bisic & Son. "I suppose," said the manager, "that they are really acting for his lordship. Their power of attorney cannot be denied, can it? Mr. Redman, our attorney, says that there is nothing for it but obedience."

The letter was short:

We have noted your information conveyed in the last schedule. You are now instructed to proceed with the sale of one of the ships. Let her be sold as she stands on arriving in port with so much of the cargo as belongs to your house. My lord is urgently pressed for money and begs that there may be no delay. Meantime send a draft by the usual channel for moneys in hand. Your obedient servants, BISIC & SON, Attorneys.

"A draft for moneys in hand!" cried the manager. "There are no moneys in hand! And I have to sell without delay a tall ship, cargo and all as she stands. Without delay! Who is to buy that ship—without delay?"

I returned him the letter and shook my head. My ship perhaps was the one to be sold. She was the latest arrival. She was filled with wine. The cargo belonged altogether to the house. So I should be turned adrift when just within hail, so to speak, of becoming a captain. I could say nothing in consolation or in hope. I walked away, my heart as heavy as lead. Never before had I felt the true meaning of this ruin and waste. All around me the noble edifice built by Molly's grandfather and her father and continued by her guardian had been pulled down bit by bit.

But one felt the loss of a farm or a house very little. It was not until the ships, too, were threatened that the full enormity of the thing, the incredible wickedness of the conspirators, was borne in upon my mind. It threatened to ruin me, you see, as well as Molly.

Therefore I walked across the market place to the Crown Inn more gloomy in my mind than I can describe. Hitherto, somehow, a ship seemed safe. No one would interfere with a ship. Like Lord Fylingdale himself, I was ready to ask whether a ship could be bought and sold—that is to say, I knew that she was often bought and sold, but I never thought that any of Molly's ships—any other ships as much as you please, but not Molly's ships—could be brought to the hammer.

The lady sent word that she would receive me. Imagine my surprise. She was none other than the Lady Anastasia. She was greatly changed in six months. I had seen her last, you remember, in January, when I met her in the park. She was then finely dressed, a handsome woman, with a winning manner and a smiling face. Thus she was when I met her. When I left her, she was a handsome woman marred with a consuming wrath.

Now I should hardly have known her. She was plainly attired, without patches or paint, wearing a gray silk dress. But the chief change was not in her dress, but in her face. She was pale, and her cheeks were haggard. She looked like a woman who had recently suffered a severe illness and was, indeed, not yet fully recovered.

"Jack"—she advanced, giving me her hand with her old graciousness—"you are very good to come when I call. It is the last time that you will obey any call from me."

"Why the last time, madam?"

"Because, Jack, I am now going to make thee my bitter enemy—yes, my enemy for life." She tried to smile, but her eyes grew humid. "I can never be regarded henceforth as anything else. You will despise me; you will curse me. Yet I must needs speak."

"Madam, I protest I know not what you mean."

"And I, Jack, I protest I know not how to begin. Do you remember last January, when we talked together? Let me begin there—yes, it will be best to begin there. I do not think I could begin at the other end. It would be like a bath of ice cold water in January."

"I remember our conversation, madam."

"You told me—what was it you told me? Something about a certain box or case of jewels."

"Molly's jewels. Yes, I told you how his lordship seized upon them at the first when he claimed control over Molly's fortune."

"You told me that. It was in January. He had seized upon them six months before. The thing surprised me. He had always told me that he could not get those jewels, and, Jack, you see, they were my own."

"Yours, madam? But they were Molly's."

"Not at all. Molly after her marriage had nothing. All became my lord's property. The jewels were mine, Jack, mine by promise and compact."

I understood nothing.

"I have seen in France the women kneeling at the boxes where they confess to the priest. Jack, will you be my priest? I can confess to you what I could never confess to Molly, though I have wronged her. Jack, oh, my priest!" Here she fell on her knees and clasped her hands. "No, no!" she cried. "I will not rise—on my knees, on my knees, not to ask your pardon, but for the shame and the disgrace and the villainy!"

"Madam, I pray—I entreat."

I took her by both hands. I half lifted her and half assisted her. She sank into an armchair, sobbing and crying, and covered her face with her hands. She was not play acting. No, no, it was real sorrow, true shame. Oh, there was revenge as well. No doubt there was revenge. If she had been wicked, she had also been wronged. Presently she recovered a little. Then she sat up and began to talk.

"I am the most miserable woman in the world, and I deserve my misery. Jack, when you go back to your ship fall on your knees and thank God that you are poor and that Molly has been robbed of her fortune and is also poor. Oh, to be born rich—believe me, it is a thing most terrible. It makes men like Lord Fylingdale, who have nothing to do but to follow pleasure—such pleasure! Ah, merciful heaven, such pleasure! And it makes women, Jack, like me. We, too, follow pleasure like the men. We become gamblers. There is no pleasure for me like the pleasure of gambling. We fall in love for the pleasure and whim of it till we are slaves to men who treat us worse than they treat their dogs, worse than they treat their lackeys. Then we forget honor and honesty, then we throw away reputation and good name. We accept recklessly shame and dishonor. My name has become a byword. But what of that? I have been a man's slave. I have done his bidding."

"But how, madam"—still I understood very little of this talk, yet became suspicious when she spoke thus of the jewels—"how came Molly's jewels to be your own?"

"I tell you, Jack, by promise and compact. I must go back to another discourse with you. It was on a certain evening a year ago. You had made the fine discovery that Lord Fylingdale was a gamester and the rest of it. You told me. You also told me that Molly would not keep her promise and would certainly not be at the church in the morning. Do you remember?"

"I remember that we talked about things."

"We did. Go back a month or two earlier. By a most monstrous deception I was brought here. I was told first that it was in order to further some political object, which I did not believe; next, to help him in getting the command of this money—some women, I said, easily lose their sense of honor and of truth when they want to please their lovers. As for marriage, he declared for the hundredth time that there was but one woman in all the world whom he would marry—myself. Now do you understand? He had deceived me. Very well. Then I would deceive him. At first my purpose was to await in the church the coming of the bride and expose the character of the man. Since she was not coming I would take her place."

"What? It was you, then—you—you?"

"Yes, Jack. I was the woman you saw at the rails. I had a pink silk cloak like that of Molly. I am about the same height as Molly. I wore a domino, as had been arranged. You took me for Molly."

"But if you were the bride"—

"I was the bride. I am the Countess of Fylingdale—for my sins and sorrows—his wretched wife."

"But you would be revenged. And yet you suffered this monstrous fraud."

"I was revenged. Yet why did I say nothing? Did I not say that you could never forgive me? Well, I have no excuse only when I said that women like me, with nothing to do, sometimes go mad after a man and for his sake cast away honor and care nothing for shame and ill repute. I say, Jack," she repeated earnestly, "that I make no excuse. I tell you nothing but the plain truth. Oh, how ugly it is!"

I said nothing. I only stood still, waiting for more.

"When I took off my domino in the vestry, my lord, with the man Purden, only being present, he was like a madman. That I expected. After raging for awhile and crying out that he was now ruined indeed and after cursing Mr. Purden for not destroying the registers he listened to Mr. Purden's advice that we should consider a way out of it. Accordingly, in my lodgings, the man Purden, who is the greatest inventor and encourager of every evil thing that lives, set forth the ease with which this marriage could be claimed unless there was any obstacle such as sudden illness which might be proved to have made Molly's presence impossible. In other words, we were to assure the unfortunate Molly that she was already married, and we were to act as if that was the fact. We ascertained without trouble that she had not left the house that morning. How? We sent the musicians to congratulate the bride, and the captain sallied forth in his wrath and drove them off."

"And so this you consented out of your passion for the man?"

"Partly. There is always more than one reason, you know, for a woman's acts and words. In this case there was a bribe. I confess that I have always ardently desired jewels. I cannot have too many jewels. He promised, Jack, that I should have them all. Perhaps—I do not know—the promise of the jewels decided me. Oh, Jack, they were wonderful! No such bribe was ever offered to a woman before."

I gazed upon her with amazement. Truly an explanation complete! Yet what a confession for a proud woman to make! Love that made her trample on honor and truth and virtue and a bribe to quicken her footsteps!

"And now," I said, "you are willing to make this story public?"

"I have thought about the business a good deal. It has caused me more annoyance than you would believe." Annoyance! She spoke of annoyance! "Besides, I have been cruelly abused. I have been the cause of that poor girl losing a great part, perhaps the whole, of her fortune. I have been robbed of the jewels. He swore to me a dozen times that he had never had them. I may by tardy confession save something from the wreck for that poor girl. He has wronged me in every way—in ways that no woman will or can forgive. I revenge my wrongs by making him a beggar a few weeks or months before he can come to the end of his money."

So in this distracted way she talked till one could not tell whether she was most moved by the thought of revenge or by pity for Molly or by a wholesome repentance of her sin.

"Jack," she said, "your honest face is pulled out as long as my arm. I could laugh if I were not so miserable. Tell me what I should do next. Mind, I will do exactly what you bid me do. I have lived so long among kites, hawks, crows and birds of prey, with foul creatures and crawling reptiles, that merely to talk to an ho[nest man] softens and subdues me. Take me in the humor, Jack. Tomorrow or next day, should the idea of the man possess my soul again, if he should stand over me and take my hand, I know not—I know not what would happen. Perhaps even for Molly's sake I could not resist him. I am but a poor, weak, miserable woman. And he has led me hither and sent me thither and made me his slave so long that he has become part of my life. Quick, then, Jack—tell me what to do!"

"Come with me," I said.

So she wrapped herself in a long cloak, not of pink silk, and she put on a domino, and I led her to Mr. Redman's office. And here I begged her to let me set down in writing what she had told me, but in fewer words, while Mr. Redman stood over me and read what I wrote and as I wrote it.

"The story, your ladyship," he said, "is the most remarkable that I have ever heard. You will now sign in presence of witnesses—my clerk and one whom he will bring from the custom house will serve."

So she signed in the same bold, running hand that we had seen in the registers.

"What next?" she asked.

"Why, madam, we have to consider the next step. It is obvious that the confession removes the whole of the difficulty and explains what has hitherto seemed inexplicable. How, it was asked, could the place of the bride be filled at the last moment and without previous knowledge that it would have to be filled? And who was the woman thus duly married and actually, though under a false name, made Countess of Fylingdale, who did not step forward and claim her rights? Now, madam, the question is answered. You knew, but my lord did not know, that the bride could not come to the church. You were there therefore to take her place. You joined in this conspiracy and kept silence for the reasons contained in this document."

SHE FELL ON HER KNEES.

"Quite so. And now, sir, what next? Will you bring my lord to justice? Shall I have to give evidence against him?"

"Madam, I know not. You have done your best, not so much to repair a great wrong as to stop further wrong. If I understand matters aright, it will be impossible to recover anything that has been taken."

"You might as well hope to recover a sack of coals already burned."

"Therefore, what we have to do first is to stop further pillage. Next, I apprehend, we must make it clear that your signature in the register was false."

Lady Anastasia rose and put on her domino again.

"I am going back to London, sir. My house is in Hanover square, where I am to be heard of for the present. It was a bad day's work when I was married in that pink cloak. It may prove a worse day's work when I confessed."

"Nay, madam," I said quietly. "Can it be a bad day's work to stop a cruel and unfeeling robbery?"

"I have done my part, gentlemen, for good or for ill. In a few weeks or months the man would have beggared himself as well as that poor girl. Now he is beggared already. I know not what he will do nor whither he will turn."

So I led her back to the Crown, and that same day she took her departure, and I have never seen her since. One letter, it is true, I had from her, of which I will tell you in due course.

Then I returned to Mr. Redman.

"Jack," he said, "I am going without further discussion to warn the manager not to send any more money to [illegible] clear proof that my client is not married to Lord Fylingdale and that we are now considering in what manner we should proceed with regard to the large sums that have been remitted by his orders. This, Jack, is the way of lawyers. We write such a letter, knowing that we shall not proceed farther in this direction, for the scandal would be very great and the profit would be very small. Besides, there is the awkward fact that we made no protest, but submitted. Yet sure and certain I am that the other side will not dare to go into court, being conscious of guilt, yet not knowing how much we have learned."

My story is nearly finished. Molly recovered her freedom, with the loss of by far the greater part of her fortune. She had, indeed, nothing left except her fleet and the trade carried on by the firm in which she was sole partner. Still she remained the richest woman in the town.

Here follows the letter from the Lady Anastasia. "My dear Jack," she said, "news reaches Lynn slowly, if it gets there at all; therefore I hasten to inform you that an end has come, perhaps the end that you would desire. My lord is no more. I am a widow. Yet I mourn not. My husband during the last 12 months had acted as one no longer in command of himself. I cannot think, indeed, that he had been in his right mind since he entered upon that great crime of which you know. He would have gone from bad to worse, and I should have suffered more and still more. He killed himself. He placed the muzzle of a pistol within his mouth and so killed himself.

"It was yesterday. I went to see him. I had to tell him what I had done. I expected he would kill me. Perhaps it would have been better had he done so.

"I found him with his attorney, a man named Bisic, whom I have seen with him frequently.

"'Pray, madam, take a chair. I am your humble servant. You can go,' said my lord. 'You have my instructions, Mr. Bisic. Order the manager to proceed with the sale of the ships.'

"'With submission, my lord. We can send him orders, but we can only make him obey by proceeding according to law. He finds excuses. He makes delays. He talks of sacrificing the ships to a forced sale.'

"'You will not proceed according to law, my lord,' I told him.

"'Why, madam?'

"'Because I have been to Lynn myself and have explained certain points in connection with the marriage service in St. Nicholas' church.'

"My lord looked at me in his cold way as if neither surprised nor moved.

"'Mr. Bisic,' he said, 'I will communicate again with you.' So the attorney left us. Then he turned again to me.

"'My lord,' I repeated, 'I have made a statement of all the facts.'

"'I thank you, madam; I thank you with all my heart. Let me not detain you.'

"He said no more, and I rose. But the door was thrown open, and Mr. Purden walked in without being announced.

"'Ha,' he said, seeing me, 'we are all three, then, together again! My lord, I will not waste your time. I have come to explain that since you have refused to perform your compact you cannot complain if I have broken up the whole business.'

"'I thought I had ordered you out of my presence, sir?'

"'So you did; so you did. I have only come to say that I have this day drawn up a full confession of the conspiracy into which I was drawn by your lordship, deceived against my better judgment by the promise of a large sum of money.'

"Lord Fylingdale pointed to the door. 'You can go, sir,' he said. So the man Purden went away.

"Then he turned to me. 'Anastasia, we were friends once. I treated you shamefully in the matter of the jewels. Things have gone badly with me of late. I seem to have no luck. Perhaps I have somehow lost my judgment. That money has done me no good.

"'Curse that scoundrel, Sam Semple! It is now all over. The game is played. Every game comes to an end in time. You had better leave me, Anastasia. You have had your revenge. Let that consideration console you.'

"I said no more, but left him. It was in the afternoon. Two hours later they heard an explosion. They ran to find the cause. Lord Fylingdale was lying dead on the floor.

"So, Jack, we are all punished, and none of us can complain. For my part I am going into the country, where I have a small dower house. The solitude and the dullness will, I dare say, kill me, but I do not care about living any longer. ANASTASIA."

She did, however, pass into a better mind, for I heard some time after that she had married the dean of the neighboring cathedral, not under the name of Lady Fylingdale, which she never assumed, but that of her first husband.

As to the other confederates, the poet, the colonel and the parson, I never heard anything more about them, nor do I expect now that I ever shall.

The rest of Molly's history, dear reader, belongs to me and not to the world.

THE END.

FATHER'S WHISKERS.

When cold winds begin to blow,
Father lets his whiskers grow;
All around his cheeks and chin
Bristles stiff and straight begin
Stickin' boldly out in space,
Leavin' just a little face
Up around his nose to show,
When cold winds begin to blow.

Father lets his whiskers grow
So he won't catch cold, you know;
I wonder how that lot of hair
Can be all stored up in there?
Father's face must kind of be
Like a cushion, seems to me,
'Fore the cold wind starts to blow
And he lets his whiskers grow.

I'm glad mother doesn't go
Havin' whiskers to let grow
When the wind's as cold as ice,
Mother's cheeks are soft and nice!
Father's proud, but yesterday
I heard mother sigh and say,
"He looks like a monkey, though,
When his whiskers start to grow."

SOUND ADVICE FROM CARNEGIE.

Recently Andrew Carnegie spoke at the meeting of the railroad branch of the Young Men's Christian association. In the course of his address he said:

"The best of wealth is not what it does for the owner, but what it enables him to do for others.

"And let me tell you there is nothing in money beyond having a competence, nothing but the satisfaction of being able to help others.

"It is one of the most cheering facts of our day that under present conditions the wages of labor rise and the price of life fall. There was never a nation so splendidly situated as ours is at the present moment in regard to labor. Every sober and capable and willing man finds employment at wages which, with thrift and a good wife to manage, will enable him to go far towards laying up a competence for old age. There is nothing that success and happiness of a working man so much depends upon as having a good managing wife.

"Let one who has, almost without intention or desire, had himself loaded with somewhat more than a competence tell you soberly that what one has beyond this brings little with it, and sometime nothing desireable with it. What all of you should strive for is a competence, without which, Junius has said, no man can be happy. No man should be happy without it, if it be within reach, and I urge all of you to save a part of your earnings these prosperous days, and put it in savings banks at interest, or, better still, buy a home with it.

"It took me some time to learn, but I did learn that supremely great managers, such as you have these days, never do any work to speak of themselves; their point is to make others work while they think. I applied this lesson in after life so that others did the work and I did the laughing and I command to superintendents the thought that there is very little succees where there is litle laughter. The workman who rejoices in his work and laughs away his discomforts is the man sure to rise."

There are hundreds of men who having made total failures themselves, are ever ready to advise others how to succeed. But here is a man who has made a decided success in life financially, and his own words may be relied upon as pointing out the way that leads up to the millions and those who are capable of grasping his meaning and applying the principal in their own business, may, like him, pass beyond the "competence" to which he refers. However, there are many who are not endowed with sufficient business acumen, to reach even the desired "competence," and must continue to toil and earn their bread by the "sweat of the brow."

And here you are: It has come to light that the American Sugar Refining company (the trust) has already bought nearly all the sugar crop of 1901-1902. The crop exceeds over 800,000 tons, and the only considerable amount controlled outside of the United States is controlled by the Spanish bank of Havana. A reduction of 50 per cent. in the tariff would, at present prices and duty, net the sugar trust $14,300 above legtimate profits, not a dollar of which would go to Cuba.

The new man named for first assistant postmaster general is a newspaper man—Harry S. New of Indianapolis. If he accepts we expect to see less tampering with the second class mail privileges of legitimate newspapers and more common sense instilled in some of the departments.

The supreme court declines to entertain Minnesota's suit against the Northern Securities company, on the grounds of a lack of jurisdiction. The fact that the federal authorities have taken the matter in hand makes this decision less important, because the legality of the merger will now be tested, and that was all the state authorities wanted. Had not Gov. Van Sant taken the initiative it is doubtful if the merger would have encountered any effective opposition at all. The state authorities are untainted. The attitude of the governor and attorney general remains unchanged; according to the following statements just given out:

> Gov. S. R. Van Sant—It cannot be stated positively what will be the method of procedure until the text of the decision of the supreme court on the question of jurisdiction is known. The state will proceed in some form at once and exhaust every means in its power to enforce its laws and protect its rights.
> Attorney General W. B. Douglas—Of course this decision will in no way interfere with the state's prosecution of the Northern Securities company. In fact it is not a question of choice as far as I am concerned. There is the law on the statute books which holds this consolidation to be unlawful. I have no choice but to enforce it. I desire to see a copy of the court's decision before announcing my future plans, but will know what course to follow within a day or two.

President Roosevelt has ordered Attorney General Knox to bring proceedings to test the legality of the merger as effected by the Sherman anti-trust law. The president's action has disturbed the serenity of the high and mighty in the financial world, and great pressure is being brought to bear upon him to abandon the proceedings. This he of course will not do. There are many whose confidence in the president's high motives does no assuage their doubts as to his susceptibility to the terrible pressure constantly bearing upon him to dissuade him from his honest purpose. But Roosevelt has been through the fire and his mettle has long since been properly tempered. He is reported to have said that the suit would be begun and the determination of its merits left to the courts. He holds the position that if the merger is not a violation of the law no harm can be done in determining the fact by resort to the proper legal channels. If it is a violation of the Sherman act it ought to be dissolved.

Nos. 1, 2 and 3, Vol. 1, of the Grand Falls Journal has reached our exchange table. It is published at Ripple, the post office for the townsite on the Big Fork known as Grand Falls, where day dreamers prophecy the metropolis of northern Minnesota will be built up.

The governor of Nebraska has locked horns with the newspaper men of his state and as usual in such cases, he is getting the worst of the deal. His political doom is sealed and he is to-day a very unhappy man.

In a "personal" to the editor Mother Katherine, who has been giving wholesome advice to the women, says she is aching to get at the men. So, boys, here's a fair warning.

The Gazette extends congratulations to Joseph Leicht upon his election to the presidency of the Minnesota State Editorial Association. In bestowing this honor the Association has honored itself.

BABY'S FOOD.

No doubt, my friends, you will wonder why one does not wait until the humid atmosphere of August is upon us before beginning about infants' food.

If it would help those poor poisoned infants to send posters to every home, every day, the effort would be worth the while.

The other day I heard the mother of a nine months' old baby remark, "She eats everything, everything that we eat. But she is not so very well. She seems fretful and nervous." Certainly I just had to tell that mother the truth. Do not feed your babies "everything," mothers. They may stand it for awhile—until the teething time perhaps. Then the vitality that was used up in consuming food that a grown person could subsist upon is lacking. Potatoes, other than baked, are very unwholesome for infants. If you feel you must feed baby potatoes put one into your oven while getting dinner. It will pay you. Potatoes contain starch; starch turns into sugar in the stomach and then sours. That is why your baby cannot stand starchy food. Meat is very bad for young children. It makes them nervous because there is heat producing substance in it. I hope this is said simply and plainly enough and that mothers who read this will never again be classed with those who feed their babies "everything." How many times I have gone to help care for a baby in convulsions knowing full well that the parents had given it candy, fruit, or starchy food. If your baby shows signs of twitching it is in danger of convulsions. Set a tub where it will be warm and handy and have plenty of hot water on hand. In case of convulsions, get the child into hot water AT ONCE. If there is no skin ailment, such as measles, etc., put a liberal supply of mustard in the water. Wrap the baby in warm, dry flannel, after the bath AND DO NOT HOLD IT. You can do more for your darling by placing it in its clean little bed. Then do not let the light shine in baby's eyes when it is resting. A mother told me "she don't mind it," when I told her the light was in baby's face. I suppose that poor child will have to wear glasses directly she learns to read. Mothers have told me too that they believe in "hardening" their babies. If such mothers should chance to have delicate babies they would not long be troubled with the hardening process.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children:

You know how dogs are supposed to dislike cats and I want to tell you this amusing story to show you how kind a black dog called Nigger was to a poor sick kitten. Kitty came to our home sick and nearly starved, and looked so sad that we took her into the entry where Nigger slept, fed her, and made her a nice, soft bed.

Nigger never liked cats, so we gave him a good lecture, telling him not to touch the sick baby cat.

He seemed to understand, for he made friends with the little thing and one day when she became stronger he and Kittie went out for a sunning. A neighbor cat (a cordial enemy of Nigger's) thought it her business to pounce upon the kitten. But nigger came to the rescue with a bound. He placed the sick kitten back of his black front paws and barked so furiously at the neighbor cat that she thought best to go back home. Wasn't that noble of Nigger? I told him that he was a good dog. But he chased every other cat as far as he could just as he had always done.

HOUSEHOLD.

A dusty piano is as annoying as it is prevelant. Some housekeepers keep a dust cloth back of the piano but to many it is as unsightly as the dust itself.

There is in nearly every piano, some little place where a soft cloth, such as an old silk handkerchief, can be securely placed out of sight. Thus one can dust the piano at any time without having to go to and from some other part of the house.

We all know how elusive a tape needle is. Perhaps some of you will be glad to know that a safety pin will answer the same purpose when there is no tapeneedle at hand.

A few drops of sweet spirits of nitre, in water, is excellent to give in case of colds and fever. Many mothers give a cathartic directly a child complains, but they do not think of the kidneys. A little care sometimes saves much worry, not to speak of the suffering to be avoided.

ROOSEVELT ON SCHLEY CASE.

President Roosevelt, in his final decision upon the appeal of Admiral Schley from decision of the court of inquiry, sustains the majority finding of the court and goes further in condemnation of the admiral. He finds that neither Admirals Sampson nor Schley was in actual command of the American fleet during the battle of Santiago, but holds that Sampson was technically in command. He severely condemns Schley for the "loop." He condemns Schley for dilatory action in scouting and for the retrograde movement from Cienfuegos. He gives Sampson credit for the victory off Santiago because of his system of blockading. He declares that actual engagement of the fleets was "only a captains' battle." He says that if special commendation is due any commander of any ship it is due to Lieutenant Wainwright. He bases his decision on the testimony of the captains. He concludes by saying: "Both Admiral Sampson and Admiral Schley are now on the retired list. In concluding their report the members of the court of inquiry, Admirals Dewey, Benham and Ramsey, unite in stating that they recommend that no further action be had in the matter. With this recommendation I most heartily concur. There is no excuse whatever from either side for any further agitation of this unhappy controversy. To keep it alive would merely do damage to the navy and to the country."

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some time ago the "Jack-of-All-Trades" began to tell the people what he could do. He made great claims; promised to do more than ever had been done before, and more than most people believed possible. You all know the success he has attained, and as he became more familiar with the country he was traveling in, he could see the possibilities of greater work, and to accomplish this he has introduced to you a traveling companion. Behold his features in the shape of a 2½ H. P. Geared Base Vertical Gasoline Engine. His specialties are pumping water and general farm use. He is very versatile, and when his time is not wanted for pumping water, by a movement of one of his arms, he can disconnect the gears and his power can be directed for other purposes. He is beginning to travel all over the country from the Canadian Provinces to the Equator, and from the Eastern Coast to the Philippines. He is taking up all sorts of work for all kinds of people, and it is surprising to note the results of his work for the first year. Send for information and catalogue.

How to Save Money.

Feeds of all kinds are high, but we will cut down your feed bill one-half How? Read on and you will know. We have concluded to exchange bran and shorts for oats for ten days, and we will give you 2300 lbs. of bran and shorts, mixed, for 2000 lbs. of oats. 3200 lbs. of bran and shorts will feed a horse, cow, colt or any other animal as long as 4000 lbs. of oats will this year, as the oats are very light: one-third to one-half being chaff and no better than straw. Some say that bran and shorts will make a horse fat, but that he will not be strong or fat, but that he will not be strong or have endurance. Did you ever see a workingman that was getting fat, but that he was also strong? Have you not noticed that your horses are not doing well this winter? And why? "Because the oats are poor and light" you say. Give your horse a change; don't feed him oats three times a day for twenty years. You may ask if oats are poor and only worth half as much for feed as bran and shorts, why do you exchange. First, because there are thousands of men that own horses the same as you do, but do not understand the value of bran and shorts for feed.

Second, there are others who do not care to bother to give their horses a change of feed, and

Third, we want to demonstrate to the farmers of this vicinity the feeding value of bran and shorts.

The only people who understand the value of bran and shorts as feed for stock, are the dairy farmers of Illinois and the eastern states. They pay $28.00 to $30.00 per ton for bran and shorts to feed to their cows, and take all the Northwestern mills can make. There is no question but that you can carry your horses, colts, cows and calves throught the balance of the winter at just one half the cost by feeding bran and shorts We are always spending money for advertising, and for ten days we are going to spend a little money in this exchange. and give the farmers and feeders of stock the benefit. We do this exchanging at our Crompe elevator or at the mill. Come in and see us.

PASSENGERS SHOOK

ACCIDENT ON THE GREAT NORTHERN NEAR THE CITY LIMITS.

NO ONE INJURED BUT 'TWAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

Passengers on the train arriving here from Crookston Tuesday noon reached the city on the engine. Conductor Lockman utilizing this means of transit owing to an accident to his train. When nearing the city, at a point three miles out, one of the wheels on the front truck of the head car went to pieces, and the train that was running about twelve miles an hour could not be stop until it had gone sixty rods on the ties.

When it was stopped the trucks were turned crosswise of the track, and the diagonal pull on the tender had lifted one side entirely clear of the track so that the wheels were six inches above the rail. The escape from a serious wreck was narrow. As it was, no one was injured, although several passengers were shaken up and considerably frightened. The cars were left standing and the passengers placed upon the engine, the remainder of the trip to this city being made in that way.

Repairs were made that enabled the trip to be concluded.

Mrs. Ole O Lee, the Grit milliner, is kept very busy this winter, having more work on hand than she can possibly attend to.

M. P. Bornas has returned from a long stay in Roseau county where he has been preparing the necessary building material for his new home. Mr. Bornas intends to leave on in the spring.

Did you take in last spring's town election, or did you stay at home and do all your kicking afterwards? If you did you had better be at the polls and cast your vote this spring and let the other fellow do the kicking this year. "A turn about is fair play."

At last we are to have a church here. The final arrangements have been made and the necessary money has been raised. It is to be 30x46, with stone foundation. The lumber will be hauled as soon as the roads permit, then work will commence at once.

We really appreciate "Mother's Corner." It is very good, and no little boy or girl should miss it. We find many wise and instructive lessons there for old and young, and we ask that you all kindly do Mother Katherine the favor to read her helpful and cheerful chats.

We were glad to notice in the "Facts and Fancies" of last week's Gazette the mention of little Nels Skomedahl's case and that it has at last reached Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, the kindhearted president general of the International Sunshine society. For whatever effort she bestows in the matter we will owe her our deepest thanks.

A new school district is about organized in the southwest corner of Equality. A notice, with the requisite number of signers, has been posted at Grit. BELTRAMI DIVISION

THE PEOPLE OF THE EVERGREEN COUNTY ASK FOR IT.

BAGLEY AND SHEVLIN WOULD LIKE TO BECOME COUNTY SEATS.

If there is any good thing which Beltrami county wants it may be relied upon to ask for it says the Crookston Times. It demanded organization and got it after a hot fight in the legislature, it demanded that the lumbermen pay their assessed value of the county taxes, and they paid, it demanded new towns and got them by the score, It has a candidate for the state senate with every prospect of putting him there, and its people are now demanding a new county building and several new counties.

Nearly every new town in the county has ambitions to some day become a county seat of a moiety of the present big county. Most of these towns are now cloaking that desire however realizing that they have not yet gained sufficient strength to accomplish their hopes. Bagley and Shevlin alone are now giving voice to their aspirations, and each is actively in the field with a proposition for the creation of a new county of which it is to become the county seat.

Bagley wants the new county to consist of the three western tiers of townships in Beltrami, from Becker county north to the Red Lake reservation line, making about 24 townships. But Shevlin wants a larger one—the same territory with still another tier of towns to the east, a total of over 28 townships.

Should the "Bagley" county be organized, that village would be in the centre of it; the same may be said of Shevlin, should its plan win. Both factions are getting up a petition to forward to the governor for the question to be submitted to the voters next fall.

It is said that neither Bagley or Shevlin are making play with any hope of its success at the present time but simply as a party to the fight which most of the small towns of the county are making on the proposed new court house which Bemidji insists should be built at once. A special election has been ordered to vote bonds for $5,000 for the erection of this court house, the citizens of Bemidji furnishing the funds to defray the expense of the election. The fight on this proposition, pro and con is growing very warm. The advocates of the new building claim Beltrami county has abundant wealth to warrant its erection, and that as a matter of economy it should be put up at once. The Times has at various times noted the large number of prisoners which Beltrami county is supporting in the county jail here, and it is alleged that the cost of such support to Beltrami county is in excess of $20 per day, making a new court house and jail a pressing necessity.

RAILROAD TO ROSEAU

INDICATIONS POINT TO G. N. EXTENSION TO THAT POINT.

NORTHERN PACIFIC MAY BUILD TO RED LAKE FROM THIS CITY.

A Great Northern official, whose opportunities to secure inside information are above the average, last Friday gave out the statement that the Great Northern would extend its line from Thief River Falls north via Roseau to connect with the Canadian Northern on the international border; that the survey has just been completed, and that the work on the extension would be commenced as early as the condition of the ground would permit. He was not quite sure about the extension of the line south to Dugdale, rather seeming to think a new route through Gentilly southwesterly to Crookston would be followed.

The line from Thief River Falls north will open a rich, promising section, and no doubt a thriving town will spring up at Thief Lake about half way between Thief River Falls and Roseau.

The Northern Pacific it is positively asserted, is about ready to build an extension from Red Lake Falls directly east to Red Lake, there to connect with the Red Lake logging road now controlled by the Northern Pacific. This would be practically an air line from Grand Forks to the Lake, and a great amount of traffic would be controlled from the first, including that of the immense area tributary to Red Lake which would be concentrated at the point on the lake touched by the railroad Whatever the effect of the merger on the destinies of the two transcontinental lines. It is apparent that the completion of a few of these connecting links in the systems are essential and will be pushed through.

Wonderland.

The publication which has come to be looked for with increasing eagerness every succeeding year, is out. This 1902 number apparently has made more than the ordinary draft upon the literary artistic and statistical ability of its compilers, while the typographical execution is a gem as a sample of the art preservative of all arts. "Wonderland" by Olin D Wheeler, descriptive of that part of the Northwest tributary to the Northern Pacific, as the formal title of the work describes it, is a volume worthy of the vast resources of the sections touched upon in the book It can be had by sending to Chas. S Fee, St. Paul, six cents in postage stamps, together with proper address.

Notice for Bids.

Bids will be received by the supervisors of Red Lake Falls township to March 8, 1902, at Central Hotel, Red Lake Falls, for the construction of a bridge across the county ditch between the townships of Lake Pleasant and Red Lake Falls and across said ditch between the Southeast corner of section 27 and Northeast corner of section 34, Red Lake Falls township according to plans and specifications on file with the town clerk. The supervisors reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

WELL KNOWN HERE

W. B. DAWLEY, FORMERLY OF CROOKSTON, DIED AT FERGUS SATURDAY.

DEATH RESULT OF INJURIES SUSTAINED IN R. R. WRECK.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 3.—J. H. Grass and Mrs. W. B. Dawley, returned from Blanchard, N. D. Sunday, bringing with them the remains of W. B. Dawley, who was injured in the Great Northern wreck and died Saturday night from internal trouble.

Mr Grass gives a vivid description of the wreck:

Mr. Dawley and H. J. Morris, who was killed were lying in the caboose at the rear of the train, and the two engines of the fast freight, making good time on a stretch of down grade, crashed into this caboose and drove everything before them until seven cars were piled up in a confused heap. The side and one end were torn out of the station and one car only slightly damaged, was forced into the building. The wreckage was piled high above the station roof before the grinding process ceased. Fireman Davis of the leading engine, had probably tried to jump and was caught between the cab and tender and died in an erect position, his body being crushed.

Dawley and Morris were both terribly burned by the escaping steam and also cut and bruised. Mr. Dawley was able to crawl from the debris and walk two blocks to the home of a merchant with whom he was acquainted, awakened him and told him he was hurt. He was taken in and a physician summoned. It was thought at first he would recover, but the shock had affected his kidneys and he died from [illegible].

Mr. Dawley has resided in this city for some years, and had been traveling for the St. Paul Rubber company. He was formerly a resident of St. Paul and later went to Mankato and still later to Crookston, where he engaged in business and was postmaster. He was about 45 years of age and leaves a wife and five children. Funeral services were held under the auspices of the Masonic order and the remains were taken to Merriam Park.

MRS. BUSE WINS.

Long Drawn Land Contest Decided in Her Favor.

In 1884 Fred Buse placed a timber culture filing on a claim near Red Lake Falls, and consequently left the country. A contest was filed on the claim by his brother, who yielded his preference right to Mrs. Buse who had secured a divorce. Before Buse's entry was cancelled both Mrs. Buse and Paul Trudell settled on the land, and the contest has been waged between the two to a finish. The secretary of the Interior has decided that as Trodell testified that he saw Mrs. Buse here when he went onto the land, that she has a prior right, and considering the equities of the case she gets the land.

A Warning.

A lady of pleasing address and prepossessing appearance is now canvassing the state professedly for homeless children. She sometimes says she will send contributors a monthly paper about the work.

Many of the friends of the Children's Home Society of Minnesota have given money to her under the impression that they were giving to the work of that well known society that has been providing for such children for over twelve years past to the number of more than 1770.

But inquiry shows that she does not represent the Minnesota Society at all, but a Chicago Society called the American Home Finding Association, that does not provide for Minnesota children and under the laws of this state has no legal right to bring children into the state.

When she has given receipts they are from that society or for the paper "Our Homes and Our Homeless," published by that society and the name usually signed is Olmstead. She has been in the state on a similar mission before.

All persons who desire to give money to the work of our own society should make sure that the person to whom they give is authorized to represent the Minnesota Society. All such representatives are fully supplied with credentials to prove it.

Be sure that you know to whom you are giving.

Other papers please copy.

REDS ARE CAUTIOUS

RED LAKERS ARE NOT ANXIOUS TO CEDE THE RESERVATION LANDS.

SIGNATURE OF EVERY MEMBER OF TRIBE OVER 18 MUST BE SECURED.

Red Lake Agency, March 5.—Major McLaughlin arrived here today coming from Washington for the purpose of negotiating a treaty with the Chippewa Indians at this point for the cession of the lands on the western part of the Red Lake reservation. He was accompanied by several of the leading citizens of Thief River among them being Mayor Kraska.

The Indians are assembled ready to negotiate with the government, but are not in the best of mood, owing to failure on the part of the Washington authorities to carry out their part of agreements made in the past.

It is believed that they will agree to the cession of the lands, but the matter of the price to be paid may cause some delay. The "Cross Lakers," as the band is called that makes headquarters at the village at the narrows, are, it is understood, willing to cede at a figure that is considered reasonable, but the others, and they are decidely in the majority, will demand a sum that is is feared will be prohibitive.

The first council will be held on Wednesday, and from that it is expected that an idea can be gained as to the final result. The signature of every member of the tribe above the age of 18 is necessary to the closing of the treaty.

SHOULD BUY FRIAR LANDS.

Any Other Plan Will Cause Ill Feeling in the Philippines.

Washington, March 3.—Governor Taft continued his statement before the house insular committee during the day. He said any plan other than purchase of the friar lands, such as a high rate of taxation or forcible condemnation, would cause much ill feeling and prove more costly in the end than purchase. He said the lands would cost between $3,000,000 and $7,000,000, it being undesirable to give the exact figures, as it would interfere with negotiations. Referring to Manila tobacco, Governor Taft brought out the fact that in making up this tobacco most of the wrappers are imported from Connecticut.

REFUSES TO RECONSIDER.

Minnesota House of Representatives Buries Tax Bill Deeper.

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—The efforts of the friends of the tax bill to resuscitate that measure met with defeat during the morning. Representative Van Wald of Goodhue county moved a reconsideration of the vote by which the bill was defeated, but the motion was lost by a vote of 55 to 51. The bill may now be considered as dead beyond resurrection.

Three bills were introduced by Mr. Anderson in the house. The first provides for a permanent tax commission, the second for a graduated inheritance tax and the third contains the administrative features of the tax commission bill regarding real and personal property.

A bill by Mr. Jacobson is designed to take the place of the defeated tax commission bill.

A number of new bills were presented in the senate and resolutions of condolence on the death of Governor Van Sant's father were passed.

Was 93 Years of Age.

St. Paul, Feb. 26.—Governor Van Sant has received the news of the death of his father, John W. Van Sant, which occurred at Le Claire, Ia. The news came as a great shock to the governor, as, although his father had reached the ripe age of 93 years, there was no reason to expect a sudden end such as came.

CRASH IN THE STORM.

Two Killed in Collision at Blanchard, N. D., and One Missing.

Mayville, N. D., March 3.—The westbound coast freight train and the local freight came into collision at Blanchard.

Fireman Davis, of the coast train, was instantly killed, and a passenger named Morris was so seriously injured that he died a couple of hours later.

The local freight train was standing at the depot unloading freight when the crash came. The storm was very severe, the air being filled with snow, driven by a gale.

One passenger is missing, and it is not known whether he was killed or wandered away in the storm.

Killed in the Philippines.

Cumberland, Wis., March 3.—A message from Congressman Jenkins confirms the report that John R. Hegg of this city was murdered by Filipinos on Bohol Island, Jan. 21. The body has not been found. Hegg was a graduate of the Cumberland schools and state university and was superintendent of construction of government roads in the Philippines.

When Bro. Greeley, of the Bemidji Pioneer, gathers his Backwoods sketches and republishes them in book form (as he will eventually be forced, by an appreciative reading public, to do) the writer wants the privilege of purchasing a copy of the first edition. It is many a day since we have read anything so subtly sweet. Besides, these Sketches are valuable for their delineation of distinctive sectional features which melt away upon the development of the country. They will now be preserved to posterity, thanks to Bro. Greeley's genius and its industrious application.

'Tis said that the liquor license struggle will be renewed at Wylie at the annual election on the 14th inst., with prospects favoring the license faction. Several of the strong antis have left and the argument is that Wylie's progress toward becoming a pretentious village demands the innovation. The struggle will be a fierce one.

The Fosston 13 Towns tells a good mild weather story as follows: "After one of these phemomenal spells of warm weather, a certain farmer living upon the border of a small lake, discovered a number of geese apparently pinned fast to the ice over the sheet of water and went out to investigate. This investigation resulted in his deciding that an ax in place of a rifle was the proper weapon at that particular time and returing, secured the chopper and went out after the geese, cutting out of the ice 32 fine birds."

"Schemes" That's the heading on a two-column editorial in the Shevlin Advocate, and of course it's about the $50,000 court house bonds advocated by Bemidji.

The Beltrami county papers devote all the space they can spare from land office notices, to the county division and proposed bond issue matters. The Shevlin Advocate says in italics: "767 was the number of voter's names that were subscribed to the petitions for the creation and organization of Roosevelt county which A. L. Gordon yesterday bore to the state capital, all procured in three days, and the county not one half canvassed at that. If we had devoted a day or two more we could have swelled the number to 1,000."

Glencoe, Minn., Feb. 28.—William Matthews, a fireman on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, at about 10 a. m. put on a mask, entered the Bank of Plato, seized and locked the cashier in the back room, robbed the vault of $1,500 and took a freight train for Glencoe. NEW LINE TO THE COAST.

Winter Route for Northern Pacific and Great Northern.

St. Paul, March 3.—A Pioneer Press special from Chicago says:

The Northern Pacific and Great Northern interests have closed a deal for a new through line to the Pacific coast. English and American capitalists, headed by Lord Thurlow and George H. Proctor of New York, will build an 800-mile road from Eureka, Cal., to Weiser, Ida. From their main lines the Great Northern-Northern Pacific interests will build to Weiser from the north.

An entirely new country, rich in forests, mines, agriculture and cattle ranches, will be tapped. It will give the merger interests control of the finest harbor on the Pacific coast not already occupied by railroads. It will be a winter route over which much of the Oriental traffic can be sent when heavy traffic makes the more northeasterly lines too difficult to operate to their full capacity.

The deal by which the two interests were brought into conjunction was effected Wednesday in New York. The plan will involve an outlay of $25,000,000.

BIG DULUTH PROJECT.

The water will be conveyed from the interior lakes and rivers to the top of the hill back of Duluth and the power used to generate electric power for operating practically all the machinery at the Head of the Lakes.

The company is fully financed and is now making contracts to deliver power on and after Oct. 1, 1903. The construction of the system will cost about $3,000,000. The cost of power in present use will be cut in half.

ROBS STILLWATER PRISON.

Burglar Scales the Wall and Steals Three Cases of Shoes.

Stillwater, Minn., Feb. 28.—A daring and foolhardy robbery was committed at the state prison Tuesday night, and Andrew Anderson, a noted second story man, is in jail here charged with the offense. Moreover, he has confessed his guilt. Anderson scaled the prison wall by a rope. Going to the shoe shop in the prison yard he broke it open and carried away three cases of shoes of a dozen pairs each.

Taking these to the rope ladder he attached two cases to the rope, and climbing it pulled them up. Then he returned and took another case over the wall. The shoes were secreted back of the thresher company paint shop near the river and later they were taken to St. Paul and sold. Anderson's arrest followed.

A TALE OF A GOAT.

How O'Flaherty's New Red Shirt Caused the Flagging of a Train.

Patrick O'Flaberty owned a billy-goat which, after the manner of its kind, occasionally departed from the straight and narrow path. Patrick also had a new red shirt, for which he had paid $2.50 in legal currency.

Now Pat awoke one Sunday morning to a realizing sense of the fact that a holiday confronted him. He sought his new red shirt. The shirt, however, was not where he had left it.

"Nora," he demanded of his wife, "where's that new shirt of mine?"

"You haven't any new shirt," she replied.

"But I have," insisted Pat. "I bought it yesterday and paid two dollar bills and a fifty cent piece for it. Now where is it?"

"I know, but you haven't got it any more," Nora continued sadly. "The goat has swallowed it."

Pat was furious and vowed that he would get even with the goat. "He'll never swallow a shirt of mine again," he remarked, with a sinister look which boded no good for poor Billy.

There is a railroad track near Pat's house, and to that track he went forthwith, leading Billy by a stout rope. Mr. Billy was then tied firmly between the rails, one horn connected to one side and the other to the opposite. Pat then waited the arrival of the next train, which was due in fifteen minutes.

The train came flying around the curve. Pat looked the other way. He was of a humane disposition and did not want to see the goat killed. He turned toward home, merely glancing around to assure himself that the execution had been properly accomplished. Lo and behold! There stood the goat ensconced safely between the rails and calmly gnawing at the ropes by which he was bound.

Billy had coughed up that red shirt and flagged the train.—New York Times.

WATSON FOR SENATOR.

If Senator Myran has actually withdrawn from the field Mayor Watson, of this city, is the man to fill his shoes. Broad-guaged, liberal, competent, and a man whose influence would be felt in the councils of state, he would make an ideal representative of the people. Dr. Watson might not permir the use of his name—we doubt if he will. But if he consents to make the race in the primaries he will win. He is exceptionally strong in Red Lake county and would have the support of Norman county. His main opponent would be Street, of Bemidji, whom the people of Beltrami county do not all unanimously love, by a long way.

In reference to this the Bemidji News, published in W. F. Street's home town, has this to say:

I. H. Bailey, the well known attorney is being advocated as a capable and suitable man to succeed Hon. O. H. Myran as state senator from this district. Mr. Bailey is an able man ann would make a vigorous campaign, Mr. Myran has declared his purpose to retire permanently from politics on account of his poor health. The Crookston Times of last week devoted much space to a notice of the retirement of Senator Myran from the political field of this district, and threw a few bouquets at Frank W. Street as a fit successor to the Norman county statesman. It is understood that Red Lake county has a candidate for the senatorial toga of Myran, as well as Norman county, while I. H. Bailey of this city is accredited with an ambition to represent the district in the upper house.

AS THE MERGER IS TAKEN.

The Literary Digest of New York under its feature heading "Topics of the Day," discusses the investigation of the Big Railroad Merger, and the very first picture to greet the reader's gaze is a fine half tone of "Gov. VanSant, of Minnesota, who begun the opposition to the merger." Our governor has suddenly become a figure of national importance, and the combination of Roosevelt and VanSant, both of Dutch extraction and who seem to have some of the qualities of the fighting Boers themselves, will be a strong one for the Northern Securities Company to go up against. The Literary Digest says: "The announcement made by Attorney General Knox that the President has directed him to bring suit under the Sherman anti trust law for the dissolution of the Northern Securities Company (the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads) has made no small stir. Governor VanSant, of Minnesota, says he is "delighted" over the decision, and Attorney-General Douglas, of the same state, declares that he is "elated"; but in Wall Street a different feeling prevails. "Security markets in New York, London, Paris and Berlin," says the New York Herald, "were demoralized by the announcement," and the New York Tribune declares that "not since the assassination of President McKinley has the stock market had such a severe shock." "It is like a thunder bolt out of a clear sky," says one prominent capitalist. "Certainly the sudden dash of the Executive into the controversy while the Supreme Court—a coordinate branch of the Government—has it under advisement," remarks the New York Mail and Express, "is not likely to be regarded by reasonable people as the most appropriate manner in which action by the President should be initiated." And the New York Sun expresses a similiar opinion. It is keenly remarked by the Baltimore Herald, however, that the consternation in Wall Street, would seem to prove that many brokers and holders of similar securities were extremely doubtful as to the right and wrong of the case," and it adds that "this, then, should be taken as the most positive of all proofs that the President was fully authorized under the circumstances to direct the Attorney-General to have the whole matter decided by the highest tribunal created by the Constitution."

Anent the same subject, and in sarcasm directed against the idea that James J. Hill's ambitions should be allowed free sway, the Mankato Review says Judge Severance received the following "poem" from a friend who believes it appropriate to the times:

I came to a mill by the river's side,
A half mile long and nearly as wide,
With forests of stacks and an army of men,
Toiling at furnace, shovel and pen—
"What a magnificent plant," I cried,
And a man with a smudge on his face replied—
"It's Jim Hill's."

I entered a train and rode all day,
In a regal coach, and a right of way,
Which reached out its arms—all over the land
"A splendid property, this," I cried.
And a man with a plate on his hat replied,
"It's Jim Hill's."

I sailed on a great ship, trim and true,
From pennon to keel, and cabin to crew,
And the ship was one of a monster fleet,
A first-class navy could scarce compete,
"What a beautiful craft she is," I cried,
And a man with akimbo legs replied,
"It's Jim Hill's."

I dwelt in a nation filled with pride,
Her people were many, her lands were wide,
Her record in war and science and arts,
Proved greatness of muscle, mind and hearts,
"What a grand old country it is," I cried,
And a man with his chest in the air replied,
"It's Jim Hill's."

I went to heaven—the jasper walls
Towered high and wide, and the golden halls
Shone bright beyond, but a strange new mark
Was over the gate viz: 'Private Park,'
"Why what is the meaning of this," I cried,
And a saint with a silvery tone replied,
"It's Jim Hill's."

I went to the only place left—I'll take
A chance on the boat in the brimstone lake
Or perhaps I may be allowed to sit
On the griddled floor on the "bottomless pit."
But a leering lout with horns on his face
Cried out as he forked me off the place,
"It's Jim Hill's."

THE MERIT SYSTEM FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The board of education of Chicago is considering the feasibility of initiating a reform that might profitably find application in the public schools of the smaller as well as the larger cities. The plan is for dispensing with the annual election of teachers, giving them permanent tenure of position until dismissed for cause. The indications are that the Chicago board will ratify the proposition.

The system is now in vogue in nearly every progressive city of the country, and its advantages over the old way are apparent. Its adoption at a stroke removes the disturbing factor resulting through fear of changes and the idea that the annual election of board members is a personal matter with every teacher.

If the merit system is good in federal positions it must be equally so in school work, where the efforts of the teacher touche the very foundation stone of good citizen ship.

The battle between the good and evil forces is a never ending struggle. Everyone has the opportunity of abetting the good, and of doing it unobtrusively and without a moment's distraction from daily duties. One may not be a monument of virtue one's-self, yet be on the right track, and in entire sympathy with all that is good and true. The greatest trouble lies in the inability of the individual to discern aright, and his proneness to imbibe so much of the lower standard that his conclusions will be faulty. So it is that the education of the youthful mind in proper standards of morality must ever play so important a part in the individual's psycological career. Thus two equally sincere individuals with judgment of equal soundness, will look upon a given question each according to his acquired standard of morality. Perhaps to no professional man is the opportunity for boosting the good forces given in such large measure as to the editor. And he is generally a man whose sympathies are right. But particularly in the field of country jonrnalism the great opportunities are not made the most of, are hardly realized. If every editor would put a few moments each week into writing even a line or two of his best thought, he would be not only doing his duty but would add to the pleasure of his readers—and his efforts would count on the right side.

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY MOTHER KATHERINE

A Staff contributer, who will write of every day affairs—the little units that go to make up the sum total of existence. Mother Katherine writes exclusively for THE GAZETTE. She is a mother who presides over an ideal home. A letter addressed to her in care of The Gazette will reach her. She is worthy of confidence.

MORE ABOUT ORDER.

One day I chanced to visit a busy mother and I noticed tiny marks of blue silk on several of the garments she was mending. She is a good manager so I asked her what the blue marks meant. She said that all of her youngsters had a color with which to mark those garments that were liable to get mixed. Her children ranged from two to ten years of age, two years being the greatest difference between. She told me that the confusion was something terrible before the marking was done. It was thought rare fun in that home to have a marking time. The older ones gladly marked belongings of those too young. But even the four-years-old insisted upon helping mart (mark.) This same mother laughingly related how her children helped her to prepare the fruits and nuts for her Christmas baking. "They did all the work but the actual mixing," she said and while working one whole evening the eldest said: "I don't believe many children have as much fun as we do, just see what a good time we are having now."

Those children were given to understand that the fruits and nuts were not to be eaten that evening, and were just as careful about obeying instructions as could be. They were very proud, of course, and would say, "We helped to bake the fruit cake and plum pudding." They learn many a lesson while helping mother. Many a mother makes a great mistake in constantly comparing the great acquirements of other children to the lack of knowledge in her own. Now, that is a great mistake, your children will dislike any child that is held up to them as a model. I tell you that nine times out of ten that same mother is to blame herself even while she is scolding her children because others do better. Mothers, why cannot you do better or well? Perhaps you are not quite patient enough. Do you begin when you should in sowing the good seed? I know a mother who is constantly telling her girls what others can do. Her girls were never taught how to work, never permitted to try—then all at once the notion strikes the mother that her girls are old enough—and she scolds because they do poor work. Mother, give your little two-years-old tasks to do, let your pet bring you a book or a paper, or anything just so you instill the principle that it is nice to do something for mother. Let the little one put the spoons away, let her pick up her toys and put them into her box or basket. BUT BE PATIENT. Your little one will do better with praise than with blame. Try never to punish when angry, for many a child will feel the smart more keenly because it realizes that mamma punished because she was angry.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

HOW VIRGINE PLAYED PRANKS ON THE KIND NEIGHBORS.

Virgine was a very pretty girl, five years old. She had dancing blue eyes and yellow curls, but she could not speak plainly to save her life. She did love to play a doke (joke) on some one. Her sweet voice could be heard any time of the day and she was called "Sunshine" by many. One day she walked into the sitting room where her mother and sister were sitting, and what do you think? She was dressed in her brother Victor's clothes from head to foot, even to his ulster. She insisted upon surprising Miss Klitke, who kept house for her brother, the Senator, and her sister the teacher of languages. Little Virginie took a few papers and looked like a real paper boy. Miss Klitke said: "Come in, come in, little boy, it is too cold to be out today. Now tell me what you wish." Virgine gave one of her silvery laughs and Miss Klitke said. "Why, this looks like Virgine, let me see, what does this mean?" Such fun as Virgine and Miss Klitke did have. Dora, the maid, came in to see what it all meant, and Little Virgine must stay for dinner so that the Senator and the teacher of languages could see her. The old house was made merry for Virgine was allowed to play in any of the rooms. When it came time to go home Virgine was laden with all sorts of keepsakes for herself and the little sister whom the neighbors called "Me too" because she did everything Virgine did.

HOUSEHOLD.

When hot grease is spilled on the floor cold water poured on the grease will harden it, thus preventing the permanent spots on the kitchen floor so annoying to housekeepers.

Candle grease can be removed if a blotter be laid over the spot and a hot iron be applied over the blotter.

JUBILEE SINGERS

STORY TOLD IN SONG BY FAMOUS COLORED ARTISTS.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE, SATURDAY EVENING MARCH EIGHT.

Slayton's famous Jubilee Singers will appear at the Opera house Saturday night under the auspices of the City Teachers' Association. The price of tickets will be general admission, 35c, children, 25c. Reserved seats, 50c.

The Chicago Inter Ocean said of this troupe, after they had appeared at the Auditorium for the benefit of the Young Women's Christian Association:

Old Plantation Days was given by Slayton's Jubilee Singers. As the curtain rolled up it showed the Company in dresses and suits which might well been worn amid the cotton and the corn. They sang old melodies and hymns which even to-day may be heard in the South, and sung them with such pathos that the audience recalled the singers again and again. She whom they call the "Original Black Patti" sang 'Away Down on the Suwanee River" and when she tried to leave the stage such an encore was given her that, stage manager or no stage manager, she was forced to come out and sing "Annie Laurie." And the stage manager once defied, the rule "No Encores" was broken, and that was why the line of carriages before the Auditorium stood half an hour later than they were ordered.

CAN'T USE THEM.

American Inventions Are Often Rendered Useless by Stupid English Builders.

All Americans who have lived in London will have noticed the curious facility with which Englishmen contrive to neutralize American inventions by adopting them only in part. It is a symptom of the national myopia which will never unreservedly admit that the English way of doing things is not the best, says the New York Commercial Advertiser.

Any American in London could give a dozen instances of this trait, and they would embrace most conceivable things, from railroad car couplings to elevators, cocktails and soda fountains.

The genius who put up the building in which I occupy a flat may serve as an example. He was evidently infected with American ideas. He had heard of elevators and dumb-waiters and speaking tubes, and he had made up his mind to lead all London by including these conveniences in his flat houses.

But instead of connecting the speaking-tube with the kitchen, he put it just outside the drawing-room, so that if it were used at all, the entire household would have to overhear the struggles of the servants with the tradesmen; and instead of running up the dumb-waiter alongside the kitchen or pantry, he placed it outside the flat altogether, in the hall, opposite the elevator.

The consequence is, of course, that neither dumb-waiter nor speaking speaking-tube is utilized, and a happy American notion is discredited in English eyes, for lack of simple attention to the necessary details.

CANNOT DROWN FIRES.

Difficulties of Combating Conflagrations in Deep Coal Mines.

Fighting fires deep down in coal mines is a task to put the heroism of the bravest to the test. In an interesting article on the subject in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, the author tells how at Plymouth, a large town in the Wyoming valley, a big mine caught fire from the burning of a breaker. Some blazing timbers fell down the shaft, setting it on fire, and preventing entrance to the mine. The fire burned in the shaft and spread downward and inward. In this case there was but one thing to be done. Great pumps were erected, and, the river being near, water was poured into the mine for months, until it was flooded to the bottom of the shaft. Then the water was allowed to remain for some weeks, until, in the opinion of the officials, it had reached every nook and cranny of the mine where fire could have lodged. Then the weary work of pumping it out commenced. It took five months of constant effort by the monster pumps. A couple of months' more work was needed to make repairs, and then it was discovered that a large fire burned in the mine, many feet below the level the water had reached. This was due to the air and gases, generated by the fire, holding back the flood of water, a monster cushion of compressed air and gas. Vent holes had to be bored from the surface to remove this, and the weary work of flooding was begun again. It was two years before the mine was in condition to resume operations.

A SLEEPWALKER'S FEAT.

One Who Guided His Watchful Companion Over Perilous Paths in Safety.

"An interesting case of somnambulism is reported by M. Bolaire, director of the normal school at Blois, France. It is accredited by Dr. Dufay and printed in 'The Proceedings of the Society of Psychical Research,'" writes Dr. R. Osgood Mason, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Theophile Janicaud was a pupil at the normal school, and in the month of July of his second year he commenced to walk in his sleep. On one occasion he got up at night, determined to go fishing. His brother-in-law, M. Simonet, decided to accompany him, but before starting he induced him to alter his plans and go and visit a relative instead. Accordingly this was done, Janicaud remaining fast asleep and undisturbed by the barking dogs or the fatigue of a long walk.

"Finally, he was ready to return, and on the way, coming to a narrow and dangerous path close to the river, his brother-in-law cautioned him to go carefully in the darkness. Janicaud, with some scorn, declared that he could see the better of the two, and to prove it asked Simonet if he could see the match under his foot, and, sure enough, there was a match. It was a dark night, and besides Janicaud was some 30 feet ahead of him and had his nightcup drawn closely over his face."

Too Many Doctors.

Statistics of the country relating to physicians indicate the possibility, if not the actuality, of overcrowding in the medical profession. It was found in the census year that there was one registered physician to every 655 people in the United States. That the number is in excess of the need is evidenced by a comparison with Germany, where, in 1898, there was only one physician to each 2,114 inhabitants, or relatively about one-third as many as in the United States.

New York a Century Ago.

THE PLETHORIC PICNIC PIE.

Beautiful Composition of the Early Season by a Prosaic High School Girl.

The joyous picnic season is here, but that it does not bring peace and happiness to all alike is clearly shown by a composition written on the subject by a girl in a New York high school, says Youth's Companion.

"May parties will soon be ripe, and the June walk season will follow hard upon. The difference between a May party and a June walk is a simple matter of chronology. Each has its queen of brief authority and its chaperon of absolute sway. Each has also its hamper, which is as deadly an enemy to the Manhattan populace as the frying-pan to the Kansas farmhand. I took an inventory of one of these hampers last year, and as I was a member of the physiology class at the time, it startled me out of a session's growth.

"When the hamper was opened the chaperon drew forth one bag of sandwiches and one pie; one bottle of pickles, one pie; one sponge cake, one pie; one roast chicken, one pie; one bottle of lemon juice, one pie; one bag of assorted cookies, one pie; one dozen doughnuts, one pie; one package of biscuits and one pie. This was all, except that there were a few extra pies at the bottom, for the purpose, I suppose, of forestalling famine.

"The chaperon wondered after luncheon why the boys and girls didn't enter into their play with as much zest as they did when they first arrived at the park. I didn't. I was studying natural history at the time, and only a few days before a lucid explanation had been given why the boaconstrictor takes a month's nap after dining on far more digestible food than anything I saw in Central park that day."

NORTHERN TOBACCO.

In Cigars It Has Color, Burn, and Texture, But Is Lacking in Good Flavor.

Color, burn and texture are the three things which the grower has chiefly to consider. At present the trade calls for a very light, cinnamon-brown shade, which must be uniform, not mottled, says Harper's Weekly. The leaf when rolled on a cigar and smoked must leave a white or light gray hard ash, which does not flake off and fall into one's bosom or over his waistcoat, and it must not "coal"—i. e., have a black, charred ring just behind the ash on the burning cigar. This is sure to give a bad flavor and taste. The leaf must also burn freely, and when lighted hold fire for a reasonable time. It must have a soft, silvery texture, glossy surface, and the elasticity of a piece of kid, so that it may be drawn smoothly and closely about the cigar.

Flavor is not wanted in Connecticut tobacco, for if there be much of it it is sure to be bad. Perfect burn, color and texture can be gotten in the northern climate, but a delicate and agreeable flavor has not yet been obtained. Flavor is conditioned largely by climate, the other qualities by soil and fertilizers. It is desirable, therefore, that the leaf be neutral, without taste, as far as may be. We get the flavor wholly in the Cuban filler. To obtain these qualities of leaf is the problem of the grower—a much more complicated one than meets the ordinary farmer.

ALPHABET ON A PINHEAD.

Wonderful Engraving Feat of a Tradesman in Baltimore.

H. A. Houseal, an engraver, has accomplished a task in the engraver's art which eclipses the engraving of the Lord's Prayer upon a silver dollar, which was supposed for a long time to be the triumph of fine work in engraving, says the Baltimore American. He has managed to engrave the alphabet complete on the head of a common pin. Mr. Houseal, who rarely uses a glass in his work, can read the letters with the naked eye, and although there are few persons whose eyesight is so strong, a common magnifying glass serves to make them easily distinguishable. The letters range from left to right, and are all capitals.

In the first circle around the edge of the head of the pin are the letters from A to M, inclusive. Within this is the second circle beginning at N and ending at Z, and directly in the center is the & mark. The diameter of the pinhead is barely a sixteenth of an inch and it can be understood how small the letters must be. They are about one-fourth the size of the letters in the Lord's Prayer engraved on a dollar. The work occupied about an hour and a half, and was done during an afternoon about a month ago, Mr. Houseal occasionally leaving it to attend to customers in the store. It was done with an ordinary engravers' tool.

Not Many Left.

"Those old ladies," says the Waterbury American, "who pride themselves on never having seen steam and electric railway cars and other modern improvements, will all be dead pretty soon. Two died last week—one in Pennsylvania, at the age of 90, who, in addition to her other distinctions, had never entered a church or heard a brass band, and the other in New York state at the age of 105. There can't be many of them left."

Germans in This Country.

In 1801 there were only 280,000 persons in the limits of the United States who spoke German as a mother tongue.

A BRAVE IRISHMAN.

Orderly Riley, Who Met Death With a Laugh.

"Courage, fidelity, honesty, are the soldier's cardinal virtues, which, summed up, read the plain and simple doing of one's duty. And it was in Rice Graves' battery before Fort Donelson that the virtues of the Confederate soldier were tried to the uttermost," said the old staff officer.

"Among them all Tom Riley, the orderly, shone out resplendently, for he went to certain death against orders because he thought it was his duty. Graves' battery had been got up in the lower part of Kentucky. 'No married man nor men with sweethearts need apply' had been the order of the captain in organizing it. And the battery looked the part. They were the dare-devils of Donelson. They would sing while they shot and crack jokes repulsing a charge. The captain had made Riley orderly to keep the wild Irishman in order. Between the two there was an affection almost brotherly.

"On the second day of Donelson Graves' battery was in a mighty tight box. The battery had been ordered into the rifle pits, and it seemed to the men that about a million bluecoats were shooting at them. For hours they lay under the leaden storm. The enemy kept coming closer and closer. Something had to be done. To show one's head above the trenches meant death.

"'Run out a gun and let 'em have it, boys,' said Graves.

"One round was fired, but it seemed only to bring down on that spot every Federal gun in reach. To reload the Confederate piece one man had to show himself. The gunner sprang to his place, rammer in hand. The piece was reloaded, but the cannoneer fell dead. Again the gun from Graves' battery spoke. A second time it was reloaded, and a second cannoneer lay dead beside his piece.

"Time after time this was repeated. The dead piled up about the gun. The entire Federal fire concentrated in an effort to silence it. It took two men now for one shot. The battery boys had quit joking. They lay grim and determined in the pit. As one fell the others moved up toward the gun. The nearest would say, 'Goodby, fellows,' and jump to his place, only to fall a minute later. The captain had ordered Tom Riley to stay behind when the battery went into the pits, but scarcely had the men got settled before Riley appeared.

"'I couldn't help it, sir,' he said to Graves and took his place among the men. Slowly death worked its way along the line toward Riley. Now he was three, then two and one before the captain knew it. Then Graves saw the danger.

"'Come here, Riley,' he cried. 'You are not a gunner. You are my orderly. You have no business there.'

"The cannoneer before Riley fell dead. The wild Irishman seized the rammer and turned to the captain. 'It is my duty, sir,' he said.

"Then, as though on parade, but with desperate swiftness, he began to load the gun. A shot knocked him to his knees, but he staggered up again and finished the work. Then he turned and bowed in the direction of the bluecoats.

"'Why don't ye learn how to shoot?' he yelled.

"He stepped back into cover and fell bleeding from half a dozen wounds.

"'I wouldn't 'a' given 'em the satisfaction o' knowing it,' he murmured faintly.

"Two of the men picked him up tenderly and began to carry him to the rear. They passed Graves, and Riley, looking up, saw tears in his captain's eyes.

"The orderly, already dying, was recalled to life. He forced a bloody laugh.

"'Shure, captain, darlint,' he cried, 'don't ye mind. Why, I ain't had so much fun since me mither died.'

"And Tom Riley tried to salute, but died before he could quite manage it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Canaries as Weather Prophets.

"I have heard of all sorts of barometers, or, rather, weather signs, but I know of no more reliable weather prophets than my birds," said a Baltimore lady who owns several canaries. "I can almost always tell when it is going to rain by the distinctness with which I can hear the trains at night, but the birds are even more reliable than that. If I hear them singing in the morning early, before I take the coverings of their cages off, I know that the day will be a good one, no matter if it is raining at the moment, but if they do not sing I am sure there will be bad weather before the day is over. I have never known them to fail, and I never think of going shopping or calling unless the birds sing in early morning. That is why I never get caught in the rain, as many of my friends do. That poor weather bureau man, who makes so many mistakes in his prophecies, ought by all means to get himself some canaries."—Baltimore Sun.

The Cautious Cossack.

Says a Russian traveler: "The Cossack hears himself as if there was always a Kirghese with a spear before and a Bashkir with a drawn sword behind him. He always appears angry and extremely cautious, as if he were on the battlefield watching his enemy and careful of attack from behind. Coming into contact with a stranger, the Cossack looks at him with a searching, scrutinizing eye; his talk is like that heard in a cross examination at the bar; his interrogations are catching questions. So they are all, the men and the women, the young and the old. The insolence of their young children and aged persons makes a revolting impression. Probably all Russia was in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries as the Cossacks are at present—powerful, harsh, insolent, half savage."

How to Save Money.

Feeds of all kinds are high, but we will cut down your feed bill one-half. How? Read on and you will know. We have concluded to exchange bran and shorts for oats for ten days, and we will give you 3200 lbs. of bran and shorts, mixed, for 2000 lbs. of oats. 3200 lbs. of bran and shorts will feed a horse, cow, colt or any other animal as long as 4000 lbs. of oats will this year, as the oats are very light: one-third to one-half being chaff and no better than straw. Some say that bran and shorts will make a horse fat, but that he will not be strong or fat, but that he will not be strong or have endurance. Did you ever see a workingman that was betting fat, but that he was also strong? Have you not noticed that your horses are not doing well this winter? And why? "Because the oats are poor and light" you say. Give your horse a change: don't feed him oats three times a day for twenty years. You may ask if oats are poor and only worth half as much for feed as bran and shorts, why do you exchange. First, because there are thousands of men that own horses the same as you do, but do not understand the value of bran and shorts for feed.

Second, there are others who do not care to bother to give their horses a change of feed, and

Third, we want to demonstrate to the farmers of this vicinity the feeding value of bran and shorts.

The only people who understand the value of bran and shorts as feed for stock, are the dairy farmers of Illinois and the eastern states. They pay $28.00 to $30.00 per ton for bran and shorts to feed to their cows, and take all the Northwestern mills can make. There is no question but that you can carry your horses, colts, cows and calves throught the balance of the winter at just one half the cost by feeding bran and shorts We are always spending money for advertising, and for ten days we are going to spend a little money in this exchange, and give the farmers and feeders of stock the benefit. We do this exchanging at our Crompe elevator or at the mill. Come in and see us.

ENJOYED THE FIGHT.

"Polly's" Comment on an Engagement Between Wild Cats in Close Quarters.

The two wildcats in a box in a baggage-room at the Union depot had glared at each other for a couple of hours before the trouble began, says the Denver Republican. All the afternoon they had growled, and the supposition is that they had said things to each other that were not complimentary. The larger of the two had spilled the water belonging to the smaller one. He had switched his tail into the other's face, and in various ways had given the youngster to understand that there was apt to be trouble. Toward evening the two sat in opposite corners and glared at each other. The larger animal about eight o'clock thought it was about time to make the interior of the box interesting to one of the occupants. He was successful.

No sooner had the big cat attacked the smaller one than the latter was ready for business. There was a mass of tangled fur inside the box, the sides of which groaned with the struggle. Growls and flying fur came out from between the cracks, and those who were looking on could not tell which was the winner. Several of the baggagemen caught up sticks and through the slits in the box succeeded finally in poking the beasts into submission. As the two wildcats cowered down in opposite corners a South African parrot swinging in a cage near by called out:

"Let 'em fight! It's a peach!"

HOW AUTOS HELP TRAVEL.

A French Club Makes Conditions Easy for Automobile Tourists in Europe.

The Touring Club of France is not an association exclusively for the promotion of automobilism, says Consul Thornwell Haynes, of Rouen. Its functions are much more vast, and every tourist on the continent is indebted to this gigantic organization, often without knowing it, for the amelioration of the conditions of traveling. Its membership has increased to more than 70,000. Its organ, the Revue de Touring Club de France, is one of the most widely read of French journals. Its headquarters are at 10 Place de la Bourse, Paris; fees, five francs ($1) a year.

This club publishes each year an annual giving all places of interest on the continent, conditions and maps of all roads, distances, hotels, laws and regulations regarding tourists, depots of petroleum, etc., and everything of advantage to the traveler. An agreement has been reached by the clubs of France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland and Luxemborg for the exchange of privileges and courtesies.

The headquarters of the Touring Club of Belgium is 11 Rue des Vanniers, Brussels; that of the Touring Club of Italy, 2 via Giulini, Milan; that of the Touring Club of Switzerland, 4 Boulevard du Theatre, Geneva; that of the Touring Club of Luxemborg, 5 Avenue de l'Arsenal, Luxemborg.

SOME INDIAN WAYS.

Red People of Oklahoma Are Childlike But Are Not at All Immodest.

Judge Museller has been for several months with the Wichita Indians in southwest Oklahoma allotting lands to them. "If I had it to do over again," said the judge to the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle, "I would take my wife with me. She was with me two weeks and found that white women have a remarkable influence upon the Indian in the way of inspiring confidence. In seeking to make pictures I found in almost every instance that the squaws would not stand before the camera unless my wife stood with them. I have heard a good deal about loose morals prevailing among Indians, but so far as the Wichitas are concerned they do not deserve the general reputation of their race. They are not immodest. Of course, they do things that white people would not do, but it is mostly because of their childlike nature. The women go bathing twice a day in the river, early in the morning and again later. The children are in the water all the time during hot weather. It is no uncommon thing early in the morning to see a dozen squaws trooping silently down to the river, throw off their sheet-like robes and jump into the river. Their solemn silence during the aquatic visits is something that I am unable to account for."

Japs Not On to Western Ways.

There is a story illustrative of Japanese officeholding, says a Tokio correspondent in the New York Post. A rich tourist who feared that his heavy baggage would make trouble for him with the customs laid a five-yen note conspicuously on the top tray of one of his trunks. The inspector paid no attention to it, but went on checking the pieces as he examined them. "That's for you," the tourist explained. Very gravely the little man put a chalk mark on it and passed it back to its owner, who now says that no one need tell him that the Japanese haven't a sense of humor.

Say It in a Hurry.

Here is a word worth committing to memory, to be uttered severely when you want to terrify one younger than yourself into submission: "Snelpaardelooszonderspoorwegpetrooirytuing." The meaning does not matter very much, the sound being everything, but it may be as well to know that it is Dutch for "the quick-horseless-open-ordinary-road-running-petroleum carriage or motor car."

FEARS DISASTROUS RESULTS.

Professor Kiehle on Tendency of Women to Enter Business Life.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—A warning note that women and girls in this country were being drawn into commercial and manufacturing pursuits to an extent that jeopardized the welfare of future women and menaced happy home life was sounded by Professor D. L. Kiehle of the chair of Pedagogy in the University of Minnesota before the department of superintendents of the National Educational association now in convention here. His address touched a popular feeling in the minds of the thousand or more educators from all points of the compass and that portion stating that home life and surroundings were above all sordid gain was applauded.

"In this age of commercialism and industrial conditions," said Professor Kiehle, "no provision has been made for motherhood. This phase of life seems to have been brushed aside. In fact, we are making money earners of our daughters in commercial pursuits.

"While women have every right to an equality with men in matters of education, they are going outside their sphere when that portion of their education fitting them for the higher duties of home life and motherhood does not take precedence over everything else.

"Education for woman that began only a few years ago on elementary lines has extended to technical and classical courses and has enabled women to compete for pieces formally filled by men who supported families in many instances. The continuation of women entering the commercial and industrial field cannot but have disastrous results in time, unless something is done to provide for a home life also for women and the tendency to enter the office and factory is checked."

CITY BONDS ARE VOID.

Important Decision in a Test Case at Superior.

West Superior, Wis., March 3.—Judge Vinje of the circuit court has handed down a decision in the suit brought by the Uncas National bank of Norwich, Conn., against the city of Superior dismissing the case. The suit was brought on two city bonds which the bank held. The face value of the two was $1,000.

The judge held that the bonds could be collected from the city by no direct action. The court ruled that they were general bonds and that, as there had been no provisions made for their payment, as required by the constitution, he decided they were void.

The case was mostly a test case and its importance is based upon the fact that this city has $600,000 similar bonds outstanding. This decision, if sustained by the supreme court, makes them all void and will relieve the people of at least $400,000 of indebtedness.

WILL HE SUCCEED?

MAJ. MCLAUGHLIN NOW TREATING WITH RED LAKE INDIANS.

THE REDS HAVE REFUSED TO CEDE, BUT WILL LIKELY BE WON OVER.

Red Lake Agency, March 8.—After a two days' drive through a blinding snow storm Inspector James McLaughlin, of the United States Indian service, arrived at the Red Lake agency Saturday on a mission which may play an important part in the history of Northern Minnesota. He is here to treat with the Red Lake Chippewas for the purchase of the eleven townships of land which form the western portion of their reservation. The first council was held Tuesday, and chiefs and head men from the reservation were present to listen to the government's propositions.

The chiefs appear in council dressed in full ceremonial costume and a most improgressive gathering it is.

Interpreters and stenographers are on the grounds to make official record of all that transpires.

The first council between Inspector James McLaughlin and the Red Lake band of Chippewas convened here on Tuesday. About 120 Indians, including all the chiefs, were present. Many of the Indians were in full ceremonial dress and presented a most imposing appearance. Each one wore the number of eagle feathers to which he might be entitled by Indian usage, and each eagle feather indicated an enemy of the tribe killed and scalped by the wearer.

Inspector McLaughlin addressed the Indians, stating the proposition of the government to buy a portion of their reservation. He spoke to them, in part thus:

"The surplus land of every Indian reservation will sooner or later be opened for settlement, and it is only a question of time until such will be consummated. It is coming as sure as the day succeeds the night, and the best course for the Indians to pursue in such instances, is to make the best bargain possible in disposing of the lands they do not need, and provide for their wants from the proceeds. The department which has charge of Indian affairs, and even the president, who is our chief executive, are owing to the pressing demands for homes for new settlers, powerless to prevent the opening of the surplus lands of Indian reservations, which the Indians do not actually need, and cannot make proper use of.

"Public opinion demands it, and popular sentiment cannot be overcome, and all that the department can do in the matter is to protect the Indians by obtaining for them a reasonable compensation for their surplus lands. If you needed this tract of land that I am talking to you about, it would be quite different, but you have no need of it, and are deriving little or no profit from it, and you old men should grasp the opportunity of profiting by the proceeds of its cession, which would provide for your comforts in your declining years, and you young men would thus be given a start that should, with reasonable industry on your part, place you in comfortable circumstances and on the road to independence."

At the conclusion of the major's address Chief Kai-ba-no-gin arose, and shaking hands with the inspector, said, speaking for the tribe:

"We have now heard you. You have told us why you have come to see us. The Indians of the Red Lake band now understand your mission. It is not our purpose to answer you at this time. We wish to hold a council in this building to consider your words."

Inspector McLaughlin responded:

"Very well, my friends, you can send for me at any time. I will be either at Spear's hotel or at the agency office, and will respond to your call day or night, when you notify me that you are ready to give me your answer, or desire to propound any question. We will now adjourn, subject to call."

The Indians then went into executive session and continued in council until 8 p. m., when the major was summoned to hear their reply. Kay-bay-no-gin introduced Chief Moose Dung, who had been appointed spokesman of the tribe. The chief was dressed in full robes of ceremony, and presented a most imposing appearance.

In a long and eloquent address in the Chippewa language, he presented the past grievances of the tribe, and in conclusion stated that the Indians in council had decided to refuse any proposition for the cession of the land in question.

Maj. McLaughlin urged that the decision in this matter be not made too hastily and pointed out the advantages accruing to the band from the sale of these lands, whereupon the Indians went out once more into council and continued their session throughout the next day.

The refusal of the Indians to consider an offer for their lands at first had been anticipated, but it is not necessarily discouraging to the authorities. It is the usual answer of Indians in the first instance to any such proposition and it is believed that they may later see that it is to their own interest to dispose of their surplus territory at a fair price. The council will continue for about ten days.

Red Lake reservation is two days' journey by land from Thief River Falls and the transmission of news is therefore slow. The staff correspondent of the Dispatch accompanied the government party to the reservation and will remain until the conference is ended and the results are known.

When the reservation opens it is probable the so-called lottery plan so successfully used in Oklahoma will be made the mode of procedure. This gives every man who deposits five dollars the chance to draw a quarter section of land and prevents contests.

Maj. James McLaughlin, who has successfully negotiated numerous treaties for the government, went to the Fort Totten Indian reservation in 1870 as agency blacksmith. He at once became the friend of the Indians and was soon after appointed Indian agent at the fort. About 1882 when General Sherman made his famous trip to the reservation at Standing Rock, he discovered in Mr. McLaughlin a proper person to settle Indian troubles.

At that time the Indians at Standing Rock were very quarrelsome with the whites, and Mr. McLaughlin, at Gen. Sherman's suggestion, was sent by the government to the agency and at once all disputes were settled. It was James McLaughlin, who, when Sitting Bull, worked up by the ghost dance, created trouble at the reservation, sent the cavalry to arrest the noted Indian leader, who had fortified himself a short distance away. The old chief would not allow himself to be taken into custody, and as a result, went to the happy hunting grounds.

He has been successful in all his negotiations with the Indians.

Starts Ball Rolling For Inter-High School Field Day.

Monday's Crookston Daily Journal said: With the spring-like days comes a renewed interest among the school boys in outdoor athletics.

Superintendent Sellick has received word from Superintendent Whiteley of Red Lake Falls, asking that there be held in Crookston a meeting of the superintendents and delegates from the boys of the schools of Ada, Fertile and Red Lake Falls, to arrange for a spring field meet of these four schools. The date set for the conference is Saturday, March 15.

The boys of the high school have begun active practice for the several contests likely to come off. They are getting down to systematic and regular training, and if their success can be judged by their interest in the several sports, we may predict that Crookston will carry off the honors this season.

Baseball practice and various forms of jumping and putting the shot are at present receiving the most attention.

The gymnasium instructor, Mr. Lyman, of Fargo, will be on hand next Tuesday to open the work at the gymnasium, and then other sports will be taken up.

The girls' basket ball team is doing faithful work in practice for the coming game with the team from the Ada high school.

Allegations Made in the Complaint of the United States Against the Northern Securities Company.

That the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad systems are parallel and competing lines, aggregating over 5,500 miles in length.

That in 1901 the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern systems purchased the Burlington system of 8,000 miles, contemplating the ultimate control of both systems by a common interest.

That the Northern Securities company was an unlawful conspiracy between J. P. Morgan and his associates, controlling a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific, and James J. Hill and his associates, controlling a majority of the stock of the Great Northern, to effect a virtual consolidation of these two systems, and to place restraint on all competitive interstate and foreign trade carried on by them, and to monopolize the same, and to suppress general competition.

That the Northern Securities company was formed with a capital stock of $400,000,000, to which, in exchange for its own capital stock, upon a certain basis, was to be given a controlling interest in the capital stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern systems.

That individual stockholders of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific were to hold no interest on the railroad property, but to draw their dividends from the earnings of the Securities company.

That the exchange of stock was to be made on the basis of $180 par value of Northern Securities stock for every share of Great Northern stock and $115 for Northern Pacific stock.

That the Northern Securities company is a mere depository custodian, holder and trustee of the stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

That it makes the stockholders in each system jointly interested in both systems, and, by practically pooling the earnings of both systems, for the benefit of the former stockholders of each, it removes all inducements of competition between the two systems.

The complaint alleges that if the Northern Securities company is found not to possess a majority of the stock of both railway systems, it is because the stockholders have withdrew it temporarily, fearing that it should be attacked in the courts and that the defense may thus be able to apparently controvert the charge.

If the petition is not granted it is asserted that it will establish a method whereby all railroad interests of the country may circumvent the law and destroy all competition.

FORTY HOURS

THE DEVOTION AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH CLOSED TUESDAY NIGHT.

CROWDS THRONG TO HEAR THE ABLE SPEAKER—MANY COMMUNICANTS.

The opening sermon of the Forty Hours' Devotion was preached at St. Mary's church Saturday evening, when Rev. Fr. George, of Barnesville, delivered a discourse with "Delay of Repentance" as his text. The attendance was not large on Saturday, but the ability of Rev. George as a pulpit orator thereafter attracted many visitors, besides the members of the congregation, to the succeeding exercises. Rev. George delivered ten sermons, speaking over an hour at a time. The services throughout the Forty Hours' devotion were very impressive.

On Tuesday morning a solemn high mass was celebrated with three priests at the altar, and thirteen acolytes or altar boys uniformely robed. Many members of the congregation availed themselves of the opportunity to make their Easter duty, communion having been distributed to 175.

The largest attendance was Tuesday night, the services lasting from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. Rev. George's closing discourse was a masterpiece, and the best sermon of the series. The services concluded with a procession through the church, benediction, and the singing by the choir of the Te Deum.

The sermons as preached by Father George were according to the following program:

Saturday evening—"Delay of Repentance." Division: Injustice to God and Injustice to man himself.

Sunday morning—English: "The Eucharist." Points: The Work of God in Creation." The restoration of man in redemption. The completion of God's design in the Eucharist. In German the subject was "The Way of Virtue and Vice."

Sunday evening—"Necessity of a True Religion." 1. Religion exists. 2. Man must have a true religion. 3 Existence of Catholicity the proof of the necessity of a true religion.

Monday morning.—"Essence of Mortal Sin." Proved from existing circumstances. In German, "The Deceit of Sin."

Monday evening.—"Mixed Marriages." Reasons why the Church discountenances mixed marriages."

Tuesday morning—"Frequent Communions." Reasons: From the institution. Wants of human nature. In German, "What Demands Does the Image of God Make Upon us?"

Tuesday evening.—"Loyalty to Church." 1. What constitutes loyalty? 2. Why we must be loyal.

The subjects were handled exhaustively, and with a sustained power that was the admiration of all his hearers.

FERGUS WINS AGAIN

THE INTER-DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL HONORS ARE FAIRLY HER'S.

THE JUDGES WERE UNANIMOUS IN THEIR DECISION.

The oratorical contest between the Fergus Falls and St. Cloud High Schools for the championship of the Sixth and Seventh districts was held at Fergus Falls at the Lyceum theatre Friday night. The house was well filled and the audience was an appreciative one. Fergus and vicinity was not the only territory represented. The debate was conducted under the auspices of the state oratorical association and the affair was of interest to the whole state. The honors were carried off by the Fergus Falls debaters, the decision of the judges in their favor being unanimous. The subject debated was the same as in previous debates in these oratorical contests, "Resolved, that capital punishment ought to be abolished in the United States." The Fergus Falls team had the affirmative side of the question.

The St. Cloud team arrived on the flyer flushed somewhat with their victory at Duluth over contestants from the 6th district. Randall Harrison, Thos. S. Ervin and Thos. Brandley debated for St. Cloud.

The Judges were J. G. Forbes, of Wahpeton, C. J. Gunderson, of Alexandria and Prof. A. C. Arney, of Battle Lake.

Large delegations were present from Rothsay, St. Cloud and other points. It is thought the Fergus team stands a fine show of winning the state championship and the $250 cup offered by the Minneapolis Journal to the winner.

Miss Findeisen as Hostess.

Miss Eleanor Findeisen issued invitations for a "Hen Party" at the home of her parents Friday night, and the guests appeared in costume. The evening was spent with games and music. A pleasing feature was the guessing contest, entitled "Musical Romance" in which each question was to be answered by the title of a familiar song. The head prize, a miniature of Beethoven was won by Miss Laura Hollingshead, while Miss Lillian Buse carried off the booby prize, a tin horn. After the games an elaborate lunch was served, and those familiar with the Findeisen hospitality and the quality of refreshments to be expected there were not disappointed, being treated to a veritable feast for the gods.

Those present were: Misses Lillian and Alice Buse, Bessie Hunt, Alice Newton, Rose Dautremont, Albina Lemieux, Delia Toupin, Etta Zaiser, Mabel Owen, Rachel Taylor and Laura Hollingshead.

John's Still Dreaming.

Thief River Falls News: H. M. Clark, one of the well to do settlers of the town of Thief Lake, was in the city this week and stated to the News that he was greatly in favor of having a new county formed of the northern part of Red Lake and the eastern part of Marshall, and he believed that all the people up in that section also favored it.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Career and Character of Abraham Lincoln.

An address by Joseph Choate, Ambassador to Great Britan, on the career and character of Abraham Lincoln—his early life—his early struggles with the world—his character as developed in the later years of his life and his administration, which placed his name so high on the world's roll of honor and fame, has been published by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway and may be had by sending six (6) cents in postage to F.A. The Olga correspondent of the interesting Thirteen Towns had this in his string last week: "Yes, he is lost. The chances are that he will not return for many moons to come. Who? The winter of course."

He will never find it sitting in a box with Mrs. Carter Harrison watching a company of dancers."

"Me enemy, is it father?" responded Michael, "and it was your riverence's self that was telling us in the pulpit only last Sunday to love your enemies!" "So I was Michael," rejoined the priest, "but I didn't tell you to swallow them."

The Women's Civic Improvement League of St. Paul has a pretty acceptable creed. REGULAR ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF THE ORDER HELD IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Officers for the Ensuing Year Elected and the Pension Bureau Criticised. Duluth Man Killed by Electricity While Using a Telephone—Unusual Masonic Event at Austin—News of the State in General.

Minneapolis, March 8.—The Minnesota department of the Grand Army of the Republic concluded its work by electing the following officers: Department commander, Perry Starkweather, Minneapolis; senior vice commander, Isaac L. Mahan, St. Paul; junior vice commander, Harrison White, Luverne; medical director, J. Frank Locke, Long Prairie; assistant adjutant general, Orton S. Clark, Minneapolis; assistant quartermaster general, E. N. Leavens, Faribault; department chaplain, David Donovan, Dundas.

The only contest was for junior vice. After the first ballot this lay between Harrison White and M. W. Bates of Duluth.

The department took up the pension matter during the morning session, and a resolution containing a severe arraignment of Pension Commissioner Evans was introduced. It was not adopted, although some comrades took occasion to freely express their opinions of the commissioner. Wise counsel prevented any action. A resolution was then adopted, which arraigns the department for illiberal policy.

GREAT MASONIC EVENT.

Six Brothers Initiated at Austin, Minn., Before a Multitude of Guests.

Austin, Minn., March 10.—A very unusual Masonic initiation has attracted Masons from a radius of a hundred miles. Over 350 came by trains as far west as Jackson. Albert Lea sends 40. The delegation from St. Paul included Governor Van Sant, Julius Schmall, C. A. Warren and grand lodge officers A. D. Countrymen, Henry R. Adams and H. N. Tusler.

The ceremony opened promptly at 7:30, and the six Aultfather brothers of this county, Charles, James, Andrew, William, David and George, were raised to Master Masons in the presence of over 400 Masons by John H. Anderson, worshipful master. After the initiation a grand banquet was had at the armory, which had been converted into a beautiful banquet hall. Masonic decorations were seen in electric setting and covers were laid for 350.

MOST SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

James J. McKusick of Duluth Killed While Using a Telephone.

Duluth, March 6.—One of the most singular accidents ever chronicled in the city occurred when James J. McKusick was killed by a shock of electricity while talking through a telephone.

McKusick was at his home and stood upon a steam register in order to use more conveniently the telephone. While engaged in conversation he suddenly turned up his hands, his body seemed to stiffen and he fell dead at his wife's feet.

It is supposed that the telephone wire crossed other wires and that McKusick standing on metal formed a circuit. He was 29 years old.

FOR INSULTING HIS WIFE.

Robert Gallahugh Shoots a Negro Cook at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, March 8.—Collins, a colored cook at the San Angelo hotel was shot and instantly killed in the kitchen of the hotel by Robert Gallahugh, a brakeman employed by the Northern Pacific railroad, who claims that Collins insulted his wife. Two hours after the tragedy Collins' self-confessed slayer, who had made his escape from the hotel, telephoned the police department and was taken into custody by detectives.

BUYS MANY ELEVATORS.

Big Purchase Made by the National Elevator Company.

Minneapolis, March 7.—It is reported the National Elevator company (Van Dusen, Harrington & Co.) has purchased from the St. Paul and Kansas City Elevator company a line of 36 grain elevators located between Sioux Falls and Yankton, S. D.; Garrettson and Sioux City, Ia., and between Jackson and O'Neill, Neb. The purchase price is not stated.

CRIPPLE A SUICIDE.

Peter Lindahl, Despondent, Dies in Moorhead.

Moorhead, Minn., March 10.—Peter Lindahl this morning committed suicide at the Cleveland House by blowing the top of his head off with a 38-caliber revolver. He was a cripple and in poor health. Over $400 in cash and certificates of deposit were found on his body by Coroner Darrow.

SHOT THROUGH THE LUNG.

Halstad Man Seriously Injured During a Quarrel.

Halstad, Minn., March 10.—M. Sundseth shot and dangerously wounded John K. Hage at a drinking party on a farm near here. The trouble arose over the moving of a building. Hage has a bullet hole through a lung and may not recover. Sundseth is in jail. He claims self-defense.

Minnesotans Buy Manitoba Land.

Winnipeg, March 10.—The Manitoba Land and Investment company of this city, composed of prominent Minnesotans, has closed a deal for the purchase of 150,000 acres of land in Assiniboia, near Yorktown. This is but the beginning of a series of gigantic transactions planned by the company in Canadian lands.

Bishop Spalding Dead.

Erie, Pa., March 10.—Dr. John Franklin Spalding, Episcopal bishop of the state of Colorado, died at the home of his son in this city of pneumonia, aged 72 years.

MUST RELY ON STATE COURTS.

Federal Tribunals Barred to Minnesota in Cases Like the Merger.

St. Paul, March 8.—According to the recent decision of the supreme court, the state of Minnesota cannot be a party to any suit against the Northern Securities company in the United States court.

Any fight on the merger made by the state must be made in the state court and follow the course of ordinary cases, even to the United States supreme court.

The point of the supreme court decision was called to the attention of the state senate in a communication from Attorney General Douglas, which was read.

The attorney general pointed out that the ruling of the court was to the effect that the state, not being a citizen, could not be a party to a civil suit, either in common law or equity, in the federal, district or circuit courts.

This ruling shut out the state from joining issue with the Northern Securities company in any of the federal courts. It did not, however, refer to the state courts and the attorney general was of the opinion that the merger could be reached by this means.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS.

Minnesota House Passes Bill Amending the Law.

St. Paul, March 5.—The house passed, practically without opposition, Senator Schaller's bill removing municipal and school officers in cities of 10,000 or less from the operations of the primary election law.

Sherman Smith's bill for a constitutional convention was tabled after it was lost by default and the house spent the remainder of the session in debate on the judiciary committee's bill for proposed constitutional amendments.

Senator Halvorson's bill, which proposed to have the members of the state railroad and warehouse commission appointed by the governor, instead of being elected as they now are, occupied one hour of the senate's time and was finally defeated.

The judiciary committee introduced its substitute bills for bills providing for a constitutional amendment relating to inheritance and income taxation. The substitute was adopted and placed on general orders.

TO REPEAL THE CHARTER.

Bill Affecting Securities Company in New Jersey Legislature.

Trenton, N. J., March 5.—Senator Gebhardt, Dem., of Hunterdon, introduced a bill in the senate to repeal and dissolve the charter and corporate existence of the Northern Securities company. The bill has a long preamble in which it is stated among other things that the company was organized to enable the Northern Pacific Railroad company and the Great Northern Railroad company to violate the laws of several states and interfere with their revenues, and also to destroy the competition in passenger and freight rates that existed between these railroads. The preamble goes on to say that the organization has aroused great public indignation and that the governor of Minnesota has already instituted suit to prevent the consummation of the illegal and injurious purposes sought to be accomplished by the formation of the Securities company. The bill was referred to the committee on corporations.

TO AMEND CONSTITUTION.

Both Houses of the Minnesota Legislature Pass Bills.

St. Paul, March 7.—With the Anderson bill, the board of control, the taxation of grain in elevators and the constitutional amendments the senate had a busy time all day, the net result being that the bill providing for constitutional amendments relating to taxation was passed after several attempts had been made to amend it, all of which failed.

Besides considering these measures the senate waded through a multitude of small bills of local or little importance.

The house substituted the Roberts bill for constitutional amendments for the majority judiciary committee's bill, as amended by Mr. Alley, and passed it by a vote of 65 to 45. Under suspension of the rules it also passed a bill bringing railway companies and other corporations paying a gross earnings tax under the provisions of the act authorizing a public examiner.

WAS BURIED ALIVE.

Keokuk, Ia., March 10.—A strange case has come to light at Navoo, near here. John Edmunds, a farmer, was buried about 10 days ago, having died suddenly from what was supposed to be heart disease. He had been driving in the cold and suddenly became unconscious. He was taken home, pronounced dead and buried next day. Some suspicion was aroused as to the cause of his death and a post mortem was decided upon. The body was exhumed and it was found he had been buried alive. The body was found in the grave face downward. Had the body not been interred so hurriedly the friends of the dead man believe he would have been alive today. There were evidences of a struggle in the casket. The case has excited unusual interest.

AGREEMENT TO BE RATIFIED.

Cession of Rosebud Indian Lands in South Dakota.

Washington, March 10.—Senator Gamble, from the committee on Indian affairs, has reported favorably the bill ratifying the agreement with the Rosebud Sioux Indians for the cession of their unallotted lands in Gregory county, South Dakota, to the United States. There are 416,000 acres, for which the Indians are to receive $1,040,000.

CATTLE STAMPEDE AND DROWN.

South Dakota Rancher Loses Six Hundred Head.

Miller, S. D., March 10.—During the recent storm 600 head of cattle on the Brown ranch, 30 miles southwest of here, stampeded into a deep creek and were drowned, the ice having been made soft by the warm water from the artesian well.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Pretty Breakfast Coat.

CREPE DE CHINE AND LACE.

Sham Petticoats.

Another idea useful for the girl of limited means is the new sham petticoat. When the skirt is lifted a little, the petticoat looks like an ordinary divided undergarment. In reality it consists of a skirt for each leg. These leglets are fastened either just above or just below the knee and are fixed securely in place. They are of silk, ruffled and lace trimmed like an ordinary silk divided skirt. Of course the flare from the knee is considerable. The cheapness of the sham petticoat is one of their recommendations. Another is that many women prefer to wear no petticoat with the prevailing tight skirts, yet long for something that will give the frou frou effect about the feet.

A Smart Bolero.

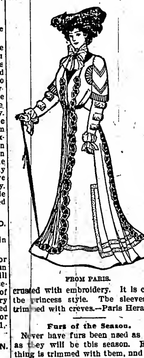
Very smart is a little bolero of black silk strapped very elaborately with black panne and arranged in front with long box plaited ends fastened with ornaments of black glace silk piped with panne and finished with little barrels and pendants of black and white silk. This bolero has a wonderfully pretty collar of fine white lawn closely tucked and trimmed with medallions of lace. Under this there is a second collar of black glace silk. The sleeves are made in a full bell shape and strapped with panne.—New York Mail and Express.

Hats of the Season.

Hats in pale colors, pink or mauve felt, are seen threaded with ribbons in black velvet or their own hue in a deeper shade. Foliage and flowers, though the foliage is newer, are the chosen trimming. Fur bots promise to be revived, mostly those of sable trimmed with scarfs of lace. In Paris the milliners are using laces of the coarser kind to bedeck hats this season. A last year's sable toque may be completely renovated by a gathered brim of ecru chiffon covered with a scarf of lace.

Dress For Visiting.

This dress is of amadous colored cloth and mirror velvet to match, incrusted with embroidery. It is cut in the princess style. The sleeves are trimmed with creves.—Paris Herald.



FROM PARIS.

Furs of the Season.

Never have furs been used as much as they will be this season. Everything is trimmed with them, and there will be a wealth of capes, collarettes, stoles and muffs, while bands of fur will be used on almost all kinds of winter gowns. Fur muffs are no longer lined with satin, but with fur, and are large and soft, with a single beautiful flower or a bunch of flowers tucked away in one corner of them.

Value of Corn Stover.

To illustrate what we said not long ago about the value of corn stover in those regions where corn is one of the principal crops we reprint a story from The Farmer's Guide of Auburn, Ind., which is said to have been told by a truthful man, a good citizen and a pillar of the church, says American Cultivator. Said he: "Last winter I wintered from the 1st of December up to the 1st of April, four months, 115 head of stock, made up of cows, young cattle, horses and colts, upon the corn fodder produced upon fifteen acres of corn, which yielded seventy-five bushels per acre, this fodder being all the roughage this lot of stock had." This statement hardly needs any comment, for it tells its own story. It is well worth thinking over by all men who raise corn and leave the stalks to waste in the field.

How Did He Know?

Dr. F. J. Campbell, a celebrated blind educator of England, once had an amusing experience at a rough and ready hotel in the backwoods of America. Two girls were at the dinner table with the doctor, and one of them was touchingly sympathetic. "Does your blindness make any difference to you when you eat?" she asked. "Why, yes; I know when my food's good just as well as you do," said the doctor. "And when you drink?" "Why, it's just the same." "And can you fall in love?" "Dear me, why, of course I can. I have fallen very much in love." "Well, but how can you say whether a girl's pretty? Do you mind telling me if I'm pretty?" "Not in the slightest." "Shall I put my hand on your face?" "I know without that," said the man with closed eyes. "You are the prettiest girl on the creek." "My! That's true!" exclaimed the girl as she rushed to her friend and asked, "Now, how did he know that?"

Ridiculous Query.

"You are familiar with the game laws, I believe," said Dinwiddie to Van Braam.

"Well, what are you driving at now?" asked Van Braam, who knew that his friend never went hunting.

"Do they apply to shooting stars?"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
—BY—
PHIL. A. KAUFER.

Published weekly, Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the postoffice at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

A SOLID CITY.

Red Lake Falls has advanced to that stage where the wealth of the surrounding district begins to overflow into our banks; the merchants are fast forging by the borrowing stage and stacking up bank accounts for themselves; the era of comfortable, sometimes elaborate, homes has dawned, and the prosperity is in the present, rather than a will o' the wisp being fruitlessly followed.

The county seat, the center of business for a territory north, south, east and west, embracing an area of fourteen townships, and including some of the richest land found in the Red River Valley; with a bunch of manufacturing enterprises aiding the tributary farmers to keep this the market par excellence compared with the other cities in the county—with all this, Red Lake Falls feels that though the present prosperity is great and gratifying, that of the future is well grounded in these very elements, with a guarantee for continuous, steady growth.

A STUPENDOUS ENTERPRISE.

The Newlands irrigation bill which was passed by the Senate last week is a measure of great importance and the law when passed will embody great possibilites for the multiplication of the land values of several Western states. The territory affected by the bill is nearly one half of the area of the United States and in the 16 arid land states there are over 535,000,000 acres, or more than one-sixth of the area of the country of public lands subject to entry.

Of this vast tract only 10,000,000 acres will produce crops without irrigation, showing the wide extent of the arid districts.

In pressing the claims for this bill it has been wisely said that in such a vast domain no agency, other than the government, can deal adequately with the problem of irrigation; that irrigation long ago passed the experimental stage and its great advantages have been established in this country and abroad. The bill proposes no taxation to carry out the irrigation project, the entire expense being derived from the sale of public lands in the states to be irrigated.

The favor with which the measure has been received is an indication of the appreciation of the fact that the tillable public land area where crops can be produced without irrigation, is practically gone; and the increasing values of land, and the pressing demand for cheap homes where the industrious husbandman may expect to attain a competence if not accumulate wealth, has forced the issue.

President Roosevelt whose years spent on the Western plains has given him that insight into the true condition of affairs and that accurate knowledge which only personal experience can give, is a warm advocate of irrigation and the subject was generously treated in his message to congress.

When the actual work by the government is commenced, it may be properly looked upon as the dawning of a new era. It brings home to us the increasing value of Northwestern lands, along with those of the other agricultural regions, where nature provides the irrigation, and the fortunate holder of Northwestern agricultural lands will not be long in grasping the situation, and appreciating the worth of his possessions.

Red Lake county has never had a crop failure. Land seekers will do well to remember this when looking up prospective homes.

SENTIMENTALISM AND CUBA.

Appeal on sentimental grounds is still the main feature of the argument in favor of a fifty per cent. reduction in the duty on Cuban sugar. Because we rescued Cuba from a relentless and devestating war, that was fast sapping the vitality of the race, and spreading desolation throughout the island despoiling the homes, the industrial progress and the very fibre of the national character, because we saved Cuba from this, replacing the unfortunate condition by a reign of peace, and the opportunities for industrial rejuvenation and prosperity, we are told by the advocates of Cuban tariff concession that we owe it as a moral obligation! The truth is, we owe Cuba nothing. The balance, indeed, is overwhelmingly on the other side.

From a commercial standpoint, we can see no particular object in making the concession. Last year, Cuba, with a full knowledge, but no appreciation, of the national sacrifices made by this country in her behalf, directed her patronage so that at the end of the year the balance of trade is shown to have been $48,000,000 against us. It is evident that the Cubans are not allowing sentimental considerations to influence their business dealings with us. And in the face of this showing, considering that no people ever had greater moral obligations, we cannot expect to alter their attitude by a mere tariff concession. What comparison would this benefaction on our part be to what we did before? It would be as a drop in the bucket.

As a reciprocity measure, the plan is not satisfactory. No doubt there is a strong preponderance of opinion in favor of the removal or reduction of the tariff on trust controlled commodities. But in dealing with this question, the American people, and not the inhabitants of Cuba, should be given first consideration. If a system of reciprocity is to be inaugurated, let it be a broad and comprehensive one, not confined to one item, an open and acknowledged discrimination against one particular trust. The Jacobson bill in this state was severely arraigned for its inequality in distributing the burdens of taxation. The advocacy of Cuban tariff concession in the name of reciprocity, is rather abusing a popular sentiment. The sugar trust is not a concern that appeals particularly to ones sympathies, but no argument in favor of discrimination against any particular industry can be sustained.

PRESS COMMENTS ON WATSON FOR SENATOR.

W. F. Street, the able Beltrami county attorney, who has had everything pretty much his own way, is now confronted with a live boom for Dr. Watson for state senator, voiced in the following press comments:

Crookston Times: People of Red Lake county are not going to hold their peace and see all the offices get away from them. Some of the political rustlers are grooming Dr. Watson of Red Lake Falls for the political race. It is suggested that no better candidate can be found in the district for state senator. The republicans are very friendly to the party nomination of the genial and popular doctor. The doctor has a host of friends and would no doubt make a good race.

Thief River Falls News: The Doctor is one of the ablest men in the district and has a host of friends up in this section who would work hard for his success.

Red Lake County Courier: The Doctor is probably as well known as any Republican in the district and wherever known is popular.

Is there as much truth in the report of Miss Stone's lecture tour as there was in the previous accounts of her release? This is the question.

Perhaps Gov. VanSant, recollecting his 12-year wait for the governorship, thought he would give Prince Henry a taste of Minnesota politics in miniature.

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY MOTHER KATHERINE

She is a mother who presides over an ideal home. A letter addressed to her in care of The Gazette will reach her. She is worthy of confidence.

NO TIME.

This old story will bear repeating: There was once a very busy man. He was making money fast, but the faster he made money the busier he became. He dropped writing letters, he dropped going out with his wife, and of course he dropped going to church or reciting his daily prayers. He was not a bad man—only a busy one, you know—and he fixed up a compromise in this way: He wrote out a long, fervor-inspiring prayer, in fact an excellent prayer, and pinned it to the wall beside his bed. At night when he retired and in the morning upon arising, he reverently put his hand upon the written prayer, saying: "O Lord, those are my sentiments." He had "no time" to pray but wanted to slip in with the favored ones just the same. The story speaks for itself.

Many who read this will smile. Let them do more—let them pause and ponder a moment. Do they compare favorably with this man? I fear not. In his hurry he did not quite forget his Maker. How many of my readers give their Lord even a passing thought? Their friends, their families, all must needs be swept aside lest perchance the gold-chase be interrupted. Life is so short, my friends. When you can do a favor, do it with a will. When you are called upon to write a letter write it promptly and well. When you are called to do a duty do it cheerfully, and when you pray do so with all your heart, even though it may take a little of your precious time.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Here is a story that will tell you how Sam, Miles and the others in the family, came to mark their clothing.

One Sunday morning mamma was getting the children ready for church when she heard a great noise in the nursery. "Give me my stocking, Sam," said Miles. "They are mine," rejoined Sam. "Yes, you great, big grabber you, just because you didn't see your own, you put on mine and they are too small for you; your big feet will go right through them. Mamma! mamma! Sam won't give me my stockings." Now mamma was very sorry to hear this, for it was not the first time, and she had taken pains to place the clean clothing in the proper place.

So mamma went to the door and said very quietly, "What is the trouble, boys?" When mamma spoke to them in this quiet way the boys knew that she "meant something" as they expressed it. Miles said: "Well, mamma, Sam has on my stockings. He's always taking my things. He takes my handkerchiefs and my neckties and if it were not Sunday and he were not so big I'd lick him."

"Sam, that will do, do not let me hear such talk. Sunday or any other day. Miles, let me see your foot. Of course you have on Sam's stocking. You are sitting on yours. Give Miles what belongs to him and tomorrow you may come to me directly after school. I'll teach you how to mark your clothing so that we have no more such naughty proceedings as those of this morning.

So the boys and girls had a marking bee, and lots of fun there was. Miles marked his handkerchiefs and put them into a neat box. Mamma suggested that he mark his box. After the children were snug in their beds she looked through the shelves to see what order they were in. She found Miles had made sure that Sam would not get his handkerchief box. This is what she found written on every side, on the top, and on the bottom of the box:

MILES—his box
Milses box—this is Milses box not Sams

"Poor Miles," sighed mamma, "I shall have to give you a lesson in this, too." So she wrote neatly on a square of paper the name and gave it to her boy next day, telling him that that was the way to mark a box. Miles pasted it on the cover of his box and owned it was a great improvement.

That was long ago. The system of marking has been used in that home ever since and there are no more Sunday morning quarrels.

SAID BY EXCHANGES.

A FAIR WARNING.

From the Warroad Plaindealer.

T. B. Defrees, special agent of the general land office, spent part of last week here. Mr. Defrees was looking up the cases where parties are neglecting their claims. He says that sleeping on one's claims a night or two every six months does not constitute residence within the law, and that persons who are relying upon that expedient are likely to lose their claims. Mr. Defrees said he would be back, and the holders of claims will do well to get unto them.

COMING BY THE TRAIN LOAD.

From the Crookston Journal.

The indications are that the movement of immigrants is to exceed the expectations of most visionary land boomers. To-day a train load of farmers, with their goods, stock and household effects, reached the city from Southern Minnesota and Iowa points. It consisted of thirty six cars, the last one being a coach filled with the families of the men who are to make this country blossom as a rose.

The people are destined to points about Crookston and along the various lines of the road, and those who remained here immediately began the process of unloading and putting their wagons together. These were filled with the household effects, horses harnessed and attached and the stuff taken direct to the farms that they had secured in advance of their coming.

Upwards of twenty of the cars were sent out a ong the St. Vincent line as a special train. They were billed in part to each town between Crookston and the international boundary.

A SLICK COON.

From the Fosston Thirteen Towns

The coon show billed to appear here last Tuesday failed to show their "trilbys" but passed through, stopping off at Cass Lake. If their advance man, D. W. McCabe, had done likewise at the time he made his visit here last week Landlord Maltby would have been better satisfied than he is at present

McCabe issued a fraudulent draft for $25 which Mr. Maltby accepted upon presentation by the former of apparent good evidence of the reliability of the company upon which it was drawn. Later, the draft was protested. Deputy Sheriff Barness was ordered to track up the fellow and followed him into the Messaba iron mining towns, but failed to catch him and he finally escaped from the state McCabe has issued similar fraudulent drafts at Bagley, Bemidji and other points along the line, working his drafts with the skill of an expert. Barness returned home this afternoon. On the way he found that the company had disbanded at Cass Lake.

MISS OLOF KRARER

NATIVE OF GREENLAND WILL GIVE A LECTURE HERE ON MARCH 24.

UNDER AUSPICES OF TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION---BENEFIT SCHOOL LIBRARY.

One week from next Monday evening, March 24, a Red Lake Falls audience will have the privilege of listening to the most unique, descriptive lecture ever heard in the city—that of Miss Olof Krarer, a petite native of Greenland, who has been over United States and Canada under the auspices of the Slayton Lyceum Bureau, of Chicago, for several years, and has repeatedly entertained delighted audiences everywhere. She has appeared before eighty-nine Philadelphia audiences, and many times in others cities.

She is the only Esquimaux lady in the country and is but three feet and four inches in height.

The Detroit Free Press says: "The speaker's platform at the Y. M. C. A. presented a very arctic appearance, covered with polar bear skins, with a silver fox skin mounted over the speaker's stand, apropos of the lecture on the Esquimaux of Greenland, by Miss Olof Krarer, a native of that hypoborean region, the subject being 'Greenland Life in the Frozen North.' So well did the little lady interest her large audience that she at once became a favorite,"

That our people will enjoy a rare treat there can be no doubt, and they should turn out en masse to welcome the little lady.

August Craft, aged twenty-five years, single, and a resident of Gervais, was on Tuesday committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls, by Judge of Probate J. T. Knight. Information of insanity was entered by Eric, a brother of the unfortunate. It seems that his hallucination started with the study of a book on hypnotism which seemed to effect his mind from the first, and the subject had taken possession of him to the exclusion of all else. Sheriff Sampson conveyed him to the asylum Tuesday afternoon.

The appearance of the Slayton Jubilee Singers at the Opera house Saturday evening was well received by our citizens and highly spoken of by those in attendance. The company is one of the best in the musical line that has ever visited this city and if the bureau keeps its entertainments up to this standard it is certainly deserving of the most hearty encouragement from our citizens. The next entertainment of this series will be Olof Krarer, the Esquimaux lady, who lectures on the customs and people of her native land on Monday, March 24th. This lecture will interest all and will be especially interesting and instructive to the school children.

Mrs. Geo McConnel is expected back tomorrow from Wisconsin, where she went on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. L. H. Williams, of Oconomowoc. Mrs. Williams has entirely recovered.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

BY THE ATHENIAN SOCIETY.

The tri-yearly examinations were held during this week.

The High School boys have received some athletic goods and are practicing very hard for the athletic meet.

The H. S. A. A. will send delegates to Crookston March 15 to see about the field meet.

The next debate will be held on the 21st of March. The question is "Resolved That Woman Suffrage is Desirable."

What became of the basket-ball which the girls so carefully hid from the boys? Some black cupid must have been at work to divulge the secret to their curious companions.

It was noticed that some of the Spartan girls felt so joyous over their last victory in debating that the second story of the High School building was not sufficiently high, so they sought the roof.

AN EXPLANATION.

We thought it was a shame
To win ALL the glory and fame
So we have waited for the Spartans to to catch up.
Now they're coming right along
With essay, debate and song,
And now our record we will cut.

RED LAKERS CEDE

256,152 ACRES OF AGRICULTURAL LAND WILL NOW BE OPENED.

INDIANS WILL RECEIVE $3.90 PER ACRE OR A TOTAL $1,008,902.80.

Solway, Minn., March 14—Major McLaughlin arrived here from the Red Lake agency this afternoon having made the trip by team, starting yesterday. He is accompanied by Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls and the party reports that their negotiations with the Red Lake band of Chippewas were entirely successful and satisfactory to both parties to the treaty.

The Indians have signed the treaty to the lands on the western end of their reservation, and as soon as congress ratifies the matter they will be opened for settlement.

The treaty was concluded Wednesday, and was fully signed according to requirments. The stipulations are that the price shall be $3.90 per acre, and the payments are to be made in ten equal installments, the first as soon as the treaty has the sanction of congress and the others annually thereafter.

Major McLaughlin and party will reach Crookston this afternoon and will probably proceed at once to Washington.

The area of land affected by this treaty is 25,6152 acres, and is nearly all excellent agricultural land. The price, while reasonable and lower than it was believed the Indians would take, is yet large in the aggregate, amounting to $1,089,992.80 and as there are 1,332 Indians who will get in on the division, each will receive the sum of $746.24.

It is understood that Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls will accompany Major McLaughlin to Washington, and use every effort to push consideration of the treaty through the various committees and the Indian department so that congress may act on it at the earliest possible moment. By this means it will be possible to open the lands by the first of October.

The manner of disposing of these lands will afford food for speculation among those who desire to secure a portion of them. They will be handled under the homestead law, and whoever takes them must comply with all provisions of these laws, and probably in addition thereto will be required to pay the amount in cash that the Indians receive from the government.

One of the peculiar features of the treaty which Major McLaughlin has negotiated with the Red Lake Indians is an allowance of $5,000 for the Indians living on the ceded strip. This allowance is made for the purpose of paying for any improvements that have been made by the Indians and to provide for the removing of their dead to the reservation proper. The $5,000 so allowed is a part of the one million dollars which the government agrees to pay for the ceded land. It is in reality not contributed by the government at all, but by the Indians of the entire reservation. Each Indain agrees to pay $4 from his allotment to make up the sum.

The number of Indians living upon the ceded strip is 84, there being but 15 families in all, and this fund of $5,000 will be divided among them in proportion to the improvements made by each family and in proportion to the number of dead which each family has to remove to their new homes upon the diminished reservation.

The quickness with which the treaty was negotiated is remarkable. It was estimated that possibly a month would be consumed before the consent of the Indians could be gained, whila in fact the treaty was made and signed in just seven days. The first meeting with the Indians was held on Tuesday, March 4 and the treaty was signed Monday evening, March 10. At first the Indians were opposed to ceding the strip, but readily gave their assent when the entire matter was made clear to them by Major McLaughlin, who conducted the entire negotiations in a masterly manner.

When the treaty was finally agreed to every Indian in the room, 108 in all, signed it and but three of all who were asked upon the reservation refused to sign. Two of these were sick and dying and said that their assent made little difference anyhow. Signatures of a majority of the Indians are sufficient to ratify the treaty, but Major McLaughlin secured the names of 52 more than a majority.

The outlook for a speedy opening of the reservation is very bright and nothing will be left undone to further that end.

Upon arrival at Washington Maj. McLaughlin will lay the matter before the secretary of the Interior. The report will be examined and if not in conflict with any ruling or established usage, it will probably go to congress for approval. Tha Major's success in negotiating treaties in the past is such as warrants the belief that he has made no false move in this instance, and it is believed that there will be no serious delay in the opening of the lands.

After the ratification of the treaty six months must elapse before the lands can be opened. This is for the purpose of giving the Indians an opportunity of harvesting any crops they may have planted and to remove their dead from ceded lands. Owing to this fact the opening will be delayed until late this fall. Granting a month for the treaty to get through the interior department and to be ratified by congress, the lands cannot be opened for entry before October.

The first offer made by Major McLaughlin to the Indians was a lump sum of $3 75 per acre. After nearly a week's delay they accepted $3.90 in ten installments. According to the figures given on the annuity rolls which, instead of the census report, is the basis of treaty agreements, there are 1,332 Indians entitled to participate in the benefits accruing from the sale and the number of acres being 256,152, at $3 90 per acre, gives each Indian the sum of $746 24 as his proportion of the results of the sale.

The Next Debate.

After a full report of the Fergus Falls-St. Cloud debate. Wheelock's Weekly sums up the situation as follows:

The next debate will be between Fergus Falls and Glenwood on April 4 place not yet decided. The subject of next year's debates will be election of United States Senators by popular vote. The St. Paul high school dafeated the Minneapolis high school at St. Paul the same evening, LeSueur defeated Wells, the latter forfeiting because it could not have its choice of sides, and Glenwood defeated Owatonna All of the winners, by an odd coincidence, had the negative side. The Fergus team will next meet one or the other of these and it is not known which side they will defend. There are now left in the race St. Paul, Fergus Falls, Glenwood and LeSueur. One more debate in April will leave two winners, who will debate for the Journal cup at the university early in May.

How Helen Keller Writes.

Not one person in ten thousand of those who read Helen Keller's own story of her life, when it begins in an early issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, will have the least conception of hard work required to write the story. First Miss Keller puts down her ideas "in Braille," as the blind express it; that is to say, in the system of "points" raised on paper by means of a stylus and slate devised to aid the blind; these "points" being read afterwards by passing the sensative figures over them. When all this Braille work has been completed Miss Keller goes to her typewriter and uses these notes as a guide to the rewriting of the story.

As soon as a page of the matter is type-written it is, so to speak, lost to Miss Keller, who has to depend upon her faithful teacher, Miss Sullivan, to repeat it to her by spelling out each sentence by means of the hands. It is a tedious task, especially as some of the pages have to be read again and again, with changes here and there, before Miss Keller is satisfied. Then, when the proofs are sent to her, all this slow process of spelling word after word has to be gone through once more, so that each word that Helen Keller writes goes through her fingers at least five times. It will be a satisfaction to everybody to know that the publishers of The Journal have recognized in a substantial manner the extraordinary ability and patience which Miss Keller has shown in her work.

FORESTERS' DAY.

THE ANNUAL OBSERVANCE AS USUAL OCCURS ON PALM SUNDAY.

MEMBERS OF NORTH STAR COURT WILL RECEIVE IN A BODY.

Palm Sunday, which this year falls on the 23d inst., has for the past several years been Forester's Day in the Catholic churches of this city. One of the rules of the order is that members approach communion at least once a year in a body on a day appointed by the court.

The observance this year will be at St. Joseph's church, in the following order:

Low mass and distribution of holy communion, which commences at 8:15, Rev Fr. Fayolle officiating.

High mass at 10:30, blessing of the palms, French sermon.

At 7:30 p. m., Hymn to the Holy Ghost, duet by Misses Della Toupin and Florence Dautremont. English sermon by Rev. Fr. Ansgar. O Salutaris, plain chant, by full choir. Tantum Ergo, duet, by Della Toupin and Florence Dautremont. Laudate, plain chant, full choir.

The services on these occasions are very impressive, and there being in the neighborhood of one hundred members of the Foresters, the attendance will naturally be large.

MADE GOOD BY DRAINAGE.

Large Area of Land in Indiana Has Been Reclaimed.

La Porte, Ind., March 13.—Deeds have been recorded here showing a transfer of 2,000 acres of Kankakee marsh land in La Porte county by James Long, of La Porte, to R. E. Napp and C.M. Keller, of Pontiac, Ill.

The purchasers are members of the Illinois syndicate which, during the past two years, has invested nearly $1,000,000 in La Porte county land, and is negotiating for the purchase of saveral thousand additional acres. All of this land was practically worthless a decade ago, but by construction of drainage canals it has become exceedingly valuable.

HE FROZE TO DEATH

WANDERED OUT IN SUNDAY'S BLIZZARD AND PERISHED.

MIKE TRAINOR, AN EMPLOYE OF THE KENNEDY FARM, THE VICTIM.

Section men yesterday morning discovered the dead body of a man at Walker's siding, a spur running north from the Red Lake Falls branch of the Northern Pacific, about 25 miles northwest of here, says the Crookston Times. Later devolpments showed the body to be that of Mike Trainor, a hired hand on the farm of J. P. Kennedy, who had disappeared Sunday morning.

Trainor had started for the barn about 2 o'clock to feed some stock before eating his breakfast. He did not appear at breakfast and after he had been away from the house for about two hours, another hired man went to the barn to look for him. He could find no trace of Trainor, and as the stock had not been fed, it was thought that perhaps Trainor had fallen into one of the drifts alongside the path leading to the barn. This path was searched and all the outbuildings looked through, but still no trace of the missing man could be found. Before noon the men on the farm had started out through the neighborhood looking for Trainor, but nobody had seen or heard anything of him

Sunday night a party was organized and although the weather was very severe, they searched the surrounding country nearly all night long. Monday morning they happened onto the section gang that had discovered the body of a dead man. The section men had [illegible] recued the seaching party to the place.

Although the body was almost entirely covered with snow and ice, and was almost unrecognizable, it was identified as the body of Trainor. When found by the section men it was lying across the track and the head was buried in a deep snow bank.

Trainor was about 53 years of age and has no relatives in this section of the country, or in the world as far as known. For the past four years he has been in the employ of John P. Kennedy of Grand Forks, part of the time being about the latter's livery stable and part of the time at the farm out east. Even those who have worked with him do not profess to know anything of him, as he was very uncommunicative.

Fertile—A. M. Dunton, Joe Fosse and Thos. LaDue.

Ada—I. L. Ramstead and J. W. Newcombe.

Red Lake Falls—Leland Healy, Ed. E. Paul, Antoine Schusser and Sup't. Whiteley.

Crookston—Sup't. Selleck, Prof. Kelnholz, Arthur Fournet, Lee Boyd and Claude Carpenter.

INSURANCE GOES UP

INSURANCE RATES ADVANCED 25 PER CENT. ON CERTAIN LINES.

Red Lake Falls fire insurance agents this week received letters of instruction relative to the advance in rates which had been anticipated by despatches in the daily papers for some time and which are in effect simultaneously over the Northwest.

Following is a sample of the circular letters being sent out by the companies to agents:

The very heavy fire losses of the past few years have been a drain upon insurance capital which has driven many companies into retirement, and seriously impaired the strength of others remaining in the field. It must be apparent to you, and to the insuring public generally, that increased rates on unprofitable classes of risks are necessary if reliable indemnity, which is the basis of business credit, is to be provided, and we have to instruct you to, on receipt of this, advance rates 25 per cent for our policies on properties of the following description:

Frame store buildings.

All manufacturing risks and other special hazards, to include cold storage risks, mill lumber yards, and grain elevators which have not been rated under approved schedules within the past year.

Risks equipped with standard sprinkler system are not included in this instruction.

This sweeping measure is demanded by existing conditions, and it applies to renewals, as well as to new lines. Where the increased rates cannot be obtained, our policies must not be issued.

We invite the usual earnest and cheerful co-operation of our agents in this movement of necessity, which is required in the interest of our agents, the public and the companies.

Advertised Letters.

Tha following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice at Red Lake Falls for tha week ending March 15, 1902:

Stewart & Hiner, Johnny Savard, Wm. Cyrille Beaudin, M. Champan, Ovila Gauthier, Monsier LeCuri, Leon Lawrence, Emma Magineer, Charlie McGuire, Mr. August Peterson, A. D. Papin (2), S. A. Remillard.

If not called for in two weeks these letters will be sent to dead letter office as prescribed by law. In calling for the above please say "advertised."

WILL BUILD AT ONCE

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY WILL BE READY FOR THE FALL TERM.

COMMITTEE MET SUNDAY AND DECIDED TO PUSH MATTERS.

Very Rev. E. Fayolle informs The Gazette that every obstacle has been overcome, and work on St. Joseph's Academy building will be started as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Last week Father Fayolle made a trip to Duluth and discovered that there was some uncertainty as to the qualifications of tha teachers to be furnished. He wisely decided that, rather than accept any but first-class instructors he would defer the carrying out of his plans a year if necessary in order to secure high-class teachers. However, after his return, he received assurances from the superioress of the Benedictine convent in Duluth that he would be supplied with teachers of the proper qualifications.

A meeting was held after mass last Sunday to discuss the advisability of pushing work, and a favorable decision was arrived at. The committee consists of Messrs. Euz. Normandeau. L. P Berthon, Francois LaBissoniere. Norbert Baril, Xavier Chattel, Pierre Emard and Frank Grenier.

Aug. Morin has been chosen as superintendent of construction. The building will be of brick, 40x60, two stories, with basement, heated by steam. The teaching force will consist of four teachers. The tuition will be $1.25 per month per single pupil, with a reduction where several members of the same family attend.

Tha school will be ready for the fall term.

TOTTEN RESERVATION.

Committee on Indian Affairs Reports Bill Favorably.

The house committee on Indian affairs has reported favorably the bill of Congressman Marshall of North Dakota, the bill ratifying the treaty with the Indians on Fort Totten reservation, which cedes to the government a large tract of land in the western part of the reservation which have not been taken by allotment. As originally introduced the bill provided that these lands should be opened to settlement under the free homestead act. This provision eliminated by the house committee. and settlers will be obliged to pay $3 50 per acre for the land if the provision of the committee is not changed. This will be a disappointment to the men who hoped to secure a claim on the reservation. A similar bill introduced by Congressman Burke of South Dakota for a tract in that state, has been similarly disposed of by the committee, except that the settlers will be required to pay $1.25 per acre.

M. & I. Changes.

It is rumored that when the Minnesota & International company extend their road from Blackduck, they will go to the northwest instead of the northeast as originally intended.

Some weeks ago the people of the Blackduck-Big Fork country were greatly disappointed by the announcement that the M. & I. would not be extended beyond Blackduck at present.

Just when construction will be resumed is uncertain, but when it is begun again tha road may not be built to the Big Fork country at all, but to the northwest toward Red Lake. It would thus tap a magnificent area of pine. It is said that the largest and finest tract of white pine in Minnesota today is in the country to tha northwest of Blackduck. This pina is owned principally by the Wayarheuser people and the Shevlin & Carpenter interests, and that tha M. & I. will be extended to thair pina preserves as a logging road.

Sure to be Opened.

The Devil's Lake Indian Reservation is the finest tract of government land left for settlement. Map of the reservation and sketch of the homestead laws $1 each. For information write today to the Great Northern Locating Co., Devils Lake, N.D.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have also kept my wife in good health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. BIG DEAL IN LAND

SYNDICATE BUYS TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND ACRES.

State Officials to Fight Merger of Iron Ore Roads—Striking Match Factory Employes at Duluth Cause Trouble. Railroad Ordered to Restore Rates to Certain Points—News of the State in General.

St. Paul, March 17.—During the past few days an exceedingly large deal in Minnesota lands has been culminated here. The purchasers are J. A. Felthouse, C. H. McNider, J. A. Kamuodson and George W. Brett of Mason City, Ia., C. A. Cosgrove, Minneapolis, and G. B. Barnes, Jr., of St. Paul.

The deal involves 250,000 acres of land in Aitkin, Cass, Carleton, Crow Wing, Itasca and Hubbard counties, and the purchase price was $750,000, the Minnesota Land and Colonization company being the sellers.

It is one of the largest deals in this class of land that has been made for some time, and is regarded by land men as an indication of the great business that is to be done this season in Northern Minnesota lands. The property is all fair farming country and will be sold in lots of suitable sizes for farms by the purchasers.

FIGHT AGAINST MERGER.

Minnesota Officials After the Iron Ore Roads.

St. Paul, March 14.—Unless the United States Steel corporation stipulates that the two iron ore roads in Northern Minnesota shall be operated independently Attorney General Douglas will bring an action in the state courts against the plan of action pursued by the billion-dollar corporation.

Governor Van Sant has had the matter in mind for some time and he asked the attorney general to inquire into the question. The senate passed a resolution recently authorizing the attorney general to bring suit.

There will be no question of jurisdiction in this case. Both roads have their headquarters in Minnesota and their officers are here also.

The roads are now under common control. The United States supreme court ruling, which thwarted certain plans of the state hearing upon the Northern Pacific merger, will not have any bearing upon this case.

BEATEN BY STRIKERS.

Duluth Boys Attack Man Who Went to Work in Factory.

Duluth, March 17.—A strike resulting in a riot and the serious beating of one man occurred at the Duluth match factory. Two boys who had been earning $1.25 a day quit because they wanted more money. They then induced 11 others to walk out for a raise. They had been getting $1 to $1.25 a day. The match factory people did not yield, but started to fill the strikers' places. The first man they put to work was Carmini Izzo. The two boys who quit first entered the factory and made an attack on Izzo, beating him severely about the head with a club. He was taken away for treatment, and the boys, Phillip Bourassi and Bernard Benson, were arrested on charges of trespass and assault.

MUST RESTORE TARIFFS.

Order Issued to Great Northern and Northern Pacific Roads.

St. Paul, March 14.—The railroad commission has issued the order to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads in regard to the terminal tariffs at St. Cloud, Brainerd, Crookston, Fergus Falls and other northern cities. The order is practically a compelling order requesting that the roads restore the former distributing tariffs. The schedule submitted was not found to be satisfactory to the commission and the original intention of ordering a restoration has been adhered to.

RED LAKE TREATY SIGNED.

Indians Will Get One Million Dollars for Eleven Townships.

Solway, Minn., March 15.—Major McLaughlin and party have just arrived from the Red Lake agency.

The Indians have signed the treaty for a consideration of $1,000,000 for 11 towns west of the agency, $250,000 to be paid 90 days after the ratification of the treaty and $50,000 annually until the remainder is paid. The Indians appear to be well satisfied.

BIG PURCHASE OF LAND.

St. Paul Syndicate Buys Thousands of Acres.

Winnipeg, March 17.—O. A. Robertson of St. Paul, who represents a syndicate of Minneapolis and St. Paul capitalists, with a capital stock of $2,000,000, has purchased from the Canadian Pacific railroad, 400,000 acres of land contiguous to the Soo road, which they propose to colonize with American farmers. The price paid is about one and one-half million dollars.

Mankato, Minn., March 17.—At the recent election in North Mankato, Frank Willies and Louis Edar were candidates for aldermen on opposite tickets, and both received the same number of votes. To decide the tie they engaged in a game of euchre. Willies won and is alderman.

Minnesota Road to Be Extended.

Duluth, March 13.—It is understood that the Duluth and Northern Minnesota road, which is about to increase its capital from $200,000 to $1,000,000, plans to shortly extend its line to a connection with the Duluth, Port Arthur and Western, and thus become a connection for international traffic. The road will also be built from Knife river into Duluth.

HONOR FOR ST. PAUL.

New York, March 12.—At the unrolling of the war tablet on the St. Paul by the representatives of the Commercial club of St. Paul, Captain Sigsbee painted an eloquent picture of the cruiser's part in the Spanish war, in the presence of rosy matrons and pretty girls and citizens of the sponsor city, Thomas Cochran, chairman of the reception committee, introduced Miss Anita Furness, daughter of a child of Alexander Ramsey, the first governor of Minnesota.

"I unveil this tablet commemorating the services of the St. Paul and her gallant officers," spoke Miss Furness. The tablet was designed by Edith H. Ogden of St. Paul, was cast by the St. Paul Mechanic Arts school of metal of Spanish guns and the Merrimac, the Terror and the Marie Teresa.

BEATS HIM WHILE ASLEEP.

Duluth Man Suffers From His Frenzied Wife's Attack.

Duluth, Minn., March 17.—James Harris of West Duluth was awakened at an early hour by a blow on the head and jumped up to discover his wife attacking him with a monkey-wrench. Mrs. Harris had been suffering from a tumor on the brain. Shortly after her attack on her husband she attempted suicide with a razor but inflicted only a slight gash.

PRESIDENT REFUSES PARDON.

Man Convicted of Sending Obscene Matter Will Serve Term.

Washington, March 17.—The president has refused a pardon for Richard Tubbs of Alcester, S. D., who was sentenced to prison for two years for sending obscene matter through the mails.

The appeal for pardon came through the regular channels to the president. The president said: "In my judgment those sending this petition, at least the judge and district attorney, should be notified that I sincerely regret that it is not in my power to materially increase the sentence of this scoundrel."

This characteristic endorsement was signed by the president and the papers sent on their way.

WELCOMED BY LUMBERMEN.

Northern Michigan Experiences a Sudden Drop of the Mercury.

Marquette, Mich., March 17.—The upper peninsula is in the throes of a cold wave. Balmy, spring-like weather has suddenly given way to chilling blasts and at many points the mercury is hovering around the zero mark. At Marquette the temperature registers 15 above. This is a drop of 50 degrees in 24 hours. Snow has been falling at intervals since morning. The change is welcomed by lumbermen and should freezing weather continue for several days, as predicted, it will serve to materially cut losses of those loggers who have been hard hit by unprecedented early break up.

MANY BUILDINGS BURN.

Part of the Business Section of Winslow, Ills., Wiped Out.

Monroe, Wis., March 17.—Fire at Winslow, 16 miles south of here, destroyed property to the value of $125,000. All the buildings on the east side of Main street with one exception were destroyed. The burned property included two hotels, two large general stores, Fuller's bank, the new city hall and several dwellings. Only six business houses of the town remain. About $75,000 insurance was carried. The cause of the fire is supposed to be spontaneous combustion.

Seventeen families were made homeless. Winslow is just over the state line in Illinois.

MILLION DOLLAR PURCHASE.

Chicago Capitalists Buy the Horseshoe Mining Property.

Deadwood, S. D., March 17.—Chicago people have purchased the property of the Horseshoe Mining company, embracing over 3,000 acres of choice mining ground and a large ore reduction works at Plumn, the consideration being close to a million dollars. There are thousands of tons of ore blocked out in the mine that can be treated by the new cyanide process and by the smelter. The new company is installing cyanide tanks in the old chlorinating works as rapidly as possible, and the smelting ore will be sent to Rapid City or to Omaha for treatment.

WANTS $10,000 DAMAGES.

Hayward (Wis.) Editor Sues Sheriff William Giblin.

Hayward, Wis., March 17.—Sheriff William Giblin has been sued for $10,000 damages for assaulting Editor W. E. Schel, of the Hayward Enterprise, upon Main street, last February. Giblin is almost twice the size of Schel, but was put to rout by the latter's revolver. Schel was arrested for carrying concealed weapons and fined, but appealed his case to the circuit court.

It is further hinted that proceedings will be taken to oust Giblin for malfeasance and misconduct in office, with which Schel has been charging him.

STRIKERS ARE UGLY.

Fill Up on Whisky and Threaten Mine Officials.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 17.—The striking trimmers at the Champion mine are inclined to create trouble. Many of them are beginning to drink heavily and indirectly threaten officials of the company. The township authorities have closed the saloons and the drinks of the strikers are shut off. The saloon men are under instructions to not sell liquor to any one until the strike is ended.

SAVED BY A CAT'S MEW.

Family Awakened Barely in Time to Escape Death.

La Crosse, Wis., March 15.—The mewing of the family cat saved the entire family of Henry Barthelid of this city from death by asphyxiation. Barthelid was awakened late at night by the noise made by the cat and was then almost unconscious from the effects of escaping coal gas. The entire family is in a serious condition.

An Insulted Golfer.

An inquisitive commuter on one of the trains that pulled into the Grand Central station had his dignity ruffled the other day by a facetious engineer. The commuter wore a golf suit of the latest pattern. His suit wasn't ruffled, but his temper was, when the engineer took him for a bicycle rider. Mr. Inquisitive, seeing that the big locomotive in the yard was in some sort of trouble, yelled at the engineer a query as to what was the matter. His curiosity was satisfied and his suit of clothes insulted when the grimy engineer shouted back at him: "Nothing much; just punctured my tire. Got a pocket pump with you?"

CHANGE IN CALENDAR

A New Time System May Be Introduced This Century.

Rapid Railroads and Telegraphs Demand Uniform Hours All Over—Plan of International Meridian Conference.

The new century will bring about many changes, but perhaps none of such everyday importance as the proposed new method of time-keeping. One of the most practical results will be that noon at Greenwich will be 12 o'clock all over the world. At present each day is spread over 48 (and in some instances 55) hours in different places. With the new system it will have its beginning and end within 24 hours all over the globe. The hours on our watches and clocks, too, will run from 1 to 24, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The waggish reply, "A quarter past 13," made by the policeman in the "Bab Ballads," will become the correct way of indicating "A quarter past one." But, after all, this will only be an enlargement of what was actually begun as far back as 1886, when the time for all through trains on the Canadian Pacific railroad was first reckoned in hours running from 1 to 2.

The fixing of a universal prime meridian will do away with the ambiguity which, as railways and telegraphs become multiplied, lead to such confusing complications in social and commercial affairs, to errors in chronology, to litigation in connection with succession to property, insurance matters, contracts, etc. The present variations of time are readily demonstrated by selecting points in four regions about 90 degrees apart—for instance, Japan, Arabia, Newfoundland and Alaska. On Sunday at midnight in Japan it is noon in Newfoundland.

Variation of time forms the pivotal point of the play "Around the World in Eighty Days," in which the traveler who wagered at his London club that he could go around the world and be back at the club in 80 days so nearly lost his bet. He had forgotten this difference of a day and thought that he had completed his journey 24 hours too late.

Does anyone ask: "What is going to straighten this out and bring about order out of existing chaos?" The answer is by simply putting into operation the results of the deliberations of the international meridian conference, which met Washington at the invitation of President Arthur in October. 1884, expressly to establish a prime meridian and a universal day.

The following resolution was adopted by congress:

"This universal day is to be a mean solar day; is to begin for all the world at the moment of mean midnight of the initial meridian, coinciding with the beginning of the civil day and date of that meridian, and is to be counted from zero up to 24 hours.

"The conference expresses the hope that as soon as practicable the astronomical and nautical days will be arranged everywhere to begin at mean midnight.

"The conference expresses the hope that the technical studies designed to regulate and extend the application of the decimal system to the division of angular space and of time shall be resumed, so as to admit the extension of this application to all cases in which it presents real advantages."

Coming down to our own day, what else is the sand glass, which a few years ago was in common use in kitchens to show the cook when the eggs were boiled? And is not the modern clock based on the same principles? In the clepsydra the water is the motor; the perforation, the escapement; while the sinking of the shell or bowl is the index of the completion of a definite period.

A curious use of the clepsydra in Greece was for limiting the length of speeches in the courts. In important cases an additional amount of time was allowed and each side was permitted 50 gallons of water, necessitating the use of unusually large amphorae. When a speaker was interrupted to save the time being charged against him he would order the official to "stop the water." This practice might be revived with profit.

The system of time-keeping in Rome divided the day and night into four watches, which were determined roughly by observing the courses of the sun and stars. Noon was announced publicly by an official, who from the senate watched for the appearance of the sun at a certain point.

Among the Montagnais Indians a crude form of sun dial is used in hunting to let the squaws, who follow their lords and masters, know whether they may take it easy or hurry up, for they might fare badly if they lagged behind when their husbands were ready for supper. And so the men when hunting erect in the snow a stick at some well-known place and draw the exact line of the stick's shadow in the snow before going on.

WHISKY-LOVING FEET.

Strange Case of a Brooklyn Man Who Is a Drunkard from His Ankles Down.

There is a man over in Brooklyn who is a drunkard only from his ankles down, says the New York Times. That is to say, while he never puts a drop of intoxicating liquor into his stomach, his feet are confirmed topers. They must have their whisky at regular intervals each day or their owner suffers.

The man who possesses these whisky-loving feet is employed in one of the city departments in the municipal building, in Borough Hall square. At least half a dozen times each day he appears in a popular cafe on Fulton street, near Red Hook lane, and orders whisky. He fills a glass almost to the brim with the liquor, but has never been seen to drink any of it. Instead, he stoops down, unlaces one of his shoes, and pours half of the whisky into it. Then he pours the other half of the liquor into the second shoe.

This strange performance long puzzled the bartenders in the place until one day one of them made bold to ask the man why he disposed of the whisky in so queer a way. The man explained that for years he had had a peculiar trouble with his feet. One day he accidentally found that whisky, when applied to the aching feet, drove away the pain. When at home it was an easy matter for him to remove his shoes and bathe the feet in the liquor, but when about in the city this could not be done conveniently. He finally hit upon the expedient of pouring whisky into his shoes, thus soaking the feet and relieving the pain. These whisky baths for his feet formed quite an item of expense each day, but the relief obtained was well worth it.

THE DEUTSCHLAND'S LARDER.

An Average List of the Provision Carried for a Regular Trip Across the Ocean.

For the lover of statistics for their own sake, and incidentally for the man who likes to eat well, the list of the contents of an ocean liner's larder is attractive reading, says the New York Sun. Here, for instance, is about an average supply aboard the Deutschland at the beginning of every voyage between this port and Hamburg, and, of course, all the other ships are provisioned in about the same way.

In the first place there is 40 tons of ice to keep things eatable and drinkable, and these are the things that were on the ice on a recent trip across: Fourteen beeves, 10 calves, 29 sheep, 26 lambs, 9 hogs, 1,500 chickens, geese and game birds, 1,700 pounds of fish, 400 pounds of tongues and sweetbreads, 1,700 dozens of eggs, 14 barrels of oysters and clams, 175 barrels of potatoes, 75 barrels of other vegetables, 20 crates of tomatoes, and celery, 200 dozen heads of lettuce, 90 barrels of flour, 600 pounds of oatmeal and hominy, 1,300 pounds of butter, 2,200 quarts of milk, 300 quarts of cream, 1,000 big moulds of ice cream, four tons of fruit, 12,000 quarts of wine and liquor, 15,000 quarts of beer and 400 tons of drinking water.

Of course all this is not used on each trip but enough is carried to provide a liberal margin.

ORIENTAL GEOGRAPHY.

Sultan of Morocco Wanted a Map Showing His Dominion as Filling a Hemisphere.

Talking one day with a Frenchman who dwelt on the frontier between Morocco and Algeria, the sultan of Morocco wished to be exactly informed as to the position of the frontier line, says Golden Days.

To explain it the Frenchman laid before him a map, with the names of the places and water-courses marked in Arabic.

The sultan was amazed at the size of this map, such as he had never seen before. However, not wishing to seem humiliated, he said to the Frenchman:

"Oh, I have a map, too! I believe it is better than yours, for that matter."

And he signed to his chamberlain, who left the room, and returned with a long, narrow box. Out of this he took a stick covered with linen, stretched over ribs, which, when opened out, formed a terrestrial globe, the stick being the axis. On this globe Morocco was about as large as his little finger-nail.

"I was obliged to make the best of it," said the sultan, pointing sadly to the tiny space his dominions occupied on the face of the earth. "I asked a learned man to make me a globe like this with one side of it filled by Morocco and the rest of the world on the other. But he could not do it."

Doesn't Like the Auto.

A newspaper published in Nice, France, loudly declares against the arrogant and ill-smelling automobile. It says: "These vehicles are bringing about the complete ruin of the coast as well as of all the watering places, by taking possession of the principal roads and driveways and speeding over them. Persons who walk on the roads or who ride in other carriages are virtually taking their lives in their hands. The so-called automobile week which we have just had at Nice has been a veritable scandal. During whole days the public was debarred from the Promenade des Anglais. More than 100,000 persons were affronted in order that a few millionaires might be satisfied."

Cigars He Couldn't Use.

The regard in which the Cubans of New York city held the late President McKinley was shown on the day before his relapse, when he asked that he be permitted to smoke a cigar. Senor F. B. Fonseca, who represented the Cubans afterward in sending the floral tribute to the capital, at once instructed the expert of his factory to select the choicest leaves of Havana tobacco and have made 100 cigars to be sent to the president. This was done at once, and they were ready to be forwarded on the following day, each wrapped in silken tissue paper, with the president's name thereon. His death prevented the sending of the gift, and Senor Fonseca has distributed them among a few of the president's close friends as mementos.

The Longest Stone Arch.

The longest stone arch in the world is under construction at Luxembourg over the valley of Petrusse. This arch will have a span of 277 feet and a rise of 102 feet. The total width of the available roadway is 52 feet, and this width is divided into two parts by a space 19 feet wide covered by slabs of armored concrete and carrying the footways. In comparison the longest existing stone arch is that of Cabin John creek. This has a span 220 feet and a rise of 57½ feet and is 101 feet above the water level in the creek.—Minneapolis Journal.

A Great Pear Tree.

No fewer than 1,100 pears have been gathered from a Jargonelle pear tree in the garden of Borthwick manse, Gorebridge, England. The tree was planted forty-eight years ago and has been pruned and tended for forty-one years by the Rev. Walter Waddell, who has been the incumbent of the parish during that period. It is trained against a west wall. The present crop is the largest it has ever borne. The average weight of the pears is three to the pound.

The Largest Horse.

A coal black gelding, a Shire horse, now at the Union stockyards, Chicago, stands 21¼ hands high and weighs over 3,000 pounds. He is thought to be the largest horse in the world. Twenty-one and one-fourth hands equals 7 feet 1 inch.

"I have been using CASCARETS for Insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for over twenty years, and I can say that Cascarets have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever tried. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as being all they are represented." THOS. GILLARD, Elgin, Ill.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
—BY—
PHIL A. KAUFER.

Published weekly, Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the post-office at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

ARE THE BOERS INVINCIBLE?

With 250,000 British troops in South Africa, as against an estimated total of 18,000 Boers in the field, the British seem to be making little if any progress in their war of conquest. In fact, reports from the field of action for the past few weeks have been monotonously favorable to the Boers. It is a monotone, however, that is sweet music to those who love the chivalrous and the heroic.

If the Boers believe that nothing but a miracle can save them from ultimate defeat, what subline faith do they display—for a miracle is not an everyday occurrence.

The latest Boer achievement in the defeat of Gen. Methuen and his capture has given the world to understand that the Boers are still an enemy to be figured with in a serious manner—and the outcome of the struggle is by no means a foregone conclusion. The continued Boer resistance, their unbroken enthusiasm, their apparently inexhaustible supply of munitions o war, are indeed puzzles which are beyond the information of the hour.

The moral effect of Gen. Delarey's victory and his crushing defeat of the British Gen. Methuen, ending with that general's capture, will have a stimulating effect upon the Boer soldiers in the field, and upon their sympathizers from whom a steady stream of reinforcements and munitions of war seems to be coming. The ability of the Boers to wear out their antagonists may yet result in the triumph of a cause so heroically defended.

THE PRESIDENT'S PERSONALITY.

W. W. Jermane, the Minneapolis Journal's brilliant Washington correspondent, says certain political interests in the east are trying to emphasize the availability of Sanator Hanna as a presidential candidate in 1904, and have brought several well known newspapers to their assistance.

The president is rather unfortunate in his personality, which too frequently gives offense when no offense is intended. He is entirely too strenuous for the average politician, who is accustomed to going about on gom shoes and talking in a corner under his breath. Roosevelt puts on brogans with nails in the soles and delivers himself at the top of his voice from the roof of the White House. His saving grace is the belief that even his enemies believe in his entire sincerity and honesty.

Then, too, he is doing things. Look at his railroad policy. He is proceeding to enforce the interstate commerce law, and already has brought the great trunk line associations of the country to their knees. They are disbanding as rapidly as possible. The question of rebates, discriminations, excessive rates of freight and pooling,—things which have operated so fatally against individuals and communities for years, is to be passed in review before the courts. It is a bold policy, and a man less courageous would not thus invite the unrelenting opposition of forces which, by reason of financial strength, have been powerful factors in political campaigns for many years.

Indirectly, the Roosevelt campaign against the railroaos is a campaign against the trusts. Mr. Roosevelt is meeting practically every demand of the anti-trust and anti monopoly people, who are largely democrats and ought, therefore, to draw heavily from the democrats in 1903, should that party nominate some man who is allied with the trusts and the railroads. His trouble will be in getting the nomination. Probably no force on earth could defeat him at the polls.

Appearances indicate that Hon. Nat Campbell, ot Crookston, will be chosen with practically no opposition, as the democratic candidate for congress in this district. The only other name prominently mentioned in connection with this nomination is that of Hon. M. J. Daly of Perham, who made the race in 1900. Senator Daly has not as yet spoken, but it is not thought that he is anxious to again make the race, although the present conditions are somewhat changed over those of two years ago. Eddy, the republican who seemed to be absolutely invincible, is out of the district by the reapportionment and with him some of the strongly republican counties, while Ottertail, Polk and Red Lake, the populist strongholds, are together in the new ninth. It is said that Mayor Campbell feels confident of wining out over any man the republicans may put up if he secures the nomination. He is a strong vote getter in municipal campaigns. It remains to be seen whether his characteristics and his tactics, which take pretty well with "the boys" will prove as persuasive in a weightier campaign.

Northwestern newspaper men generally are glad to learn of the appointment of Geo. B. Winship, of the Grand Forks Herald, to the position of register of the Grand Forks land office. Mr. Winship through his ably edited paper, the Herald, has certainly been a power for many years, and a pillar of strength to the republican party, even though his code of political morals did not always jibe with the machine.

The Minneapolis Journals "Non pareil Man" says: Appleton has a "restroom" where ladies from the country have a warm, homelike place to rest and be comfortable when they come in from the farm after a long ride in the cold. The rest idea is a good one, and is said to be a trade catcher. Such rooms have been started in various parts of the state, and are proving their advantages.

The Wall Street Journal takes cognizance of the development in wireless telegraphy and advises an inquirer that the profit of an investment in telegraph company stocks depends entirely upon the future of wireless telegraphy. The bare possibility, to say nothing of the strong probability, of the perfection of the new system, is already shaking the confidence in these securities to the very foundation.

The manner of disposition of the newly ceded Red Lake lands is as yet unknown. Maj. McLaughlin says the lands may be offered by the government for the exact price paid by the government, which would be nearly $4 per acre. Congress may see fit to have the land sold at auction, in which case the land would go for an even higher sum.

The minority report of the senate committee on commerce, in opposition to the ship subsidy bill will meet with public approval. A bill which proposes to tax the whole people to the extent of several millions for the benefit of one single industry is class legislation in its naked form without the saving qualities of a fig leaf to hide its viciousness.

Representative Heatwole has prepared a bill to place wood pulp on the free list. He points out that if there are to be tariff modifications on sugar the cut must be made in other directions. It is apparent that the Babcock idea is giving ground.

"The Lord will provide" says the man who lives in the best of promises. But you must provide the advertising. The Lord helps those who help themselves. There are plenty of good ads to be had. Help yourself..

What school has young Miss Roosevelt graduated from? It strikes us she ought to go through a course first and take the educative tours later. But we suppose this fancy will not seriously interfere with her plans.

MORE ABOUT READING.

When we need a physician we feel more faith in one whom we know has a good medical library—and uses it.

When in need of legal advice the same standard holds good.

And so is it the more strange that a majority of housekeepers scorn the thought of referring to books or current literature for information. They will say they have no time to read when if the truth were told those same women spend hours gossiping with their neighbors. Again others say they do not remember what they read, so what is the use trying to learn. Now that is a great mistake. We all forget, 'tis true. But stop and think—for instance how do you happen to put sand in those vases? "Why, I read that they do not tip so easily when ballasted with sand." Wy do you put cone covers on your lamp chimneys during the day. "Why, I read somewhere that it was a good idea to cover them thus." When? Where? "I cannot tell you that." And so many of our daily habits are unconsciously acquired.

We read an instructive article on domestic economy and mentally resolve to try matters suggested therein. Apparently we forget all about the subject. However, the next time we clean our lamps, for instance, it flashes through our minds that paper cones have been recommended to keep our lamp chimneys clear of dust, steam, etc.

I believe in reading every word pertaining to housekeeying that comes within our reach. Some, at least, of the information thus obtained, will remain a part of us, even though much be forgotten.

Just ask yourselves, readers, why you practice this or that labor-saving habit, and you will answer that you "read it somewhere."

Then, mothers, wives and maids, read when you are weary—it will make you forget your weariness. Read when you are lonesome—for GOOD authors are the best of entertainers and you will never get into trouble in their company.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Feb. 23, 1902.

My dear children,—

If you could look out of my library window you would see three rosy-cheeked girls and a dear pale-faced boy. The boy is on a sled; one girl is holding him and the other two are pulling the sled—all laughing and as happy as can be. The children for blocks around have lined the walk and the girls are walking through a triumphal arch made by two stalwart lads with uplifted arms and clasped hands. Why all this to-do?

Can you guess who is on the sled? It is our friend, little six-year-old Eddie out again. He has his crutches with him, for I am sorry to say that his one poor little leg had to be amputated after weeks of suffering. Just as he was getting better and ready to leave the hospital God called his little three-year-old brother home. So helpless, but brave and loving, Eddie seems to realize now that he is all in all to his parents, and strives to be a comfort.

Do not feel sad when you read this, dear children, for little Eddie is very happy to be home again and does not realize his own misfortune. He is very proud of his crutches, too, and everyone is so kind to him that we are led to feel how God takes care of His children all in His own way.

Words of Wisdom ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ Advice to a Son.

By REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

You must not get into debt. Avoid debt as you would the devil. Make it a fundamental rule: Cash or nothing.

Make but few promises: Religiously observe the smallest promise. A man who means to keep his promises can't afford to make many.

Be scrupulously careful in all statements. Aim at accuracy and perfect frankness, no guess work—either nothing or exact truth.

When working for others sink yourself out of sight; seek their interest. Make yourself necesary to those who employ you by industry, fidelity and scrupulous integrity. Selfishness is fatal.

Hold yourself responsible for a higher standard than anybody else expects of you. Demand more of yourself than anybody expects of you. Keep your own standard high. Never excuse yourself to yourself. Never pity yourself. Be a hard master to yourself, but lenient to everybody else.

Concentrate your force on your own business; do not turn off. Be constant, steadfast, persevering.

The art of making one's fortune is to spend nothing; in this country any intelligent and industrious young man may become rich if he stops all leaks and is not in a hurry. Do not make haste; be patient.

Do not speculate or gamble. Steady, patient industry, is both the surest and the safest way. Greediness and haste are two devils that destroy thousands every year.

The Irish Armed a Greater Threat Than The Boers.

By LORD SALISBURY, Premier of Great Britain.

The existence of hostile feeling in Ireland is a signal that the efforts upon which depend in no light degree the glory and continuance of the empire must not be relaxed.

The maintenance of our position in Ireland is the most vital object the empire has, and it can only be attained by strenuous exertions.

The feelings of hostility which have of late been expressed are more uncompromising than any expressions which ever issued from the lips of Parnell or O'Connell.

An Irish government with power to accumulate arms and ammunition would constitute a more serious threat than have the Boers.

The tax upon railroad gross earnings in Minnesota for 1900 was $1,450,000 or more than one half the expenses of the government.

Beets are raised in Minnesota which yield as high as nineteen tons to the acre, containing 10 to 18 per cent of sugar.

They then proceeded on their way to a store to blow themselves for cigars and when they came to pay they only had one nickel for two cigars. They have not been seen since.

GRIT.

Mrs. Thor Gunsteinson and children have been on the sick list a few days.

Henry Comrtion and Ed Erickson braved the muddy roads to McIntosh this week.

Miss Anna Idie, who has been visiting with Mrs. Ole Lee, left for her home near Bemidji Monday.

Tore Skreland, Chas. and Sven B. Swanson returned from the woods last week after a three month's stay.

Ole Halvorson got the small pox last week and is now staying all alone in L Segarson's house. He will stay there until he is well.

So the Olga correspondent to the Thirteen Towns thought "he was last" and the white robe he had on would not last more than three weeks longer. He evidently must must have forgotten there was some one looking after the patchwork. He is back and if our guess don't go amiss we would not be surprised to see him fitted out with a brand new robe yet. Who? The winter of course.

The election is now over and most of the newly elected officers have now taken up their duties, and we hope that they do as much better than the preceding ones as they are expected to do by the ones who placed them there. There was an all around change in Garnes. The old board got the "boot properly." The same prevailed in Equality. Perhaps we deserved it. The following officers were elected in Garnes: Board, E.K. Gjernes, Hans Haaven, Evind Gunsteinson; Clerk, Olof Tande; Assessor, O. H. Olson; Treasurer, Osav Skreiand; Justice, O. N. Skomedahl: Constable, Elling Halvorson. A few more scrapers have been ordered and it is our hope that something will be done with our roads this summer.

While glancing over the Garnes items last week we chanced to see where they make mention of the two quarantined boys. We fail to know the facts therein stated. It is true that the family was quarantined but it is not altogether true that they were starved as the assertion was made by the correspondent. Owing to the fact the doctor failed to notify us, a short delay was experienced before they were looked after, but as soon as the facts were known we personally investigated and found out their wants at that time and waited upon them. In the line of groceries, flour etc. they had plenty. We tried to do our duty as near as we knew how, and leave the rest with parties that know the real facts. And thus we hope to not have the whole blame laid on our shoulders.

It is with a feeling of sadness we pen the sudden death of little Knute Kviste that occurred last Tuesday at 1 o'clock a m., after an illness of a little over twenty-four hours with stomach trouble. His sudden departure was a blow to the fond parents that time alone can assuage, for he was their only joy and pride, and we will not attempt to offer words of consolation ourselves, but offer these few lines from H. W. Longfellow, who perhaps penned them from the fullness of a heart burdened with a kindred sorrow:

> "Thus do we walk with him and keep unbroken
> The bond which nature gives,
> Thinking that our remembrance, though unspoken,
> May reach him where he lives."

Little Knut was happy as a bird all day long, and always chirped and laughed whenever he was spoken to, and even smiled and laughed an hour before he passed away, and not even cried till his last moment, but died without a murmur; what a peaceful death! How much happier he will be out of this vale of tears! Let us hope that he is now chirping his little songs of praise with the blessed ones there, as he used to do in his dear mother's arms, while he was here on earth Knut died on his birthday; he was one year old. The bereaved parent have indeed the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community, who all will mourn his loss. He was laid to rest in a nicely decorated coffin, with flowers strewn in the most attractive manner, and his remains were viewed with sadness and tears by all present. Interment was in the Riverside cemetery March 15, Rev. Kolstoe officiating.

The examination of papers submitted by candidates for teachers' certificates at the last state examination has been completed. There were 4,256 applicants of which 2,729 passed and 1,527 failed. There were issued 303 first grade certificates, 1,591 second grade certificates, and 835 limited. There were 27,390 papers examined and the cost was $2,000.

John Ammundson of Porter was doing some work about his barn and placed his vest, containing a $2,000 note and $25 in bills, on a nail. A calf with a keen appetite ate the note and paper money. Upon the discovery of the loss the calf was killed and enough of the money was found to prove that it went that way. No tract of the note could be discovered, however.

Minneapolis millers are displeased with the attitude of the Minnesota delegation in congress on the question of reciprocity. They feel that in opposing reciprocity on the ground that it would be injurious to the beet sugar industry of this state, the delegation is standing out for a minor interest, to the injury of one infinitely more important and affecting the whole state.

A BOLD ATTEMPT.

JOSEPH WAGNER NARROWLY ESCAPED FOUL PLAY.

Joseph Wagner, who has been working in Costello's lumber camp near Turtle River the past season, returned home yesterday, and tells how he narrowly escaped being foully dealt with. After leaving the camp he traveled alone, driving a team hitched to a lumber wagon. He had on his person about $300. one third of which was his, the balance Geo. Cheedle's whose team he had been driving in the camp. Just before dusk on the first day he was attacked by two vicious looking individuals who demanded his money or his life. They had no firearms. One seized the horses by the bridles and stopped the team while the other went for a club. Joe had no whip and could not budge the horses. He realized that heroic measures were necessary. Jumping out of the wagon he, with one fell swoop, knocked to the ground the villain holding the horses, then, picking up a stick, lashed the horses into a trot, and climbed into the back of the wagon. It was all but the work of an instant, and before the other desperado realized what was going on he had made good his escape. Joe is to be congratulated on his pluck and his rare presence of mind.

HOMESTEAD LAWS.

A FEW POINTS FOR THOSE CONTEMPLATING FILING.

LAW ON APPLICATIONS, RELINQUISHMENTS AND FINAL PROOFS.

No lands are subject to private cash entry except in the State of Missouri. The timber culture and preemption laws have been repealed.

Any head of a family or person who has arrived at the age of 21 years and is a citizen of the United States, or has filed his declaration of intention to become such, and is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land, is entitled to enter one quarter section (160) or less quantity of unappropriated public land under the homestead laws. The applicant must make affidavit that he is entitled to the privileges of the homestead act, and that the entry is made for his exclusive use and benefit and for actual settlement and cultivation.

All applicants must stand upon equal footing with equal rights and privileges to enter the public lands.

The land office fees and commissions, payable when application is made, are as follows:

On land outside the railroad limits $14 for 160 acres; $13 for 120 acres; $9 for 80 acres; $7 for 40 acres.

In addition to these fees will be those paid the applicant's attorney, who looks up the land upon the record and who makes out the affidavits. The District Land office never make out papers of any kind, and their time is too much occupied to even give anything more than the briefest advice.

The homestead filing, that is the affidavits, can be made before a U. S. Commissioner in the district and save the journey, time and expense of going to the District Land Office.

All applicants for land should see that their applications are made out for the exact number of land desired to be entered, which must lie in and form a compact body. If for an adjoining farm, the land owned and resided on must form a compact body with the public land and the two together must not exceed 160 acres.

It is the duty of the applicant when he makes application to ascertain from Land Office records the exact area in the tract, and if over 160 acres, he must, in addition to the $14 entrance fee pay for the excess over 160 acres at the rate of $1.25 or $2.50 per acre, as the case may be, many parties have lost their lands by such failure.

A married woman has no right to make a homestead entry.

Soldiers of the Civil and Spanish wars residing outside of District Land Offices may make a Soldier's Declaratory Statement and execute a power of attorney, which attorney is empowered to locate on any vacant government land, for the soldier who is allowed six months time to come and file in person in the Land District.

A single woman over the age of 21 years has the right to make a homestead entry.

A single woman does not forfeit her homestead entry by marriage if thereafter she continues to comply with the laws as to residence, improvements and cultivation. But a husband and wife cannot both hold separate homestead entries and prove up on both, as they can not legally keep two separate homes for one family at the same time.

Any homesteader desiring to relinquish his land may do so by executing a relinquishment in favor of the United States in due form.

Any person who prior to the act of June 5, 1900, has lost or forfeited his land or made final commuted proof (this bars out the 5 year proofs and applies only to the commuted 14 months) may make a second entry.

The widow or children of a homesteader are not required to reside on their homestead after his death, but must continue cultivation by agent or otherwise. The widow can enter a homestead in her own right while cultivating that of her deceased husband, in which event she must actually reside on the land entered in her own name.

The application to make proof, should be signed by the claimant himself. His four witnesses should, if possible, be near neighbors, fully conversant with the facts essential to perfect proof, and none of them should be relatives of the claimant.

It is the duty of applicant who makes proof before a U. S. Commissioner to see that each question is filled out with complete answers; he must show that he is a native citizen of the United States. If such is the case, and if not then certified copy of naturalization papers will be sufficient; if the entry is by a woman she must state specifically in the proof whether or not she is married or single; applicants should in every case see that the names of witnesses used in making proof are properly advertised, and that they sign their names as advertised, and in giving the names to be published they should ascertain and give their full Christian names, and if possible the four living nearest the land for which proof is to be made. Much trouble and delay has been occasioned by doubtful or different spelling of names. Some persons have actually spelled their names three different ways in making one proof. This makes necessary correspondence and explanatory affidavits, causes delays in receipts of patents and places suspicion on proof.

The proof should, if possible, be taken on the day advertised, before the U. S. Commissioner advertised, with the evidence of at least two of the witnesses advertised; these together with the duplicate receipt and the required fees and commissions should be sealed up and transmitted to the Land Office on the same day proof is taken. The additional fees charged by the homesteader's attorney will vary according to the amount of work involved. Before ever starting a proof it is always advisable to consult a reliable attorney and obtain his services in carrying the proof through, whether the proof is made before the District Land Office or before a U. S. Commissioner. The homesteader must be careful not to alienate or mortgage his land before making proof.

A settlement does not mean actual residence, but preparation for it, to be followed up in good faith. Unless residence on the land is established within six months from date of entry, the entry is liable to contest for abandonment.

Final proof in homestead entries can be made after five years from date of entry, or of actual residence on the land, and must be made before the expiration of seven years from date of entry.

The time during the Civil War or Spanish War, if not less than ninety days, which the homestead settler served in the army, navy, or marine corps, shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title, or if discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, then the term of enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title, without reference to the length of time he may have served; but no patent shall issue to any homestead settler who has not resided upon, improved and cultivated his homestead for a period of at least one year after he shall have commenced his improvements.

Parties are often put to great loss and inconvenience by losing their Receiver's receipts. These should be carefully preserved.

After 14 months' residence on a homestead the entry may be commuted, if desired, by paying $1.25 per acre, and the government will then give patent.

A person who entered less than 160 acres of land as a homestead, before March 2, 1899, may now enter enough additional land which, added to the amount originally entered, will not exceed 160 acres.

A person who has not perfected title to a homestead entry which he made prior to March 2, 1869, may make a new homestead entry of 160 acres regardless of his previous filing.

An Easter Song

BY NEIL MACDONALD

COPYRIGHT 1902 BY HAMILTON MUSK

She sang me a song of triumph, a hymn of the Easter time,
That swept o'er the chords of feeling with the charm of its words and rhyme.

The theme was of love that conquered, that won in the war with death
Of hope in a life immortal surviving the fleeting breath.

Like a grand, triumphal pean, the psalm of a love supreme,
My soul was filled with its rapture—I lived in a strange, sweet dream.

And a calm came over my spirit, a peace without doubt or fear;
I felt on the waves of music uplifted to a purer sphere.

COPYRIGHT BY PARKINSON CO NEW YORK.

Bright vistas opened before me, demesnes that the foot ne'er trod;
I longed for a bliss which only the soul finds in rest with God.

The wonderful anthem ended, its last notes dying away
As the south wind breathed its promise of verdure and flowers for May.

The jubilant chimes of Easter rang out with a glad refrain.
I felt that for man, as nature, the springtime would come again.

I thought of the risen Saviour, I thought of His empty tomb,
And over the graves of ages I saw the amaranth bloom.

READY FOR BUSINESS.

Manager Robert Raney of the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Co., Has Latch String Out.

Robert Raney, manager of the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Company, has taken charge of the new yard, which is being stocked with half a million feet of lumber and building materials of all kinds in vast quantities. The St. Hilaire Lumber Co. is one of the firmly established Northwestern business institutions, having many yards in Northern Minnesota and North Dakota. The company bought the entire output of our saw mill last year, amounting to five or six million feet. This year the cut will exceed eight million feet, ample provision for a supply of logs having been made. The company will control this season's output the same as last year.

Mr. Raney, the manager, is experienced in the retail lumber business, and is a man of fine business ability. A. Paradis has been engaged as his assistant. Mr. Paradis is a pioneer of Red Lake county and his thorough acquaintance with the country will enable him to furnish new comers with valuable pointers.

We wish the firm success.

EASTER SERVICES.

SPECIAL OBSERVANCES AT THE DIFFERENT CHURCHES OF THE CITY.

Easter is almost here.

Easter brings with it one of the fondest, most cherished Christian memories. Inquiry into the history of the festival reveals the fact that the celebration is one handed down by the early Christians. In ancient times, however, the people celebrated two days, the Easter eve and Easter day, combining the two into one big feast. It was regarded as the duty of every man, woman and child to do honor to the festival. All labor ceased; all trades were suspended; the husbandman threw down his spade and put on his holiday attire, and the tavern keeper left his gains. The mother came to church with all of her children and domestics, her husband rejoicing with her. All Christians assembled everywhere as members of one family. The poor man and the rich wore their gayest attire. Those who were unfortunate enough to have little of their own borrowed from their neighbors. It was during the sixth century that the celebration was so elaborate. That feature of the exercises relating to dress and the general attendance at church seems still to have a firm hold on the people. Elaborate floral decorations, including, of course, the Easter lily, are generally found in all the churches, while in the larger cities singing birds are frequently placed in the auditoriums during the services.

On the whole the effect is such that no one can help but feel better for having attended Easter service.

Although Easter falls earlier this year than usual, the indications for fair, warm weather are very favorable, and preparations are well under way for social and religious observance of the occasion. The programs at the different churches will be as follows:

HALLOO WYLIE!

RED LAKE FALLS WILL SOON BE ON SPEAKING TERMS WITH THAT BURG.

W. A. Schreiter, who has been pushing the organization of a telephone company to build a line to Wylie, reports that sufficient stock has been subscribed to warrant the assertion that the line will soon be in operation. Of course nothing can be done in the way of putting in poles until the frost is out of the ground, but immediately thereafter the work will be pushed.

The route will be to the corner of Matt Skala's farm, thence due west three miles, thence due north to Wylie.

The Wylie people have taken considerable interest in the matter and have subscribed liberally.

It is thought the Wylie office will be in charge of Leppert Bros., who have taken an active part in pushing the project.

The long distance does not strike Wylie, and the need of telephonic communication with this community which is growing in importance has long been felt. It will be a convenience at both ends of the line.

Creamery Starts Tuesday.

Buttermaker F. C. Johnson says the Red Lake Falls Creamery will resume operations on Tuesday, April 1. This is six weeks earlier than the start last year. The number of patrons and the milk supply has so largely increased over that of last year that he anticipates the plant will hereafter be run the year around. Some of the patrons have as high as fifty cows, and these ought to average $4.00 a month. Of course the cow's milk product depends largely upon the way she has been cared for and the manner of feeding. This fact is realized now; and those interested in the creamery have for the past two years been weeding out the poor stock, and instituting a proper system of feeding.

Mr. Johnson has been clearing the creamery property, which is nicely situated on the banks of the Clearwater river, and he will seed the plot to Kentucky blue grass and clover.

M. W. A. CONVENTION.

DELEGATES FROM COUNTY CAMPS MEET IN THIS CITY.

The annual county convention of the Red Lake county Modern Woodmen of America was held in Woodmen hall in this city Tuesday. The following delegates were present:

Red Lake Falls, Aug. Riechel Jr., Wm. Schwalen, D. J. Doran.

Thief River Falls, Ira C Richardson, K. M. Hanson, R. Ohm.

Terrebonne, Dr. Tessier and Moses Ducharme.

It was decided to hold the annual picnic at St. Hilaire. Ira C. Richardson was elected chairman and D. J. Doran secretary of the Picnic Association. A large attendance had been anticipated, inasmuch as the M. W. A. is very strong in all parts of the county, but the bad weather interfered.

Holy Week at St. Mary's Church.

The week beginning Sunday is called "Holy Week" in the Catholic church.

High mass is celebrated Thursday at 10 a. m. After mass there will be a solemn procession of the most holy sacrament to the repository, followed by the stripping of the altars. During the day the faithful will visit the most holy sacrament.

Friday at 9 a. m., the pastor will celebrate the mass presanctified. During the mass there will be veneration of the cross and solemn procession of the most holy sacrament from the repository to the main altar. After mass the faithful will venerate the cross. Friday afternoon there will be Stations in German, and in the evening stations in English.

Saturday morning services will begin at 7:30 o'clock, consisting of the blessing of the new fire, Paschal candle, reading of the prophecies, blessing of the Easter water and baptismal font, and high mass.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy to recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gooding Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

The Rochester Bulletin says: The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gooding was celebrated under the happy auspices which so noteworthy an anniversary demanded, at the family residence last evening.

The day was one of great interest, not only to the immediate family but to all the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gooding, who are among Rochester's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens

The anniversary was also made the occasion for a family reunion. All of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Gooding were present with the exception of Fred A. Gooding, who is now living at Casper, Wyoming.

Those at last evening's celebration were Will G. Gooding and Orlen L. Gooding of Minneapolis, Frank E. Gooding Arthur C. Gooding and Mrs. Ada Ainslie of the city.

As per the request in the invitations issued by the host and hostess, the friends did not express their kindly sentiments in gifts of gold, but a number sent beautiful roses. Mr. and Mrs. Gooding received alone, the guests numbering about one hundred persons. The comfortable home was made fit for a bride in its lavish adornment of floral beauty.

As was noted last evening, it is a remarkable fact that parents should live to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary with so large a family of children and not to have one break caused by death. Every member of this family and of the childrens' families is living to honor the name.

EASTERTIDE PLANT LEGENDS

By KATHERINE A. CHANDLER

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY W. L. VAIL

EASTER comes in the springtime burst of plant growth, when both cultivated park and woodland glen invite our attention anew to the marvels of the floral world. Our old pagan ancestors were as observant of these phenomena as we are, and it about the date upon which we celebrate the resurrection they held a joyful festival in honor of the deity who personified the opening of the spring. The early church, with its habit of adopting as many of the popular religious rites as possible into the new faith, found it an easy matter to transform the feast of the earth's awakening from the sleep of winter to the rejoicing that Christ should initiate the resurrection of the souls of men from the sleep of the grave.

Before the Christian era throughout Europe blossoms bore the names of the pagan deities, but with the revolution of religious ideas the plants had to be rechristened and the legends attached to them reconstructed to conform to the new faith.

Perhaps from a feeling of reverence but few were named for Christ or any member of the trinity. We still have Christ's thorn, which is supposed to have furnished the material for the crown of torture.

Upon the Saviour's mother a wealth of flowers were bestowed. The plants coming to us with the prefix "lady," as lady's slipper and lady's tresses, were "Our Lady's" before abbreviated by time. Our Lady's thistle received its name from a legend connected with the flight of the holy family from Bethlehem. As Mary nursed the infant by the roadside a few drops of milk fell on a plant at her feet, and the leaves retain to this day the vouchers for the story. The virgin's bower, marigold, maiden's hair and all like titles were originally named for the Virgin Mary.

THE ANGEL GAVE ABEL THREE SEEDS.

The fritillaria, or checkered lily, before the crucifixion was pure white, with upturned cup. It stood proudly erect during the suffering until darkness enshrouded the earth, and it saw that all nature but itself was grieving. Then it bent low its head and donned garments of mourning and began to weep. Still it hangs its head in somber attire and still each petal sheds a pearly tear.

The veronica gets its name from a resemblance to the imprint of Christ's features left on St. Veronica's handkerchief when she pressed from out the throng and wiped the perspiration from the Redeemer's brow.

It has never been decided what tree or trees furnished wood for the cross. Bede says the cypress, the cedar, the pine and the box, but St. Chrysostom quotes from Isaiah lx, 13, "The glory of Lebanon (cedar) shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree and the box together to beautify the place of my sanctuary." The four woods are considered symbolic of the four quarters of the globe over which the influence of the cross shall finally extend.

There is an old English legend carrying the cross back to the days of our first parents. Adam sent Abel to an angel to petition him to show them the path back to the garden of Eden. The angel gave Abel three seeds and directed him to plant them, saying that from their trunks would spring the path to paradise. The seeds were planted, and one tree at least was flourishing at the time Solomon erected his temple. This tree was cut down to furnish a ridgepole, but after it was brought in it was found to be too short. Then it was cast aside and lay waste by the pool of Bethesda until it was taken to form the cross, which, according to Christianity, will guide us to the paradise lost to us by the weakness of the first man.

If you taste it for the name's sake, You'll use it for its goodness' sake.

A GOLDEN EASTER EGG

BY PETER McARTHUR

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY P. McARTHUR

MAY HARTLEY was fond of saying that she was "not like other girls," and Harry Deane agreed with her entirely. Indeed, he went much further in his belief than she did, for she meant that her usual way of doing things was different, while he not only thought that, but thought she differed greatly in being more beautiful and lovable and harder to propose to than other girls. She didn't follow up any of the usual leads that are so likely to bring up the momentous question naturally when young people are together. On the contrary, she seemed to realize several sentences ahead what he was going to stammer out when he had made up his mind to propose and never failed to change the subject skillfully. Of course this only made him the more eager to have his face settled.

When Harry came home from the city for his Easter holiday, it was with a grim determination to go back as an engaged man or know the reason why. He knew that he would have to do something clever in the way of proposing, and, as he had studied the matter carefully since Christmas, he felt sure that his plan was one that would surely succeed. But in coming to that conclusion he overlooked for the moment the well known fact that she was not like other girls and that the best laid eggs as well as the best laid plans "gang aft agley."

"HERE'S MY PART OF THE SPREAD."

They had spent Easter eve together, and the time had come when he should take his leave if he did not wish to break the Sabbath. But as he stirred as if about to go May said:

"I have a cake of my own making that I want you to try before you go."

This was exactly the opening he had been waiting for all evening.

"Thank you," he said. "And I have something of my own cooking that I want you to try."

"Something of your own cooking?" she asked, opening her brown eyes very wide.

"Exactly, and I hope you will enjoy it."

"What is it? Candy?"

"I didn't know candy was cooked. I thought it was just made."

"How witty you have become since you went to the city!" she retorted, with a mock bow.

"Oh, you have no idea," he replied calmly. "Now you go and get your cake, and when you come back I'll have my spread ready."

May left the room, wondering what on earth was coming. Of course she rather expected a present or souvenir of some kind from him after he had been corresponding with her for some months in as affectionate a vein as she would allow.

After she had left the room Harry stepped out into the hall and took a neat little package from his overcoat pocket. He placed it on the table after unfastening the cord with which it was tied and waited for May. She returned presently with a plate of cake and a tray bearing steaming cups of coffee.

"Here is my part of the spread," she said, "and if you don't like it I am afraid there will be trouble."

"And here is mine," he said as he pushed the box toward her.

May opened the box with as much curiosity as might be expected from an ordinary girl. She found a golden egg carefully packed in batting.

"Why," she exclaimed, "I thought the goose that laid the golden egg was killed long ago!"

"So it was, but this one was laid by the great American hen especially for your Easter celebration."

"Oh, and there is poetry on it too! I am afraid that is more than I can swallow."

Harry blushed modestly while she read aloud:

> "Try to eat me, and you'll find > My contents show the giver's mind."

"Will 'show the giver's mind.' Does that mean that the egg is not more than half baked?"

"It isn't baked at all; it's boiled," he answered testily.

"That means that it has been in hot water. Does it follow that you are likely to get into hot water too?"

"I trust not," he replied fervently. "But, say, this cake of yours is simply delicious."

"I suppose when I eat this egg I'll have to compliment it too. But, come to think of it, an egg is something that one should always take with a grain of salt."

"Not this one," he said eagerly. "This is an especial egg."

"Well, I'll have it for breakfast and see if it is gold all the way through."

"Oh, it is better than gold!"

"Better? And it is going to show your mind, so the poem says. Dear, dear, I never thought you had such a wonderful mind!"

"Now you are purposely misunderstanding me."

"On the contrary, I am not understanding you at all."

"I wish I could make you understand me, Miss Hartley"—

"Why, do you find me so stupid that I can't understand?"

"No; I simply find you too clever to let me see whether you understand or not. But don't save the egg for breakfast. Perhaps you wouldn't care to open it at the table with the children."

"Why shouldn't I care to open a golden egg if it's real gold? I am afraid it is only plated!" she exclaimed, noticing a spot where the gold leaf was rubbing loose.

"I wish you would open it now," said Harry.

His persistence was just exactly what would naturally keep May from opening the egg to please him, but it must be admitted that her curiosity was very thoroughly aroused. Besides, he somehow seemed different from what he used to be before going to the city, and she was beginning to feel a misgiving that she might tease him altogether too much. Finally she decided that she would satisfy him and her own curiosity by opening the Easter egg. Taking the cake knife in her hand, she took one more critical look at the egg and then exclaimed:

"Oh, I wish you had put the poetry at the other end of the egg, for I would like to save this wonderful shell! But now I'll have to spoil the verses while opening it."

"Why, no," he protested. "I put the verses near the big end so that you wouldn't have to spoil them."

"But how could I open the egg without spoiling them?"

"By opening it at the little end, as everybody else does."

"At the little end! I never opened an egg at the little end in my life."

"Well, it isn't too late for you to begin now."

"It is entirely too late when I know better. Everybody knows that the big end is the only end to open an egg at. If you open that end, you have room to get your spoon in."

"Spoon nonsense. You would think that one ate eggs with a tablespoon to hear you talk."

"Well, one would think you had never eaten eggs at all," she retorted, "when you don't know which end to open."

"But I do know at which end to open them, and that is why I fixed that one as I did. My mother taught me as a child to open my egg at the little end, and I have never forgotten it."

"If it had been sensible, you would have forgotten it, but I want you to know that my mother taught me to open them at the big end, and it just makes me sick to see any one open an egg at the little end. That's the end that the yolk is in, and you are always in danger of cutting too deep and mussing things up."

"My!" he said, with an attempt at being sarcastic. "How well you know the anatomy of an egg."

"Well," she answered hotly, "I know the anatomy of eggs so well that I have no further desire to investigate the contents of this one, even if it does show the giver's mind." And she replaced it on the table.

"Oh, well, I'm sure I'll not insist," said Harry, "and I suppose you can afford to get sarcastic about the giver's mind. You don't appear to have enough of your own to enable you to open an egg properly." As he said this he rose angrily. Now, you need not be surprised that these young people were so foolish as to quarrel about the proper way of opening an egg. We can all remember how carefully the historian of the Lilliputians has recorded the events of the cruel war that raged between the big Endians and the little Endians.

THE EGG FELL TO THE FLOOR WITH A CRASH.

> A lover's feelings are more soft and sensible
> Than are the tender horns of cockled snails.

So it is no wonder that their tender feelings were wounded by this trifle.

As Harry rose angrily from the table he accidentally struck against it in such a way that the golden egg, which May had put down, started to roll toward the edge, and before either of them noticed what was happening it fell to the floor with a crash. As it did so it burst asunder, and something bounced out that could not help attracting attention. As it rolled off into a corner every turn threw out sparkles of prismatic light. May uttered an involuntary "Oh!" as soon as she saw what the egg had contained, and, forgetting all about her anger, her face flushed with surprise and pleasure. Glancing up at her from the wreck of the egg, Harry saw the change of expression on her face, and the absurdity of his anger came over him like a flash. He began to laugh and, stepping across the room, picked up the engagement ring with its flashing solitaire.

"If you won't try to eat my Easter egg," he said, "I'd like a chance to eat my angry words of the last few minutes."

"All right," said May, "and I'll join you."

He looked fair into her laughing eyes, then took her unresisting hand in his and slipped the ring on her finger.

"Can you understand the giver's mind now?" he asked.

"Yes," she whispered.

"And do you object to it?" She made no answer, but it was one of those cases where an answer in words is entirely superfluous. When he finally decided that he "really must go now," he stooped down to pick up the remains of his Easter egg and found that it was broken fairly in the middle between the big and little ends.

"Look!" he exclaimed. "Fate has arbitrated our discussion. The shell has broken just where I had cut the hole in it to put in the ring."

"That's all right," said May saucily. "I accept the decision, but I think we had better have scrambled eggs and omelets for awhile at first."

EASTER JOLLITIES.

BY FRANK TOWNLEY.

To make Easter merely a "Sunday of joy" would be to rob the holy Sabbath of that reverence always due to the first day of the week. But religious observances, while always earnest, are various, and different people have applied their own peculiar humor and customs to the celebration of Eastertide. Now it is typical of the resurrection of our Lord, again of the bursting forth of spring and to some folks of lively yet conventional views the close of a long season of fasting and denial. Among the pioneers of the American border there was little unity of religious faith and often not enough of one kind to set the fashion for stated observances. But Easter had its traditions, and there was so little to make the burden of border life agreeable that every event was seized upon by the young as an excuse for frolicking.

The Easter egg somehow appealed to all people of whatever lineage. An article of food and commerce, treasured like gold at ordinary times, the egg was excused from fixed duty on Easter and given over to the carnival mob for all kinds of sport. If nothing more delirious was thought of, there was an egg feast all day, with a menu of fried, boiled, scrambled or poached eggs at every meal. Small boys looked forward to Easter, or "Paas," much the same as to Fourth of July. They wanted eggs by the hatful, the basketful or the barrelful, and they stole them as shamelessly as city urchins do the fuel for bonfires.

Dyed in various colors, the Easter eggs came from hidden stores for the family feast, and when the amusement of stealing and dyeing for general use became too tame the boys also laid by stores for a vagabond feast in the woods. Eggs were roasted in ashes and devoured with the relish that goes with an out of doors appetite. To lend further zest to the feast the boys of one neighborhood would raid the hidden stores of another. If the party raided was alert, there would happen a scramble as fierce and bloody as a football rush. If the contest was close, then eggs raw or eggs burning hot were fired into the faces of the combatants. Perhaps there was economy in the long run in this recklessness, for the boys who reveled in an Easter feast didn't have any appetite for eggs the remainder of the year.

In olden times the church gave to Easter a festal coloring by letting the people down to their common tastes at the close of Lent. Witty stories and anecdotes were told to arouse the "paschal laugh." With all nature smiling in spring it was natural that the human heart should open itself to joyous thoughts.

New clothes on Easter Sunday is an old custom. An ancient verse runs in this strain:

> At Easter let your clothes be new
> Or else be sure you will it rue.

There were many superstitions about new clothes for Easter, and Shakespeare records the custom. Vanity and the dictates of fashion due to the change of the seasons may be at the bottom of the modern notion of donning new gowns and bonnets at Eastertide, but it is also a happy and innocent way of expressing joyousness. Lent is over, pleasure may resume its sway, and woman should imitate the trees and the plants by putting on fresh adornments.

The maids and swains of Ireland in the good old days indulged in what they called the "dance of joy" at the dawn of Easter. Happiness is a cure for evil, and perhaps in the evolution of creeds and customs the great springtide festival may become again a carnival of innocent merrymaking for the devoutly religious as well as the secular world.

AN EASTER COMEDY

BY A. B. LEWIS.

[Copyright, 1902, by A. B. Lewis.]

Mrs. Dubbs hadn't lived with Mr. Dubbs twenty-five years without knowing his peculiarities. He never made Christmas presents; he never observed birthdays; he did not regard Easter as the proper day to bring out new headgear. Mrs. Dubbs had always rebelled about the latter, and the time had finally come when she meant to break out in open defiance. She began long weeks ahead to cut nickels and dimes off the household expenses and lay them aside for another purpose, and when at last Easter drew near she counted up her savings and found the sum sufficient to buy what her soul craved for. She didn't expect that Dubbs would be pleased, but if she got out of it without a solemn lecture she would be more than satisfied.

Queerly enough, Mr. Dubbs had not only come to the conclusion that he needed a new hat, after wearing his old one for five years, but he so far went back on his record as to decide to bring it out Easter Sunday. It took considerable scheming on his part to buy a new "plug" and get it home and deposit the box on the spare bed up stairs the day before Easter, and, although he was home when his wife's new bonnet arrived in its handbox, it was sneaked up stairs into the spare room and left beside his hat without his being any the wiser.

That evening as Mr. Dubbs was returning home from the store he found a puppy on the doorstep shivering with the cold, and in the goodness of his heart, for he was good in streaks, he picked up the pup and carried it inside. In the goodness of her heart Mrs. Dubbs welcomed and fed the stranger, and, instead of turning it out in the cold world, she let it remain and make itself at home. Shortly before bedtime Mrs. Dubbs smiled to herself as she looked over at her husband and said:

"John, I do wish I had a new bonnet for tomorrow."

"Y-e-s, and I wish I had a new hat," he mumbled in reply.

There was silence for a time as she patched a pair of trousers and he read his paper, and then he suddenly started up and remarked:

"I wonder where that purp is?"

"He must be up stairs!" she gasped as she looked around.

It was a race between them to the top of the stairs, and they came out neck and neck. As they stood in the door of the spare room they saw the dog. He was still chewing away, but had nearly finished. On the bed and floor were strips of bandboxes and pieces of hat brim and hat crown, and mingled with them were ends of ribbons, bits of straw and glass ornaments and torn velvet. The pup had done his best.

MR. DUBBS PICKED UP THE PUP.

"My Easter bonnet!" wailed the wife.

"My Easter hat!" shouted the husband.

And that was all—all except that the pup was dropped out of a second story window, the lights turned down and the clock wound up, and as the deceivers slept they dreamed and moaned and muttered, and Easter day was no more to them.

TO CANADIAN BOUNDARY.

Itasca Lumber Company's Road to Be Extended.

Duluth, March 21.—The report is confirmed that the Itasca Lumber company's road is to be extended to the Canadian boundary. This road, now 30 miles long, will be pushed through Koochiching without delay.

W. T. Joyce of Chicago, the moving spirit of the road, intends to extend the line from Deer River to the Twin Cities.

J. J. Hill is reported to be interested in the enterprise.

St. Paul Primary Election.

St. Paul, March 20.—The primary election held in this city, preliminary to the municipal election, resulted in the renomination of the present incumbent, Robert A. Smith, for mayor by the Democrats, and former mayor, Frank B. Doran, by the Republicans. For comptroller Louis Betz was selected by the Democrats, and J. J. McCardy by the Republicans.

Man Frozen to Death.

St. Paul, March 18.—John Orwelski was found frozen to death on the porch of his home at 7:30 a. m. Orwelski was taken home in an intoxicated condition the night previous by a friend. He lived alone, and it is believed that he was unable to open the door and went to sleep on the steps.

Gave Birth to Triplets.

Spring Valley, Minn., March 22.—Mrs. Frank Beach, of this place, has given birth to triplets. They are all boys. The mother and children are doing well. Mr. Beach is a farmer, living six miles southeast of here.

LEGISLATION PROPOSED.

Action by Congress to Meet Conditions Like the Merger.

Washington, March 21.—Marcus D. Munn, special counsel for the state of Minnesota in the suits against the Northern Securities company, had a long conference with Senator Nelson about the matter of congressional legislation.

Mr. Munn presented the case in a different light and proposed legislation on an entirely different basis from that proposed by Attorney General Douglas of Minnesota in his letters to Senator Nelson, which, by the way, have appeared in print as a senate document. Mr. Munn is asking for the passage of a bill which will allow a state to bring action in the federal court against a corporation organized in another state and which is violating the laws of the state beginning the action.

Attorney General Douglas asked for an amendment to existing laws, whereby the federal courts could be invoked in action by the state against citizens of other states, including citizens of the state bringing the suit. This request was embodied in the joint resolution of the Minnesota legislature, and Senator Nelson replied that under decision of the supreme court and under section 2, article 3, of the constitution, the judicial powers of the United States do not extend to a controversy between a state and citizens of the same state.

Mr. Munn's proposition is on much broader grounds and he asks for federal legislation that will give jurisdiction for a state to bring an action in the federal courts to protest a violation of its laws by a foreign corporation. It is understood that a bill will be presented by Senator Nelson in line with Mr. Munn's recommendation.

PORTER IS ACQUITTED.

Duluth Negro Held Not Guilty of John Brown's Death.

Duluth, March 18.—Nelson Porter, a negro charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of John Brown of West Duluth, has been acquitted, the jury returning a verdict in an hour.

Porter is a street vendor of hot tamales. About a month ago Brown, while drunk, met him on the street and asked him for a tamale. After getting it, he refused to pay and in the quarrel Porter knocked Brown down. The latter's head struck the curb, inflicting injuries from which he died.

WILL FORM NEW TOWN.

Rainy Lake Headquarters Will Be at Ash Lake, Minn.

Duluth, March 21.—The end of the first division of the Duluth, Virginia and Rainy Lake road will be completed about July 1.

The divisional headquarters will be at Ash Lake, 72 miles north of Virginia, and shops and round house will also be located there.

A new town will be formed, the name of which is not yet known, but it is believed that there will be some 5,000 people settled there within a very short space of time.

HUSBAND TAKES REVENGE.

Kills Wife Who Fled With Another and Then Himself.

Hibbing, Minn., March 22.—John Bianchi of Eveleth shot and killed his wife, Mary, and then turned the gun on himself and died immediately. The wife had left her home at Eveleth a week ago, in the absence of her husband, and came to Hibbing with another man, who is now missing. She leaves a boy 12 years old and a girl of 8. There were several witnesses to the tragedy.

Well Known Attorney Dead.

St. Paul, March 22.—Henry J. Horn, for many years identified with St. Paul's legal circles, and one of the most prominent lawyers in the state, died at St. Luke's hospital from the effects of an operation performed a week ago in the hope of saving his life. Mr. Horn was 80 years of age.

Saloon Fight Ends in Murder.

St. Paul, March 24.—Harry Morgan, formerly a bartender for Fred Bryan, proprietor of the City hotel, was fatally injured in a fight with Bryan in the hotel bar at 7 p. m. and died several hours later at the City hospital. Bryan is under arrest on the charge of manslaughter.

SAWS HIS WAY OUT OF JAIL.

Offer of Reward Follows Escape of Alleged Forger.

Fargo, N. D., March 24.—Albert Saunders broke jail here during the night. He pleaded guilty last week to a $400 forgery at Casselton and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Saunders sawed through an iron floor of the bathroom to unoccupied cells underneath and gained entrance to the corridor through an unlocked door in the big cellroom. His escape was made from a window in the end of the corridor and indications are that Saunders had an accomplice outside.

A reward has been offered and an investigation is in progress in an effort to ascertain where Saunders secured his saws.

RESULT OF BAD BLOOD.

Fatal Duel Occurs on the Streets of Corydon, Ky.

Henderson, Ky., March 24.—A fatal shooting occurred at Corydon, this county, in which Green W. Pritchett was killed and John Below, a farmer, fatally wounded. Bad blood existed between the two men over business and when they met on the streets Pritchett shot Below and Below shot Pritchett. With a bullet through his heart Pritchett fired a third shot at Below but missed. Pritchett then fell and expired. Pritchett was one of the wealthiest men of the section. He was an extensive land owner and tobacconist. The coroner's verdict exonerated Below.

Case Baffled the Physicians.

La Crosse, Wis., March 24.—One of the strangest medical cases in the history of La Crosse terminated Sunday in the death of Mrs. Frank Wichman, who had been in a trance for the past seven days. During that time she had taken no food or water and was apparently dead. Her case baffled the physicians.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

WATSON WILL WIN.

That Dr. N. M. Watson will outdistance all competitors in the race for the Republican senatorial nomination in the 61st district is apparent to anyone conversant with the situation. He will have no opposition in Red Lake county, but on the other hand will command the enthusiastic support of the party organization, and the united indorsement of the rank and file. It is not likely that Norman county will put up a candidate against Mayor Watson, in view of the strong bond of sympathy and mutual interest existing between the Republican organizations of the two counties and the manner in which Red Lake county indorsed Senator O. H. Myran, Norman county's favorite son, in the campaign four years ago. W. F. Street, of Bemidji, will be the chief candidate against Dr. Watson for the nomination. Street has opposition in his home county, and while he will prove a formidable vote getter, we look for victory for Watson.

The Republican vote for secretary of state in the three counties two years ago was:

Norman....................	1403
Beltrami....................	1207
Red Lake....................	773

With Beltrami county's vote split, and Red Lake and Norman solid for Watson, the result is easily foretold.

As to his election, no man in the district could beat Watson at the polls. He is the strongest man the party could nominate, and this very fact will assist in bringing about his nomination.

It is only necessary to secure the Doctor's consent to make the race. The people will do the rest.

Here's a suggestion for telephone people: King Menelik of Abyssinia is building telephone lines between his capital and the Italian settlements in Erythrea. Italy furnishes the wire and Menelik the poles. Any one caught cutting wires will have his right hand cut off and his property confiscated to pay for the damage.

AMERICAN FEELING OVER THE BOER VICTORY.

There seems to be a conspicuous absence in this country, of the "gloom" that is reported to have settled down upon Great Britain at the news of De la Rey's route of Methuen's force on March 7, says the Literary Digest. To tell the truth, the overwhelming majority of the American press are jubilant over the affair, and the only papers that deplore it do so on the ground that, as the British must win in the end, anything that prolongs the war is a misfortune to both parties. Two weeks before (on February 25) De la Rey had inflicted a loss of 632 men, in killed, wounded and missing on another British column that was escorting a train of empty wagons; and in the affair of March 7 the British loss was 318 more, of whom 41 were killed and 77 wounded. The prompt release of Gen. Methuen and the other British prisoners is thought by some papers to indicate that the main object of the attack was the capture of the supplies, and as the Boers are cut off from outside sources of food, ammunition, clothing, etc., the belief is expressed that the British government is now supporting both armies, the Boers being compelled to get their share by such raids as have been recently reported.

The effect of the Boer victory, as the Detroit Free Press and other papers think, will be to encourage the Boers and to increase the determination of the British, and so prolong the struggle. By a curious coincidence, the London Chronicle of February 27 printed a letter from Lord Methuen himself, expressing the belief that the war was about over. The Boston Herald remarks that Methuen has now probably changed his opinion. Says the New York Tribune:

"Either the war is not as near its end as optimistic Englishmen have declared, or there is a particularly big screw loose somewhere in the British army organization. When a British force of twelve hundred men, commanded by a major general, can be attacked by a body of Boers and all but annihilated, the general being captured with a large number of his men and all his baggage, and the rest being put to helpless flight, it is mockery to talk about mere 'sniping' and guerilla warfare. The Boers under De la Rey could not have been stragglers and bushwhackers. They must have been a numerous and well-organized body. So long as such bodies are in the field, there is an outlook for serious work ahead. Either this, we have said, or there is something wrong with the British army management. It may be that both suppositions are true. With all allowance for circumstances, it seems scarcely possible to explain such a catastrophe as that which has befallen Lord Methuen save on the ground of inexcusable blundering, carelessness or incompetency on the part of somebody.

"If this could happen in a region which is described on British maps ......as 'partially cleared,' one wonders what might not happen in the 'area of main resistance.' The catastrophe will not, of course, effect the ultimate outcome of the war. It may not greatly affect its progress. But it will certainly give more than one bad quarter of an hour in London, and should cause a pretty systematic heart-searching among those at the front."

PREPARING FOR EASTER

I'm afraid most of us think more of the preparation in the way of attire. That is well and good as far as it goes, but is that all we need to do to prepare for Easter? In going through the shops we see many pretty cards and we read the words "A Joyous Eastertide" or words to that effect. Some of you will send out cards, others will send out tokens of love, all aiming to make "A Joyous Eastertide" for those about them. Those who cannot give at such a time need not despair for there is good cheer which costs nothing, and which will be a comfort, doing an untold amount of good. The husband of a tired, patient wife, can make things bright at home by lending a helping hand and saying a cheering word. It does not take long, my friend, to bring in the coal and do other work about; yet you say you have not time when you hurry away leaving the burden on the weaker shoulders, while you could so readily carry it. How is it then, you busiest of all men, that you will stand within a stone's throw of your home talking politics with any chance comer? You have time then, why not take time to be kind to those you love best? You may leave a cheer behind you which will go far toward making glad the heart of your good wife.

Then there is the young miss who goes to school. Perhaps at this very moment she is sighing for a "career." But THERE IS NO NOBLER CAREER FOR ANY GIRL THAN THAT OF MAKING MOTHER HAPPY. Think of this often, girls, and look about you to see if you are doing ALL you can in that regard. Girls, when you neglect your mothers, most of you do it thoughtlessly. I give you credit for wanting to do right. Your young hearts and minds do not realize the seriousness of life. I want you to enjoy yourselves, my girls, but I beg you will think more often of mother. Arrange to help her a bit in the morning before going to school. You can easily do the dishes for her at noon. I've seen it done and know what a relief it is to the mother thus favored. You can do much after school and help to give mother not only a "Joyous Easter Tide" which I wish you all, but better still, be as well a continuous source of joy and comfort.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

HOW VIRGINE AND "ME TOO" SPENT EASTER.

Virgine and "Me Too," her little sister, made many plans for a good time on Easter. The Saturday before they took good things to many of the sick and poor; but the greatest excitement prevailed when it came time to make their Easter nests, which were finally invitingly arranged in baskets, where the Easter rabbit would find them.

Sunday morning the grown up members of the family were awakened very early by the noise in the play room. The happy children called out "Do come and see all our lovely eggs; some candy eggs, too. Now let's hurry and dress," the youngsters next excitedly exclaimed, "so we may peddle our eggs around." Of course the neighbors were all remembered. Little fancy baskets given to the tots by a kind auntie were packed many times that morning and Virgine could not wait for Me Too in her hurry to make her friends happy. So Me Too toddled on behind quite content with her basket of eggs for the dear Klitke family, who were the first to be favored. True to their kind hearts, anticipating this visit, they had a nest for the children with so many eggs that that Dora, the maid, must bring eggs, girls and baskets home. Next the teachers, the old people and the relatives must be remembered and two busier little maids than Virgine and her tiny sister it would have been hard to find.

During the day the sexton of a nearby church came by and told the children there was something to look at in his fence corner. So away went the little maids with this good, bent old man, long since gone to his reward, and sure enough there was a nest full of eggs, which he said was for them.

The children were remembered by many friends, and their assortment included hand painted eggs, gilt eggs, and many more varieties.

HOUSEHOLD.

Egg shells from which the egg has been blown are very pretty with a face drawn or painted on. A cap or bonnet made of tissue paper may be pasted on and a pasteboard covered with gathered tissue paper makes a good foundation on which to fasten the shell. A tisue paper bow or two finishes the cap nicely. Mine were trimmed with white caps and blue bows.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wolfe, of Wyandotte, mourn the loss of their bright little fourteen-months old son, who died Sunday, of complications resulting from teething, after an illness of but twelve hours. The funeral occurred Monday the remains being interred in St. Joseph's North Side cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe have the sincere sympathy of a host of warm friends in this bereavement.

A large number of the gentlemen friends of G. G. Kindseth were very pleasantly entertained at his home on Saturday evening at progressive whist. A dainty lunch was served at 11:30, a part of which were the ever welcome ludefisk and "goo goo eye" sandwiches. Those present were Messrs. F. E. Hunt, N. Holberg, L. Holberg, W. Holberg, G. Dedrickson, H. Kriel, M. Skaln, O. Thomas, A. M. Anderson and Fred Borchers.

S. Bleau, of Louisville, is the latest Red Lake county politician to tie himself to other parts, having moved with his family to Worcester, Mass. Mr. Bleau was a candidate for sheriff before the last two Populist county conventions but failed to land the prize. It is a peculiar fact that many of Red Lake county's politicians are leaving or have gone. Among them may be noted W T. Mullarky, Isdie Marchildon, Edonor Perusse, J. Q. Adams, Henry Norland, Swan Anderson, Wm Lemay, Ovide Moreau Sem Deinerd, Ed. Hamry, J. W. Swenstrom and H. E. Albue all of whom have in the past been more or less prominently identified with the political gems in Red Lake county.

The story about Governor Van Sant addressing Prince Henry as "Mr. Prince," brings to mind the following yarn about one of the admirals of the old school in the American navy. At one time when the warship of which the admiral was in command was off the coast of Portugal, the king of that country expressed a desire to visit an American man-of-war. The admiral received the party with great cordiality, but instead of addressing the royal visitor as "your Majesty," or "your Highness," he invariably called him "King." It was "Step this way, King." "Look out for your head, King." when showing him about the vessel, and before his Majesty departed the admiral convulsed all within hearing by saying hospitably, "King, come down in the cabin and have a drink."
